April 13, 1680, an agreement was made between Thomas Lyman, John Bridgman and Alexander Alvord for the maintaining the Common fence at the rear of their home lots.

In 1682 Alexander Alvord had the largest number of rods of fence to be built except John Stebbins: "A list of each man's proportion of fence which they now possess and own according as it was measured in 1679."

In King Phillip's War, 1676, the buildings of Alexander Alvord were burned—probably in the vicinity of what is now known as Pomeroy Terrace—outside the palisades. He received a war grant
