shad - ows are dark and deep. A - wake, a - wake, ye sleep - ers wake! For Heav - en draws near and its day doth break, A - wake, a - wake, ye sleep - ers wake! For Heav - en draws near and its day doth break.

2 O, wondrous sight! when the waste of night
Is aglow with the noon-tide of day:
And Angels bright, in their earthward flight,
Flash like jewels along the way!
Awake, dull hearts! unclose, blind eyes!
God's heralds greet us from the skies!

3 "Now, glory be to God on high;"
Sing these hosts of the radiant wing;
"For peace on earth, and good will for aye,"
"Is the message from Heaven we bring."
Awake ye people! wake and hear
Your Christmas tidings of holy cheer!"

4 The Vision fades; and as deepening shades
Draw their veil o'er the Heavenly Day,
The Shepherds turn, to where strange rays burn.
From a cave on the distant way.
Arise! and with the Shepherds go,
To the stable grot where the pure lights glow.

5 For there the Incarnate LIGHT is laid,
WHO is WONDERFUL, COUNSELLOR, SON:
There, bends like a lily, the MOTHER MARY.
In whose flesh God and man are one,
Shout earth and sea, your grateful lay!
IMMANUEL, CHRIST, is born to-day.
