to the number of 400 marched for the town, and crossed the river Canve, before any alarm was given to the inhabitants. On approaching the town the centinels near Canye river fired an alarm, upon which they halted. Several of the inhabitants came out to meet them, whom they made prisoners. On enquiring the cause for their march, they demanded their colonel or satisfaction, that 5 months pay was due to them and that they had received no rations for two d ys past. They assured that they did not wish to disturb the inhabitants, but would rather protect them to the last drop of their blood—redress of their grievances was all they sought. By this time the whole town was alarmed. The colonel and a number of officers stationed in the town with two companies fully equipped, prepared for an attack. The colonel, by fair promises put them off till next morning, on which they returned to the fort and remained quiet during the 14th. But finding no satisfaction given, at night they again paraded and commenced a firing with cannon at an armed schr. stationed opposite the mouth of the river, to prevent them from crossing over to the town. One of the insurgent companies marched opposite to the schr. which immediately opened with a discharge of grapeshot, killed two of the men and wounded several. The company on this retreated. A company from the town commanded by the colonel's son crossed the river, about half a mile above its mouth, and advancing towards the back of the fort commenced a warm fire; after exchanging some shot with the fort, it returned to the town. Next morning, the officers detained in the fort were sent to the government house accompanied by the commanding Sergeant and several soldiers who demanded redress the second time. The governor and his council immediately assembled and concluded to issue a paper currency to discharge the arrearages of pay according to the engagements made with the troops, when they left Holland. These terms were accepted, and the soldiers immediately returned to their former obedience.

Extract of a letter from Madrid, February 26.

"It is asserted that a new line of demarcation of the frontiers between this country and France will soon take place, on which occasion we expect our court will cede a certain part of territory to the French government."

Extract of a letter from Cape Francois, dated April 5.

"A great number of blood hounds lately arrived here from the Havanna; and some prisoners that have been made, acknowledge that this intelligence has spread consternation and dismay among the Brigands. Some who were condemned to death, were taken into an open field where these dogs were let loose, who tore them in pieces, and devoured them. A few days since, a number of the brigand officers came to the outer posts of this town with a flag of truce; the officers of the town went to meet them and invited them to dinner, but the arrangements they have concluded on are kept secret: it is reported, however, that the brigands offer to return to their masters, provided they are assured that they will be received as hirelings, not as slaves.

Votes for Governor.

Just as the federalists predicted—'one festival more will do the work for us.' The debility induced by the last festival, has bro't on a dropsical habit, and we have swollen from 4523 votes, to 7848. Another increase of 3325 votes will bring us to our END. The merchant, who on a capital of 4523 dollars should gain in one year 3325, would be fast verging to bankruptcy.

The prospect of a speedy dissolution will make it necessary for us to settle accounts with those pious federalists, of whom we have spoken and written so lightly. We must agree that Dr. Dwight never wrote the 'Triumph of Infidelity,' that N. Webster is a consistent politician, that Simon Holdfast is a christian and man of truth, and that Judge Phocion is in sound mind, memory and understanding. Federalists will make all proper allowances, considering our poverty and our ignorance.

We verily thought it was wrong for men, born free, to be denied their freedom, because they were not rich enough—we thought it wrong for judges of County courts and lawyers to form a supreme court of errors, over the heads of the supreme court—we thought it wrong for clergymen to attend more to politics than to religion—and we could not see the propriety of men's presiding at proxies and counting votes for themselves; but all these things must be imputed to our ignorance. After a few more proxies we shall make some more precious confessions.

Just before the last presidential election, a federalist declared that he did not wish to live a minute after Mr. Jefferson should be President. After the election he has obstinately persisted to eat, drink and sleep as usual. Another declared that he should not consider his stock in the funds worth a dollar in the pound, if Mr. Jefferson should be elected, yet ever since he has held them higher than before. A Sword cutler declared he should starve if Mr. Jefferson should be chosen, but since he finds that Mr. Jefferson is not in the line of Swords, he has turned his hands to other business, and is doing better than before. A political clergyman prophecied that christianity would be ruined, if the infidel Jefferson should be President, and the prophet has found his prediction verified in his own person, for he has never exhibited one evidence of christianity since the fourth of March 1801.

Never was repulicanism so triumphant in this state as at present. From accurate calculations made it is more than probable that of one hundred representatives, of which the assembly is composed, fifteen only will be federal. The Senate consists of 32, of which certainly not more than seven, and probably not more than six will be of the opposition party. Thus the federal sun ascends in the state of New-York.
