SHALL WE MEET AGAIN.

Written and Composed by C. Everest,
Music Published by Lee & Walker, No. 722 Chestnut Street, Philad'a

Entered according to Act of Congress, in the year 1865, by C. Everest, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania

Ever since from me you parted,
For the battle plain;
I have thought, near broken-hearted,
Shall we meet again?
In my dreams the cannons rattle,
Flashes light the sky;
And I see in ev'ry battle,
Banners floating high.

CHORUS.—Morning, noon and evening,
As I pine in vain,
Ever is my spirit breathing,
Shall we meet again.

When the evening is revealing,
Stars of golden light;
Or the rays of morn come stealing,
From the passing night.
Even then I know no gladness,
And I mourn in vain,
And my heart doth ask in sadness,
Shall we meet again?

CHORUS.—Morning, noon, &c.

To the clouds above me flying
Or the deep blue sky;
To each object round me lying,
Breathe I forth my sigh:
On my ear no answer falleth.
While I thus complain;
And in vain my spirit calleth.
Shall we meet again?

CHORUS.—Morning, noon, &c.
