"The Colors That Never Fade" Emil Herman Fitzke,

1

On the Flag that's as bright as a Summer's day,
  The Stripes have never faded;
There's the White, that's for Justice, and Truth and Right,
  The Red that's never faded
In the cause of sweet Liberty, it will fight;
Yes, those colors will always protecte our right.

2

May those Colors forever live as they are;
  A home to all men giving;
May the light that shines on us from each bright Star,
  Make bright our days of living!
It consoles and it honors the honored dead;
With its White, and its Blue, and its gallant Red.

CHORUS.

Tis the Flag that has never faded
  Its colors are fast and true;
There's a hundred million to defend it--
  The Old Red, White, and Blue!
