"When I'-SOMEWHERE In Picardy" By Richard E. Markle.

1

By a fireside glowing bright, sits a lonely girl to night,
Dreaming of her soldier boy--her sweetheart true;
Who has gone to die or do, for the dear Red, White, and Blue,
For America, his duty he will do!
As in a vision he appears, his parting words again she hears:

2

By a trench fire burning bright, sits her soldier boy tonight
Dreaming of his lovely sweetheart far away;
Of the girl he loves, so true, with a heart that is true blue,
That he left back in the dear old U. S. A.
Thos. she's many miles away yet these words he seems to say:

CHORUS.

"Good Bye, little girl--I'm leaving you, to day!
I have heard our Country's Call and I must obey,
When I'm far across the sea you will still be dear to me,
You will still be dear to me!
So, good bye, little girl-I am leaving you to day,
To fight for liberty
I love you true, and I never will forget you
When I'm somewhere In Picardy!"
