7. George Keats.

3 TINY (PEACHY AUSTINE SPEED), daughter of Philip Speed, was, from her youth, remarkably handsome, and her great beauty was not more striking than her many lovable traits of character. She married Captain John F. Rodgers, of the United States Army, a man of distinguished ability and comes of heroic ancestry. His father was Commodore Geo. W. Rodgers, of the United States Navy, and was on the American ship Wasp when it captured the British ship Frolic in the war of 1812. His paternal grandfather and also his maternal grandfather, Perry, served with distinction in the Revolutionary war. His uncle, Commodore John Rodgers, was a prominent officer in the United States Navy, and his maternal uncle, Commodore Oliver H. Perry, immortalized his name by his ever-memorable victory on Lake Erie.

Two brothers of Captain Rodgers lost their lives in battle in the Civil war. Another brother, Admiral C. R. P. Rodgers, of the United States Navy, recently died. He was one of the most prominent and useful officers in the navy.

Captain Rodgers is an educated military man, and served throughout the Civil war, and is now one of the most valuable officers in the service; accomplished in his profession and as a gentleman, he is a worthy representative of an illustrious family. Captain Rodgers and his wife, Tiny Speed, have one child, Emma Keats.

4 ELLA KEATS SPEED, daughter of Major Philip Speed, married Thomas B. Crutcher, who was a prominent iron merchant in Louisville. Failing health required him to give up business, and he died in December, 1891.

Their children:

1. Emma Keats.
2. Thomas B.
3. Mary Tuley.
4. Philip Speed.
5. William.
6. Ella Keats.
