HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

DEBATE on Georgia Claims.

Continued.

SATURDAY, March 10.

The Houfe took into confideration the refolutions offered by Mr. Randolph on the George Claims.

Mr. JACKSON moved to poftpone them to the 1ft Monday of December.

Mr. Stanford enquired whether the motion of poftonement was not fufceptible of a divifion, fo as to apply to each refolution feparately.

Mr. J. RANDOLPH hoped the queftion would be fo taken.

Mr. RODNEY expreffed the fame wifh, and that the Yeas and Nays might be taken on each divifion of the queftion. He was oppofed to a poftponement. He fhould not, he obferved, have rifen at this late period, but for the warm oppofition the refolutions had received from various quarters, and but for his defire to avail himfelf of the opportunity to ftate his reafons for giving them a firm fupport.

Mr. Rodney was interrupted by an enquiry whether his remarks were in order, before the Chair had decided on the divifibility of the motion to poftpone.

Mr. J. Randolph remarked that whenever a queftion was fufceptible of divifion, it might be divided as a matter of right.

Mr. VARNUM afked if a motion were made to poftpone certain refolutions or a bill, whether it would be divided fo as to apply to a part only of the bill or the refolutions.

Mr. JACKSON. The motion is to poftpone the refolutions generally; a major propofition muft include the minor, and cannot be fufceptible of divifion. If a member were to move a poftponement of one of the refolutions, a motion to poftpone the whole would fuperfede it.

Meffrs Elliot and Eustis were of opinion that the motion did not admit of divifion.

The Speaker faid it had been the practice of the Houfe to commit a particular fection. He confidered the motion divifible.

The queftion having been ftated on the poftponement of the firft refolution to the firft Monday of December,

Mr. RODNEY rofe. I was about faid he, when interrupted by an enquiry relating to a point of order, taking advantage of the opportunity afforded, to give my reafons, in fupport of the refolutions under confideration. I had obferved that they experienced fuch a variety of objections, and from fuch a variety of quarters, that, notwithftanding it was my intention to have given them a filent vote, and to have relied on the able manner in which they had been fupported by my worthy friend from Virginia, I felt it my duty to remain no longer filent. My friend from Maffachufetts has endeavoured to intereft the feelings of the Houfe by awakening their compaffion to the claims of thofe who have innocently fuffered. I will only remark, in reply to fuch addreffes to our feelings, that juftice has the firft right to be heard. Be juft before you are generous is a maxim confecrated by time, and humanity, though an acknowledged virtue, is of an inferior order: it may be the fecond virtue which a legiflative body ought to poffefs; but juftice is the firft. In the courfe of this difcuffion where reafon failed refort has been had to other means; and a too liberal difpofition to ufe perfonal recrimination has been indulged. I am pleafed, however, to hear the gentleman from Maffachufetts declare that the warmth difplayed on this occafion ought not to affect the perfonal feelings of individual members; and I am happy that this fentiment pervades every part of the Houfe. I fhall therefore, pafs by the fallies of the imagination which we have heard, as we do the flights of our pigeons who leave their owners animo revertendi, and return to the fubject. I fhall pafs by the fable of the lion, with-
