

d'Ameraucourt and comtes de Lannoy They are allied to Charlemagne the emperor through Jean de Lannoy chevalier who m. in 1300 Blanche de Vermandois: their son was held over the baptismal font by his uncle Hugues de Vermandois who gave to him the estate of Obriscout and charged him and his descendants to bear the armes of Vermandois which was done Coat-armor: Or and azure chequy. (following MM. de St Marthe) This line doubtless came from the old house of Lannoy either long before the heirress married Franchimont in 1310 or at that time through some cadet of Lannoy Here again there is no mention of the old Lannoy coat-armor. Item: Jean de Launoy, chambellan du roi bore in 1480 (un échiquete) a checker [chamberlain to the King] The family is now extinct?—This line of Vermandois is apparently of the Line from Herbert II comte de Vermandois [see royal chart] Coat-armor Lannoy d'Ameraucourt [Picardie] Echiqueté d'or et d'azur, de quatre tires. (checkered or & azure of 4 rows).

LANNOY or LAUNOY in NORMANDY

In the register of the chamber of comptes is mentioned BENOIT de LANOY ecuyer 1452 Later seigneurs de Clermont The genealogy of this house is brief and claims no connection with Lannoy of Flandres Given in an old French Gen. Coll. of ten vols. The line is extinct or unknown after 1648 Coat-Armor: Argent, an eagle displayed sable. See the "Notes on the Lannoys of the 'Dossier' of this family," there will be found many resident in Normandy Final research will doubtless show an origin from ancient Lannoy 1096.
