* From those counties which are marked with an Asterism, no Official accounts have been received; the numbers we have stated, however, will not differ more than 50 in the aggregate from the official returns.

The Pittsfield Sun says—" If you will take the trouble to look over the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, you will find it true, as a general observation, with some exceptions, that those counties and towns, which were most opposed to the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, are now the most federal.

We can assert, with confidence, that there are seventy five Republicans, and not more than seventy-seven feds, as yet heard of, who are elected to the next General Court. It is notorious that the strong holds of federalism are included in this statement, and that the republican prospect is very flattering.

Boston Chron.

The judgment of the supreme court was last week rendered in the very important and interesting case of the state at the relation of Aaron Ogden, esq. on an information in nature of quo warranto against Jabez Parkhurst, esq. for usurping the offices of clerk of the common pleas and quarter sessions of the county of Essex. This case was argued with great ingenuity, learning and eloquence at a preceding term, by Aaron D. Woodruff, Isaac H. Williamson and Richard Stockton, esqrs. on the part of the State, and by Elias Vanarsdale, esq. on behalf of the defendant. The judges differing in sentiment, delivered their opinions separately, except judge Pennington, who not being on the bench at the argument of the cause delivered no opinion; that of the chief justice Kirkpatrick being in favor of the defendant, those of justices Smith and Boudinot in favour of the state, and so the judgment of the court was pronounced in favour of the state. All the judges however agreed in the right of the judiciary department to examine the constitutionality of a legislative act.—We understand a writ of error was presented on behalf of the defendant to remove the judgment before the court of appeals.——Trenton Federalist.

Mr. Gibbs, who arrived in the brig Susannah, from Turk's Island, was informed by a captain from Cape Francois, that on or about the 20th of April, every Frenchman, woman and child, to be found in that place, had been put to death—during which time no Americans had ventured to open their stores, for the purpose of doing any kind of business, but as the Mountain troops marched out on the morning of his quitting the Cape (the 30th April) directly after it was supposed they would commence business. All kinds of American produce extremely high and in great demand. Plunder of every description to be purchased at 100dth part its value.

FOR THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

The self-stiled federalists, after attempting in vain (by calumny and misrepresentation) to destroy the popularity of our patriotic chief Magistrate, have of late been endeavouring by art and intrigue to effect a division among the friends of the administration. That attempts were made during the late session of Congress to form a party under the banners of a man (who had long been denounced as an apostate to the principles he once professed) can no longer be doubted: But fortunately for the cause of republicanism those intrigues were discovered and measures taken to counteract them. The unanimity which prevailed among the republican members of Congress, when they assembled in order to recommend to their fellow-citizens, suitable characters to be supported at the ensuing election for President and Vice-President, and the glorious triumph which has recently been obtained by the republicans in New-York, are sufficient evidences of the firmness and patriotism of a large majority of the American people.

Although the intrigues of the enemies of the government have hitherto proved unsuccessful, still their ardor seems by no means abated, on the contrary they appear to be more indefatigable in their exertions to accomplish an object more dear to them than ever. Every engine has of late been put in motion to excite jealousies and unfounded alarms in the minds of the republicans in the northern states—the cry of what is called Virginia influence, is now the order of the day, among the party stiling themselves federalists and their newly acquired allies " the little band". The nomination of the patriotic Clinton for the office of Vice President, by a large majority of the Representatives of the people, has been wholly attributed to this pretended influence. But the revolutionary services and uniform patriotism of Governor Clinton, and the high estimation in which he is held by the citizens of his native state, over which he has presided for more than twenty years, are well known to the republicans, in every part of the union, who will it is presumed confer their suffrages on so meritorious a character, notwithstanding the suggestions of disappointed ambition. Even the elevation of the illustrious Jefferson to the head of the government of this country, has been attributed to Virginia influence, when it is well known that the eyes of the republicans in every part of the union had long been fixed on this distinguished patriot, to save his country from the thraldom with which it was threatened; nor has his fellow-citizens been disappointed in the high expectations which they formed in his favor. The administration of Mr. Jefferson will unquestionably form one of the most memorable epochs in the annals of the American history.

As a proof of Virginia influence it has been asserted that most of the persons holding offices under the general government are natives of that state. The falsity of this assertion must appear evident to every person, who is acquainted with the characters who are at the head of the several departments, and who fill the other offices under government. The fact is, that Mr. Madison is almost the only Virginian who holds an office of importance under the administration: and every candid and unprejudiced person so far from censuring, must applaud the discernment of the President in placing at the head of the Department of State, a gentleman whose whole life has been devoted to the service of his country, and whose virtues, patriotism and talents, are universally acknowledged & admired by the republicans in every part of the union.

The enemies of the government, do not confine their intrigues merely in making attempts to excite divisions among its friends, but actually contemplate a dissolution of the union as their dernier resort. That so criminal, and daring a project, should be entertained by any part of our citizens, would a short time since have been hardly credited: But many of the opposition papers have of late avowed sentiments, which evince beyond a doubt the real views and designs of this party, at least of its leaders. The patriotism and good sense of the people of this country, will, however, render those vile machinations abortive, and infamy and disgrace would be the reward of those persons, who, to gratify their vindictive malice, and to promote their ambitious views, should dare to make an attempt to dismember the American Republic.

This lottery has been authorised by the legislature of Virginia, for the laudable purposes of erecting a seminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this state. With this view, it is contemplated to raise 20,000 dolls. and 2,500 dolls. in addition, for defraying the expences attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the first respectability have been selected as trustees, and they have pledged themselves to use their utmost exertions to carry it into effect. The scheme has the advantage of giving to each adventurer, a chance for some very large prizes, whilst the proportion of prizes to blanks, is so great as to invite the friends of the intended institution to partake in the lottery, with very little risque of their becoming losers. The treasurer of the state is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are sold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to the fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above considerations will induce a rapid sale of tickets, and the drawing will commence as soon as a sufficient number shall be sold to authorise it——which it is believed will be on the second Monday in December next
