ALWAYS DO TO OTHERS AS YOU'D WISH TO BE DONE BY.

WORDS AND MELODY BY F. W. EGERTON.

ARRANGED BY H. MALSCH.

INTRODUCTION.
Moderato.

We meet with ma-ny curious folks, As tho' the world we roam, Some who are full of fun and jokes, While others pine and moan, I care not whether grave or gay, One thing we all should try, That is to do to others as We'd wish to be done by.

3

CHORUS. 3

Then bear good will to all men, It's ea - sy if you'll try . . . . . And al - ways do to oth - ers as you'd wish to be done by . . . . .

2.
Perhaps in business you've been wronged,
By some "defaulting rogue,"
For by such scamps the world is thronged,
They long have been in vogue;
Don't seek revenge on such a wretch,
But, to forgive him try,
And thus you do to others, as
You'd wish to be done by.

CHORUS.

3.
If you are rich, and some "old friend,"
Is "down at heel" and poor,
Well, let the bar of station bend,
And "open wide your door"
To welcome him, as you were wont
"In better days gone by,"
And thus you do to him, poor man,
As "you'd wish to be done by."

CHORUS.

I think by what I've said, or sung,
In this my song, to night,
That I have proved to every one
The glorious might of right.
So let us all make this resolve,
And keep it till we die,
That is "to do to others as We'd wish to be done by."

CHORUS.
