Beau - re - gard, to Lee, and Jeff. "These Yan - kee sons of thun - der, Will true said Jeff. I know it well, How shall we change our game, sir. O rub'd their trai - tor hands in glee, And is - sued strin - gent or - ders, Signed real - ly thought that call - ing names, Had strengthen'd their po - si - tion, When scat - ter us from right to left, Or cause us to knock un - - der, Un-dear," said Lee, "I can - not tell," Quoth Beau. "we'll call 'em names, sir," "That's by the po - lite Beau - re - gard. That, hence - forth through their bor - - ders, The all their sneak - ing curs up North, Ran yelp - ing Ab - - o - - li - - tion; But

- less we find some oth - er way Of meet - ing their ad - - van - - ces; We've good," said Jeff. "you've hit it Beau." Cried Lee, "that's what's the mat - - ter"; "We'll on - ly word that should be used, To name the Yan - kee sol - - dier, Should soon we made the trai - tors know, 'Twas some - thing else the mat - - ter, The made up fa - - ces now so long, They do not mind our glan - - ces."
call them 'Ab - - o - - li - - tion - - ists,' And then you'll see them scat - - ter."
be an 'Ab - - o - - li - - tion - - ist,' And then they strut - ted hold - - er.
more they 'Ab - - o - - li - - tion' howl'd, The more we did not scat - - ter.

We take the name you give us, Beau,
  We mean to make it true, sir,
We'll first abolish Slavery's power,
  And then abolish you, sir.
You thought we'd guard your niggers, Jeff.
  And keep them raising corn, sir,
To feed the traitor hordes you lead;
  We'll do it "in a horn sir."

6

We'll free your blacks and fight your whites
  And dig for traitors, graves, sir,
Until there's not in all the land
  A traitor or a slave, sir;
When that is done, we'll home return,
  The home to us so dear, sir,
And soundly kick and cuff the curs,
  Now barking in our rear, sir.
