criſice to the manes of their aſſaſſinated brothers. Let that nation come who may be mad and daring enough to attack me. Already at its approach, the irritated genius of Hayti, riſing out of the boſom of the ocean, appears; his menacing aſpect throws the waves into commotion, excites tempeſts, and with his mighty hand diſperſes ſhips, or daſhes them to pieces; to his formidable voice the laws of nature pay obedience; diſeaſes, plague, famine, conflagration, poiſon, are his conſtant attendants. But why calculate on the aſſiſtance of the climate and of the elements? Have I forgot that I command a people of no common caſt, brought up in adverſity, whoſe audacious daring frowns at obſtacles and increaſes by dangers? Let them come, then, theſe homicidal Cohorts! I wait for them with firmneſs and with a ſteady eye, I abandon to them freely the ſea-ſhore, and the places where cities have exiſted; but woe to thoſe who may approach too near the mountains! It were better for them that the ſea received them into its profound abyſs, than to be devoured by the anger of the children of Hayti.

"War to death to tyrants!" this is my motto; "Liberty, independence!" this is our rallying cry.

Generals, officers, ſoldiers, a little unlike him who has preceded me, the ex-general Touſſaint Loouverture, I have been faithful to the promiſe which I made to you when I took up arms againſt tyranny, and whilſt the laſt ſpark of life remains in me I ſhall keep my oath. Never again ſhall a coloniſt or an European ſet his foot upon this territory with the title of maſter or proprietor. This reſolution ſhall henceforward form the fundamental baſis of our conſtitution.

Should other chiefs, after me, by purſuing a conduct diametrically oppoſite to mine, dig their own graves and thoſe of their ſpecies, you will have to accuſe only the law of deſtiny which ſhall have taken me away from the happineſs and welfare of my fellow citizens. May my ſucceſſors follow the path I ſhall have traced out for them! It is the ſyſtem beſt adapted for conſolidating their power; it is the higheſt homage they can render to my memory.

As it is derogatory to my character and my dignity to puniſh the innocent for the crimes of the guilty, a handful of whites, commendable by the religion they have always profeſſed, and who have beſides taken the oath to live with us in the woods, have experienced my clemency. I order that the ſword reſpect them, and that they be unmoleſted.

I recommend anew and order to all the generals of department, &c. to grant ſuccours, encouragement and protection, to all neutral and friendly nations who may wiſh to eſtabliſh commercial relations in this iſland.

The quantity of ſilver plate, jewellery, gold articles, &c, plundered from the dead and brought in by the negroes, was immenſe, and was frequently offered for ſale at half its value.

On the 22d April Fort Dauphin was pillaged, a part of the town deſtroyed, and the whites maſſacred to the number of from 85 to 90.

A few days afterwards the French inhabitants of St. Jago, and other parts of the interior, were eſcorted to the Cape under a ſtrong guard, and there butchered.

A Daniſh ſchooner, lying at the Cape, with paſſengers from St. Thomas, was ſeized and every ſailor and paſſenger on board maſſacred.

Of the white perſons who eſcaped from the Iſland almoſt by miracle, ſeveral have arrived at this port in the Grey-Hound; 9 in the Almy which ſailed for New-York ſix days before the Grey-Hound, viz. WASHINGTON CITY,

FRIDAY, June 8.

On Saturday laſt arrived in this city the BARON HUMBOLDT, accompanied by two of his fellow travellers in South America, and by Dr. Fothergill, of Bath, (England,) Dr. Woodhouſe, Dr. Collin, and Mr. Peale of Philadelphia. The Baron Humboldt is a diſtinguiſhed philoſopher of Pruſſia, of which country he is a native. Animated by the wide field for reſearch preſented by the New World, he about ſix years ago under the auſpices of the King of Pruſſia, and with facilities to intercourſe afforded by the monarchy of Spain, exchanged the eaſe and enjoyments of his own country for the hardſhips and perils of a climate to which he had been entirely a ſtranger. Since that period he has been actively engaged in exploring the interior of South America; in making himſelf acquainted with the manners of the inhabitants, their numbers and their political economy; in making aſtronomical obſervations, for which he was provided with the beſt inſtruments; in examining the animal and vegetable kingdoms; and in becoming acquainted, from perſonal obſervation, with the mountains, volcanoes and mines, ſo numerouſly ſcattered over the country. He has had the ſingular good fortune of having endured, for a conſiderable length of time, a degree of heat, in which the mercury ſtood at 105 degrees, without experiencing one day's ſickneſs; and of paſſing through a greater variety of climates than are to be found in any other quarter of the globe.—Among his proudeſt trophies is the having gained a higher eminence of the Chimboraſſo, (itſelf by far the higheſt mountain in the world) than had ever before been reached by natives or foreigners. He is about returning to Europe to publiſh the reſult of his reſearches, which we have no doubt will not only give new views of a large portion of South America, but likewiſe reſcue the accounts of that region from the fiction and incorrectneſs with which they are at preſent enveloped.

We are pleaſed to add that the citizens of Waſhington, and more eſpecially the Preſident, fully impreſſed with the great and diſintereſted ſervices of the Baron, have, by their attentions, paid his talents the reſpect to which they are ſo eminently entitled.

The following Extract from Mr. Holt's Report on the agriculture, &c. of Lancaſhire, is well worth the attention of thoſe who have dairies.

In the year 1791, a pound of cotton was ſpun to a fineneſs of ninety-ſeven miles in length, and ſold for £ 22 13, in this ſtate; it was afterwards taken from Lancaſhire to Glaſgow, and when manufactured was preſented to the Queen of England.

New-York, June 4.

By the ſhip Vigilant from Naples, the editors of this Gazette have received an extract of a letter from Commodore Preble, dated on board the Conſtitution at Syracuſe, March 19, 1804. The following is a copy.

"I have this moment received intelligence from a gentleman juſt arrived from Tunis, that the Bey of that regency is equipping his whole naval force with the utmoſt expedition; and it is whiſpered that his object is, the American commerce. From various circumſtances, I believe there is much truth in the conjecture. Three of their frigates, from 34 to 32 guns, are now fitting out at Malta; one frigate of 32 guns, and a number of ſmaller veſſels, are getting ready at Tunis."

Commodore Preble further obſerves that he intends to collect all the forces off Tripoli, and proceed off Tunis to learn the cauſe.

By the Brig Georgia Packet, we have received a letter dated Cadiz April 7, which ſays, "We have an order from his Catholic Majeſty not to ſuffer prizes either Engliſh or French to be ſold or brought into any ports of his dominions. This looks like enforcing a ſtrict neutrality.

Boston, May 31.

Yeſterday being the day appointed by the conſtitution for the meeting of the General Court for the year enſuing, the gentlemen elected for ſenators and repreſentatives aſſembled at the Statehouſe in this town.

His excellency the governor and hon. council attended, when the members had the oaths adminiſtered to them agreeably to the conſtitution.

The hon. David Cobb, eſq. was then elected Preſident of the ſenate, and Wendell Davis, clerk.

The attention of the houſe, as is uſual, was firſt called to the choice of a clerk—when upon counting and ſorting the votes, it appeared the whole number was 230—neceſſary to a choice 116.—Nicholas Tillinghaſt, eſq. had 128, and Mr. Charles P. Sumner 102.

They then proceeded to the choice of a ſpeaker, when, upon ſorting and counting the votes, it appeared that the whole number was 235—neceſſary to a choice 118.—H. G. Otis, eſq. had 129, Perez Morton, eſq. 103—ſcattering 3, federal majority eleven.

The legiſlative, joined by the executive, then proceeded to the Old-South meeting houſe, eſcorted by the Independent Company of Cadets, commanded by Col. Wells, where a diſcourſe was delivered on the occaſion, by the Rev. Mr. Kendall, of Weſton, from Deuteronomy 32d. 46 & 47 verſes.

In the afternoon, both branches aſſembled in convention, for the purpoſe of filling the vacancies in the ſenate, from the counties of Plymouth, Barnſtable, Lincoln, &c.

The whole number of votes for the county of Plymouth, were 256—neceſſary to a choice 129.—Hon. Beza Hayward had 142, hon. Iſaac Thompſon 140.

Barnſtable.—Whole number 259, neceſſary to make a choice 130—Richard Sears, Eſq. had 143.

Lincolnton, &c.—Whole number 257—neceſſary to make a choice 129. Mark L. Hill, Eſq. had 144.

The diſplay of the increaſe of republicaniſm was evinced in the election of yeſterday. The decline of federaliſm is ſo rapid, as to make its advocates apprehenſive of its total annihilation. The majority of the houſe, in the choice of ſpeaker and clerk, were "lank" indeed; and even the vacancies of the Senate were filled with a greatly diminiſhed majority of votes, in favor of the federal candidates.

Laſt year the votes for ſpeaker, were 124 for Otis, and 73 for Morton; yeſterday, the former obtained the choice by the ſmall majority of eleven! This is an evidence of what has been predicted in the Centinel as a proud day for federaliſm!

We truſt, from the independence of the members, that the preſent legiſlature will retrieve the character of Maſſachuſetts, and that the machinations of a body of diſorganizers, will be fruſtrated.
