This lottery has been authoriſed by the legiſlature of Virginia, for the laudable purpoſes of erecting a ſeminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this ſtate. With this view, it is contemplated to raiſe 20,000 dolls. and 2,500 dolls. in addition, for defraying the expences attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the firſt reſpectability have been ſelected as truſtees, and they have pledged themſelves to uſe their utmoſt exertions to carry it into effect. The ſcheme has the advantage of giving to each adventurer, a chance for ſome very large prizes, whilſt the proportion of prizes to blanks, is ſo great as to invite the friends of the intended inſtitution to partake in the lottery, with very little riſque of their becoming loſers. The treaſurer of the ſtate is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are ſold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to the fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above conſiderations will induce a rapid ſale of tickets, and the drawing will commence as ſoon as a ſufficient number ſhall be ſold to authoriſe it——which it is believed will be on the ſecond Monday in December next.

Foreign Intelligence.

PARIS, Feb 28.

The conſpiracy againſt the Conſul, and the arreſt of Gen. Moreau, were proclaimed in the following manner.

Camp of St. Omer's, head-quarters, Boulogne, 22d Pluvioſe, (Feb. 10.)

Soldiers—Your attitude, your labours, and your vigilance, made England tremble. Deſpairing of being able to reſiſt the impulſe of your courage, and the aſcendancy of the Firſt Conſul's genius, the Britiſh Government, accuſtomed to crimes formed the moſt perſidious plots, and intended to accompliſh them by the moſt odious inſtruments. The life of the Firſt Conſul was threatened: the better to ſucceed in theſe projects of iniquity, to the diſguſting remains of La Vendee, were joined men who had formerly figured in our ranks, and we have ſeen united under the ſame banner, Georges and Lajollais, Moreau and Pichegru. But the plot has failed. France will complete its high deſtinies, and Bonaparte will live to ſecure them. The conſpirators are either arreſted; or have fled. Moreau is arreſted; Lajollais is in priſon; the Police is following the footſteps of Georges and Pichegru. A great number of theſe perverſe and hired brigands are now in the power of juſtice, and in a ſhort time it will have overtaken the impure remnant of this band, which is now diſperſed. Soldiers, diſmiſs all fear! the life of the Firſt Conſul is no longer in danger. Thoſe dark machinations which threatened it, laſt but for a moment, and end in the ſhame and deſpair of their guilty authors. We, who are placed in the firſt rank in front of that hoſtile nation, we will be the ſhield of the Hero. One only thought, one only feeling animates us all, and that is to defend that life, upon which the glory, proſperity, and happineſs of France, as well as the honor of the French name depends. The report of the Grand Judge, the Miniſter of Juſtice, will lay open to you the whole plan of this horrible conſpiracy. The Commander in Chief.

(Signed) SOULT.

The Sailors of the Right Wing of the National Flotilla to the First Conſul

OSTEND, 1ſt Ventoſe, (Feb. 21.)

"Citizen First Conſul,

An odious nation has planned, with wicked ſecrecy, the blackeſt of crimes, to remove from its own head that juſt chaſtiſement which its perfidy had provoked; but the tutelary genius of France has baffled its conſpiracies, and preſerved the life of the hero, that it arms for our defence, and preſerves for our happineſs. Does not the baſeneſs of the means employed by this nation of aſſaſſins diſcover to the univerſe its weakneſs, its fears, and its cowardiſe? Citizen First Conſul, the military and civil officers, and the crews of the Right Wing of the National Flotilla, haſten to expreſs to you their ſurprize and indignation, at ſeeing that Frenchmen, that even General Moreau himſelf, could be aſſociated with thoſe cowardly Iſlanders, and with Pichegru and Georges, to replunge us in the horrors of anarchy, by a crime the moſt atrocious, by the aſſaſſination of a hero, to whom we have for ever vowed gratitude, devotion, and fidelity. Citizen First Conſul, we wait, with impatience, for the moment when you ſhall proclaim the hour of vengeance.

CHARLES MAGOR, Rear Admiral,
NEYNNE, Captain, &c. &c."

GENOA, Feb. 15.

A letter received at Salonica, from an Armenian merchant, gives the following account of the preſent ſtate of the Perſian Empire:

"The ſons of the laſt Sophi, who was murdered by his wives, in his ſeraglio laſt year, are combating againſt each other for the ſucceſſion to the throne. There are three of them: two by the Sophi's ſiſter, the third by Zirza, famous for her beauty, whom the Sophi had carried off from her father, a Bonze of Thibet.—She is ſtill in the full bloom of her beauty, and is kept a priſoner by the two elder brothers her enemies, who watch her cloſely. Mevalek, her ſon, is maſter of Iſpahan, and of three inland provinces. He has a great many elephants, and has an intelligent general, who has ſerved under Paſwan Oglu. The two other brothers, have nearly an equal force."

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.

The Ruſſian fleet, in the Black Sea, and a great number of tranſports of the Euxine, have received orders to ſail with all-poſſible expedition to Italy, where their farther deſtination will be made known. By an order of the 27th ult. 27 new garriſon battalions were ordered to be embodied.

The important taſk of preparing a civil code for Ruſſia, on which the committee, lately diſſolved, have laboured for many years, is now entruſted ſolely to the preſident of the academy of ſciences, M. Naonſiltz off, whoſe activity, knowledge, and ſentiments, allow us to hope a ſpeedy and happy fulfulment of this wiſh, ſo long entertained by all Ruſſian ſubjects.

By order of his Imperial majeſty, the miniſter of commerce has notified to the titular counſellor, Oſſip Kraſuskoi, that the plan propoſed by him for giving to all Jews, without exception, the right of frontier trade in the frontier governments of Poland united with Ruſſia, cannot take place on account of many obſtacles. The raiſed cuſtom houſe duty for laſt year produced 7,079,396 roubles—exported goods, 31,893 082 roubles—imported, 21,838,062 roubles. The Engliſh alone exported 20,225,329 and imported 7,835,751 roubles.

ACCURATE STATEMENT

Of the proceedings at the Public Dinner, GIVEN BY THE AMERICANS.

The citizens of the United States in Paris, gave a ſplendid feaſt to his excellency Robert R. Livingston, Eſq. their miniſter plenipotentiary to the French Republic, on the 14th inſt. in commemoration of the treaties of 1800 and 1803, made between the Republics of France and America, by which perfect unanimity was reſtored, the cauſes of future difficulties removed, and the means of laſting harmony ſecured to both. Colonel James Swain was preſident, and Colonel J. Orne, and Mark Leavenworth, and A. Vail, Eſqrs. vice-preſidents.

Moſt of the Miniſters who negociated the treaties above mentioned, on the part of France, honored the occaſion by their preſence. Among the perſons of diſtinction who attended were the following: Their excellencies, Talleyrand, miniſter of foreign relations; Chaptal miniſter of the interior; Marbois, miniſter of the public treaſury; and Dejean, miniſter of the department of war, and the treaſurer of the legion of honor; the ſenator Roederer; Mr. Defermond, counſellor of ſtate, and director general of the liquidation of the public debt; Mr. de Ternant, late miniſter from France to the United States; and M. Petry, ſecretary to that legation; alſo generals La Fayette and Koſciuſko, with many other perſons of diſtinction.

The firſt of the following ſix toaſts were given by the preſident during the ſtay of the gueſts; they having retired, the Americans proceeded to give the reſidue of the toaſt prepared on the occaſion,

1. The French and American Republics—May the enlightened policy which dictated to their illuſtrious chiefs the treaty of the 30th April 1803, be tranſmitted to their ſucceſſors, and form the baſis of a laſting and friendly intercourſe between the two nations.

2. The Convention of 1800, which removed the coolneſs between the two great republics of the old and new world—Praiſe to thoſe by whom it was formed—health and happineſs to the negociators.

3. The treaty of 1803, and the Statesmen of both nations by whom it was negociated—May gratitude and honor reward their ſervices.

4. Jefferson, Preſident of the United States: the diſtinguiſhed philoſopher and patriotic ſtateſman.

5. Bonaparte, the Firſt Conſul of the French Republic—whoſe talents in the cabinet and field have become the wonder and admiration of the world.

6. The ministers of France and the heads of the Departments of the United States—In faithfully ſerving their own, may they continue to promote the reciprocal intereſts of both republics.

7. Our adopted brethren of Louisiana: May they proſper and be happy in the union of their new family.

8. The memory of the illustrious George Washington: The grave will conſume his body, but time alone can entomb his virtues.

9. The memory of Hancock, Franklin and Adams—Three ſplendid luminaries in the political world.

10. The declaration of American Independence—The divine ſpark of '76 ſtruck from the altar of freedom.

11. His Excellency Robert R. Livingston, Esq. as a member of the firſt congreſs, as one of the ſages appointed to frame the declaration of independence.

12. The memory of thoſe brave patriots who bled in the revolutions of America and France.

13. The rising navy of America—May it always be employed in the protection, but never in the oppreſſion of commerce.

14. The fair sex—When they yield their charms, may they find themſelves in the arms of men of honor and ſentiment.

15. Commerce and Agriculture.

16 The Arts and Sciences.

17. Generals La Fayette and Koſciuſko, two brave heroes who fought for the liberty of America.

The moſt perfect harmony and good order prevailed during the day, and all the Americans ſeemed to rejoice at having ſo proper an opportunity of teſtifying their utmoſt reſpect, as well for the miniſter, as for the other illuſtrious perſonages preſent. The room was ornamented with the buſts of the Firſt Conſul and the Preſident of the United States—and alſo with the flags of each nation, which were intwined with a large ribbon, on which was inſcribed the word UNION.

The company of generals La Fayette and Koſciuſko, was extremely grateful to the Americans, who recogniſed in them two Brave Patriots, who fought for the independence of America.

A patriotic ſong ſuitable to the occaſion was compoſed and ſung.

In THE ADMIRALTY COURT.

The diſtrict court was engaged nearly the whole of laſt week by a cauſe of conſiderable magnitude and importance to the commercial world. Capt. Sachs, commanding a national corvette of France, was arreſted in Charleſton at the ſuit of Meſſrs. Man and Foltz, for the Anna, an American veſſel, the cargo of which he was charged with having unlawfully diſpoſed of in the iſland of Cuba. Sachs being afterwards on a cruiſe, put into Savannah for proviſions, and coming here on buſineſs to the French Conſul, was arreſted. Mr. William Loughton Smith appeared in his behalf, and pleaded in bar to the juriſdiction of the court, it appearing that the Anna, being concerned in the Slave Trade, then prohibited in American bottoms, was navigating as a Daniſh veſſel, and exhibited to the captors no other but Daniſh papers; and it being clearly eſtabliſhed that a veſſel ſhall be conſidered to belong to that nation under whoſe paſſports ſhe ſails. In ſupport of the juriſdiction it was ably contended by Meſſrs. Turnbull, Ward, Ford and Parker, that although the Anna navigated as a Dane, yet it was clearly proved that both ſhip and cargo were real American property, the court was bound to take cognizance of the ſuit. To this it was replied by Mr. Smith and Mr. Gaillard, for the defendant, that if the court ſhould conſider the Anna as American, then the cauſe muſt be diſmiſſed, becauſe it was admitted the claimants were engaged at the time of the capture, in an illegal traffic, and to this effect Mr. Smith quoted a late judgment of Sir W. Scott, where it was declared that a claimant who had violated an act of Parliament could never be entitled to the aid of an Engliſh court of juſtice againſt a captor. Mr. S. further warmly contended that an American court of juſtice ought not to countenance theſe maſked voyages, in which a foreign dreſs was put on and off, like a kind of new invented marine spencer, on purpoſe to evade the laws of the land. The counſel for the defendant, in caſe theſe two grounds failed, relied moreover on the articles of the treaty with France, by which our courts are reſtrained from arreſting national officers, or taking cognizance of prizes captured by French veſſels. His honor judge Bee ſtated in a clear and conciſe decree, the law in this caſe: Having reported the evidence he obſerved, that our treaty with France plainly deſignated the kind of documents to be exhibited on the high ſeas to the cruiſers of the French Republic; that the Anna at the time of her capture, produced none ſuch as were ſo required; ſhe exhibited none but Daniſh papers, ſhe ſailed under a Daniſh flag, and the capt. paſſed for a Dane. Under ſuch circumſtances the court was bound to conſider her as Daniſh, and of courſe could not take cognizance of the ſuit. That when individuals undertook theſe maſked voyages with falſe papers, they ran all riſks, and could not juſtly complain of any ſubſequent loſs ſuſtained thereby. That it was unneceſſary to give any opinion on the other points, as on this he was clear, the Anna muſt be conſidered as Daniſh, and the court conſequently had no juriſdiction. The plea in bar to the juriſdiction was ſuſtained, and the libel diſmiſſed with coſts.
