My dear Mr. Moftah,

This is almost the first time for more than 3½ years that I have been able to write to distant friends. Let me know how you all are. For myself, I have been going through terrible times: so much is this so, that the book of Job seems mild by comparison.

Could you kindly send me an English translation of all the articles that appeared in the Arabic newspapers from 1931 - 33? I would be glad of them in typescript.

Much hoping you have not gone forward with the work in my absence,

Yours in Hine,

Ernest Newland Smith.
