tongues, copper, orpiment, hartshorne, peltry, glass, box wood, oak, beech, ash, pine, elm, fir, masts, yards, spars; of the manufactured kinds the red cotton of Greece is in great demand in the south of Europe; they have morocco leather of the finest tints, carpets, vests; besides the general productions of Africa and Asia, and northern Europe, which pass through the Levant enter into the composition of their exports, from the activity of the Greek and American merchants.

We shall give here a general estimate of the value of the Greek imports and exports, between the various nations of Europe, estimating the current piaster of Italy, which circulates in Greece at the value of a Spanish dollar, which is rather above the value in relation to the exchange.

Greeks exports.	To & from Europe.	Greek imports.
Dollars.		Dollars.
4,666,000	Germany at large,	1,534,550
1,310,000	France,	1,163,000
1,150,000	Italy,	614,400
1,000,000	Russia,	960,000
558,320	England,	106,400
140,000	Batavia,	100,400

By which it appears that the whole of the Greek exports to European nations, amounts to nine millions of dollars, while the importation does not amount to one half the sum; which leaves a balance of the surplus in favor of Greece: and this they receive in specie.

LOUISIANA TERRITORY,

A

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

MISSOURI CORRESPONDENT,

AND

ILLINOIS GAZETTE.

PREFATORY to undertaking the Editorial labors of a Newspaper, we presume to offer the following remarks:

While the United States by their rapid progress in population, agriculture, commerce and the arts, are becoming every day more and more powerful and opulent, the limits of our western settlements are widely extending themselves far beyond our ancient boundaries, even to a very great length into our newly acquired territories, beyond the utmost expectation of the most sanguine of our fellow-citizens. Since the important acquisition of Louisiana, comprising a tract of the finest country on the face of the globe—embracing almost every climate between the north and south poles—a tract of country more extensive than all the United States besides, and capable of affording subsistence to more people than all the continent of Europe; with all the necessaries, and almost all the luxuries that can possibly be conceived of. We consider this as rational anticipation, entirely unconnected with any thing prophetic or visionary. There are other considerations which operate powerfully upon our minds, and tend absolutely to induce in us a belief, of the growing consequence of the region in question; the citizens of which have a guarantee of all the rights of the citizens of the United States in the constitution; and equally entitled to enjoy the rights and security of life, liberty, property, and reputation, as well from the invasion of any foreign nation, as from Indian war. Although far removed from the present greatest population of the United States, by the compact of federal union, the physical force and power of the nation must be extended to the government and people, for their protection forever, or at least so long as the union exists. In this view of the subject, we are compelled to believe, that the period is not far distant, when the face of this healthy and beautiful country, will be covered with a numerous population, and that seminaries of learning will appear throughout the whole—so that the arts and sciences may find their way thither, without the trouble, labor and expence, of importation from abroad. It is believed that no country has yet been discovered, which affords such great temptations to emigrants from the old settled states and foreign countries, as the one of which we are now speaking.

The MISSOURI CORRESPONDENT & ILLINOIS GAZETTE, will always be open for the exposition of public measures. In the discussion of local questions, the Editors will know no party, but will give place to all essays that are couched in decent and correct language. Its columns will contain a summary of the acts and proceedings of Congress during and after their session; and the proceedings of the Legislatures of Louisiana and Indiana territories in detail—together with a due portion of political, historical, philosophical, moral, poetical and amusing essays.

Ever mindful of the respect due to a Gazette intended for circulation among a numerous, virtuous and independent people, whose generous patronage we hope to merit and receive—in return for which, it will be our endeavor to become useful members of the community, and cultivate a friendly intercourse with all our patrons.

We shall always in an independent manner keep in mind our constitutional guarantee—the Liberty of the Press—remembering, too, at the same time that the great Montesquieu in his Spirit of Laws has declared, that, "Liberty without control is licentiousness."

CONDITIONS.

1. It shall be printed weekly on the day which shall be found best adapted, to the purpose of affording the earliest intelligence, and the most speedy distribution of the papers.

2. It shall be printed on a royal sheet, in folio, and on a good type.

3. Subscriptions; price THREE DOLLARS per annum paid in advance, or promissory notes for Four Dollars at the expiration of the year.

4. Advertisements of no more length than breadth, will be inserted three weeks, for one dollar and fifty cents for each continuance, thirty seven and a half cents—Those who wish their advertisements in the French language, will be accommodated.

FOR THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER

It is but a few years since the opponents of the present administration declared themselves the genuine republicans of the country, and anathematised those who differed from them in opinion as enemies to liberty and equal rights. They were then in possession of power, and by deluding the people, persuaded them that their prosperity sprang from their measures. They claimed to themselves the merit of the Federal Constitution, and the wise and temperate conduct of the upright Washington; though it is well known that some of their leaders were in heart opposed to that system, & only acquiesced in it as a stepping-stone to a more splendid structure; that most of the eminent men among the republicans were of the number of those who strenuously advocated its adoption; and though it was also known that the councils of Washington were enlightened by the talents of our present Chief Magistrate, and supported by the affections of the nation. Notwithstanding these facts, the federalists, as they called themselves, arrogated all the virtue and talent of society, and pronounced themselves the GENUINE REPUBLICANS of America.

Their claim has been tenaciously disputed by their opponents and finally disallowed by the people; and they have been pronounced unworthy of national confidence; political power has been taken from them, and they have descended, however reluctantly, from the elevated ground on which they stood.

The man, who in adversity holds the same sentiments, adheres to the same principles, and who, so far as his circumstances will allow, discharges the same duties, that he did in prosperity, is considered by the world as an honest man; while he who changes his sentiments, abandons his principles, and disregards his duties, is held to be a dishonest man. This test of character in a private, equally applies to a public man.

Let us then examine the conduct of the federalists according to this rule. Do they in their adversity & privation of power hold the same sentiments, cling to the same principles and discharge the same duties that they professed and practised in the days of their prosperity, when all the political power of the nation was in their hands? If they do they deserve our applause; if they do not they must merit our censure.

In the possession of power, they were not only republicans, but the only republicans! Such was their declaration! A republican government was the proudest structure of human wisdom! Their orators extolled, and their poets sung its praises! When upbraided with entertaining an affected attachment to this species of government as a cover to dark designs destructive of it, they called God to witness the purity of their affection and the ardour of their zeal for it. They and the people were then good friends. Conscious that they rose to power by the reputation of being their best friends, they viewed it as policy to profess still a devotion to their rights. While, therefore, their measures were invasive of these rights, they boldly extolled their own patriotism and devotion to liberty; like the hoary instruments of persecution, who, while they were engaged in the pious office of burning heretics, assured them that their bodies were burnt for the good of their souls.

Mark the conduct of federalists, divested of power! Does their zeal for a republican government remain unimpaired? Do they still prize it as our greatest national blessing? Do they aim at inspiring the people with a love for and a pride in it? This would be consistent, magnanimous & virtuous. It would prove that, in all vicissitudes of fortune, they remained the same; and that, however, in the intoxication of prosperity, they abused power, they remained inflexible in their attachment to principle. But, unfortunately, for their fame, for that consistency, magnanimity and virtue, which they still demand, their notes are entirely changed. We no longer hear them eulogising a republican system. Their admiration is chilled—The glow of enthusiasm, they felt, or affected to feel, is frozen. In its place have risen other sentiments. Realising that a republican government, while it continues, will blast the gratification of their aspiring hopes, they have adopted another policy; that of secretly and insidiously undermining the affection of the people for it. Hence the papers from one end of the continent to the other, are employed in representing the defects, as they call them, of republican governments. Aware that it will not do to make an open attack upon the system itself, the most wary exert their ingenuity in dissecting it in piece-meals, and in exposing the weakness of each particular part. Another stratagem resorted to, is to applaud with the liveliest admiration the measures of other governments, whose form is monarchical, while the measures of our own government are represented as weak and contemptible—Another art is to paint in vivid colors the courage, the wealth, the splendor and the power of other governments, and the respectable rank they enable nations to hold among the powers of the earth, and to contrast this glowing picture with what they pronounce, the pusillanimity, the poverty, the meanness and the insignificance of our government. Who is there that does not penetrate this disguise? Is it thicker than the mantle of liberty & equality, which the lord of the French throws over his boldest invasions of liberty?

This marked opposition between the professions of the federalists in power and out of power presents but one alternative. Either they, when in place, were insincere and hollow in their professions;—or their present sentiments arise from personal resentments unworthy of liberal minds. If they were insincere, no reproach can be too severe, no punishment which indignation can inflict can be too heavy, for men who sported with a subject so sacred and interesting to a free people; and no confidence ought to be reposed in those who practised such a system of deception; and if their present sentiments arise from personal resentments; if their hatred of their opponents is so cordial that, resolved not to hold one sentiment in common with them, they would rather part with their patriotism and their republican principles, than coalesce in opinion, the people will judge how they can merit the title of their friends, who suffer their principles, their most important principles, to be sacrificed on the altar of personal animosity.

30 DOLLARS REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscriber on Sunday night last a Negro man named Stephen, who who calls himself Stephen Carleton, about 35 years of age, and about 5 feet 6 inches high, strong made, broad face, high cheeks & coarse boney features, he was formerly used to work a vessel as a cook which he understands tolerable well, also, washing and house work which he has been accustomed to occasionally. Took with him a half worn broad cloth coat, a dark striped moleskin jacket, a pair corduroy pantaloons nearly white, and a pair nankeen do. some white linen shirts, and an osnabrig shirt and pair trowsers, also, a black fur hat, and is supposed to have other clothes not particularly known, he is a remarkable artful fellow and will likely change his name and clothes, and also may have got a pass. Masters of vessels and all other persons are warned not to harbor or employ said fellow in any manner whatever.

Whosoever apprehends said fellow, and secures him in any jail within the state of Maryland or District of Columbia, so that I get him again, shall receive a reward of twenty dollars, if within twenty five miles from home, if above that distance and within the state aforesaid, twenty five dollars, and if out of the state or district aforesaid, or within the the city of Baltimore, the above reward and all reasonable charges if brought home.

Twenty Dollars Reward.

WILL be given for apprehending and securing in jail a young Mulatto man slave named ANDREW. He was hired by me last year to Mr. Joseph Thomas who keeps the middle ferry to Alexandria, and absconded from that place about the latter end of August last. He is about 23 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, lusty and well made, has short curly hair, and is frequently subject to have several large pimples on his face. He is reckoned to be a sensible fellow of an easy agreeable address for a man in his low sphere of life. As he has not been heard of by me since his elopement, I suspect he has had the address to ship himself as a freeman on board some vessel either at Alexandria or Baltimore. Whoever takes him up and secures him in jail shall receive from me the above reward, or as soon due information thereof is given to me or to Dr. N. P. Causin at Port Tobacco.

PROPOSALS,

FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSRIPTION,

THE WORKS

OF

DR. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN,

PHILOSOPHICAL, POLITICAL, AND LITERARY.

Hominum rerumque repertor.

THE publication of the writings of Dr. Franklin in a complete edition, was long contemplated by the late BENJ. FRANKLIN BACHE, his grandson, who transcribed the copy which was devised to Mr. W. Temple Franklin, for the purpose. It was originally designed that the corrected edition should appear in three languages, and in England, Germany France and America, at the same time: this design was frustrated by the devisee (W. Temple Franklin) who, it is now believed, sacrificed the work and the honorable trust reposed in him, for money, to the mortal hatred of the English ministry against the deceased sage.

As soon as this last was known, the present editor of the Aurora turned his attention to the collection of every paper and circumstance which could tend to preserve and do honor to the memory of a man to whom America is so much indebted; and who, as he was the first that from his genius and talents reflected back lustre on his native country, must continue to be ranked to the latest posterity, among its greatest benefactors and ornaments.

This edition will be published from the copies revised and corrected by Dr. Franklin, the corrections of which are in the hand writing of the author, and may be seen by any gentleman in the possession of the editor of the Aurora.

Early admiration of Dr. Franklin; educated in veneration and reverence of his character—combined with other incidental circumstances not necessary to be pointed out, have concurred to favor the collection by the present editor, of the best materials that could be obtained after the sacrifice of the work by the devisee.

With some industry, and with some expence he has possessed himself, not only of the copy with the corrections and additions in Dr. Franklin's hand writing; but also of several articles which have never appeared in any former collection, and of several which have never appeared in print.

Proposals would have appeared long since in this city, had not an advertisement of an intended edition, being published in the English prints; the present editor thought it might be yet possible that the edition advertised, was that which Mr. Temple Franklin was entrusted with; but it now appears that the English edition is only a republication of the former compilation with some small additions; but still very deficient, on a comparison with the corrected papers in the hands of the editor.

The whole will now be carefully collated, and the work executed in a style worthy of the great patriarch of American liberty and apostle of the American press.

The additional papers will form at least a volume, perhaps more—the authentic papers already printed, form three—and it is intended to begin with the second volume, which will be put to press immediately; and to publish the Biography last, so that such additional particulars as may throw any useful light on the life of this great man, may be engrafted on his memoirs; to obtain which, and other important materials, the editor will spare neither pains nor expence.

Gentlemen who may be possessed of authentic or original papers, or correspondence of Dr. F. or who can give information where any are to be found, will render public service by communicating them to the editor.

CONDITIONS.

The work shall be elegantly printed, on a new small pica type and pale vellum paper in large octavo.

The work will be ornamented with numerous engravings, a vignette to each volume—a whole length portrait from the best likeness allowed to be in existence, now in the possession of——————.

The price of each volume will be 2 dollars 50 cents, payable on delivery only.

Subscriptions will be received at the bookstore of Wm. Duane, No 106, Market street, Philadelphia, and in Pennsylvania avenue, Washington city; and by other booksellers and private gentlemen, whose names will be notified in the several states of the union, in due time.
