

1732. Mary Penelope, b. Salina, N. Y., Aug. 17, 1845.

1733. Frances Lulu, b. Cosummes River, Cal., June 11, 1852.

Harvey Alvord was a carpenter and builder by trade. In 1845 he went with his father and brother, John Jacob, to Caldwell Co., Mo.; but in 1849, at the time of the gold excitement in Cal., Harvey and his father pushed on to the Pacific Coast. While they were crossing the plains in May, 1849, en route for Cal., in order to defend themselves to better advantage from the Indians, the emigrants divided themselves into companies, and Mr. Alvord was appointed captain over one hundred and twenty wagons. They were six months on the road, and endured many privations and hardships. At Placerville, Cal., in the winter of 1849, onions and potatoes were $1.50 a pound, flour was $1 a pound, and wages $16 a day. Mr. Alvord was among the earliest settlers in the state, and belonged to the California Primus Society. In 1856 he returned to Syracuse, N. Y., and, after an absence of twenty-six years, in 1882 went back to Cal. to spend the last years of his life.

Mrs. Mary (Alger) Alvord for several years kept the "Alvord House" in Denver, Col.

874. LOUIS BOURBON ALVORD (Asahel, Thomas Gould, Asahel, Thomas, Thomas, Alexander), born Oswego Falls, N. Y., Oct. 25, 1821; died Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1895; married Salina, N. Y., July 2, 1839, Hannah Randall, daughter of Francis and Susan (Wilcox) Randall. She was born Coeymans, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1819; died Syracuse, N. Y., Apr. 18, 1881. Res. Salina, N. Y., Far West, Caldwell Co., Mo., and Syracuse, N. Y. Children:

1734. Agnes Regina, b. Salina, N. Y., Jan. 12, 1843.

1735. Francis Randall, b. Salina, N. Y., June 13, 1844; d. Sept. 2, 1846.

1736. Harriet Maria, b. Far West, Caldwell Co., Mo., Mar. 13, 1846.

1737. Mary Lizette, b. Far West, Caldwell Co., Mo., June 5, 1848.

1738. Isaac Randall, b. Salina, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1850.

1739. Florence Cornelia, b. Onondaga, N. Y., Feb. 4, 1866.

Louis Bourbon Alvord began life as a farmer near Syracuse, N. Y. In Mo. he was a herdsman. After his father's removal from Mo., he went there to bring his mother back to N. Y. State. After his return from the West, he managed his uncle Dioclesian's farm. He was then engaged with a flour and feed firm in Syracuse for several years, after which he successively engaged in farming, the grocery business, and finally as a drayman, having a number of teams, and taking contracts from various houses for their work in