W. THORNTON.

December 10—3t

Washington, November 28th, 1804.

I have been informed that, during my late protracted absence from Washington, some persons have called on me, for the purpose of bringing suits, within the District of Columbia. My absences have been so frequent, and I have found my attention necessarily so much engrossed by some other affairs, as to prevent my bestowing that unintermitted care on business of an ordinary nature, and keeping that regular intercourse with the Clerk's and Marshal's offices, which is indispensibly requisite, in order to render full justice to the party concerned; a circumstance which, indeed, cannot fail to have been already observed by some of my friends. It is on this account that I am induced to acquaint such persons, in the City of Washington, as would propose to honor me with their future commands, that I will deem it a particular favor in them to make their application to Mr. JAMES H. KEARNEY, a young gentleman who was formerly my student, and who has now entered into the practice of law, in this place; a gentleman whose great steadiness, constant attendance, and strict integrity, I am persuaded will enable him to render complete satisfaction to a discriminating public. I shall make it a rule not to receive a fee in opposition to Mr. Kearney; but on the contrary shall appear to his cases, during the sitting of the court, and argue them, where necessary, in the same manner as if the party had originally spoken to me, and without any charge for so doing. Mr. Kearney will prepare deeds, and other instruments of writing, and will constantly have, at his private office, which is, at present, kept at my house, a regular docket of all the causes depending in court; so that persons can, at any time, be informed of the state and progress of their suits, in the same manner as on making application at the Clerk's office. Those persons, residing in Washington, for whom my name already appears, will oblige me by applying to Mr. Kearney for information respecting the state of their business. Mr. Kearney will open, during my absence, letters addressed to me; and will answer such of them as relate to business.

THE Subscriber having determined to make the district of Columbia his permanent residence, respectfully informs the Ladies and Gentlemen that he intends to instruct on the Piana Forte and Flute.——Having acquired these accomplishments in Europe under the tuition of the most eminent masters, he flatters himself to be able to render complete satisfaction to his employers. He also proposes to teach the German, French and Italian languages, and from his having alternately lived in Germany, France and Italy, and made use of time and opportunity to acquire those languages perfectly, he feels confident to give satisfaction.

For THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

Several persons, who are interested in the welfare of the City of Washington, and are desirous of encouraging the rational entertainment of those whose business calls them to it, have seen, with regret, that there is no establishment of a literary nature. We have, indeed, the Public Library, and the one established at George-Town, but we have no periodical publication by which entertainment and instruction might be communicated, and by which the mind might be relaxed and unbended from the fatigue of more important concerns.

Without detracting from the merit or usefulness of the Public Papers, it must be admitted that they are nearly confined to politics and news, and that they do not afford such aid to literary pursuits as might be derived from a well conducted Magazine. A Magazine, then, appears to be most likely to remedy this defect. It appears to be a thing highly necessary at the seat of the American government; and there is reason to hope, that from the talents of many gentlemen residing in the district, and from the aid to be derived from those who visit it, a valuable and entertaining work might be formed.

The limits of an address of this nature will not admit an enumeration of all the advantages to be derived from such a publication; and it is more essential to point out the means by which alone it may be accomplished.

Although pecuniary emolument is no the motive or object of this undertaking, it must be stated and clearly understood, that the promoters of it cannot agree to incur an expense and loss in addition to the contribution of their time and labor. And it will depend on the encouragement that may be given to the subjoined proposals whether the American Magazine shall be ushered into the world. With these preliminary observations,

The following plan or prospectus is submitted to the public.

1. The American Magazine will be printed monthly, in the city of Washington by A. and G. Way, and published under their direction.

2. The editorial department will be conducted by several gentlemen in the district, but will be under the particular superintendance of one only.

3. The price to subscribers will be 50 cents for each number to be paid on delivery, and no subscription will be taken for less than a year.

4. The American Magazine will contain original and selected compositions in prose and verse, the most important occurrences foreign and domestic, and a summary of the proceedings of Congress and of the administration—but no political essay or remark of a controversial or party nature will be admitted.

The work will be printed with a neat type on a medium paper—and will be of the usual octavo size.—Each number will contain 80 pages—It will commence on the first day of January, 1805, or as soon thereafter as 500 subscribers may be obtained.

Subscription to be received at the office of the publisher, and at that of the National Intelligencer in the city of Washington, and by Cotton and Steward, and Robert and John Gray in Alexandria.
