James Dwight Alvord was for many years a broker in partnership with his brother, Harrison W. Alvord. He bought cattle and sheep in Minn., and Chicago, which he shipped to New York. In later years he kept a market at Syracuse until he finally returned to the farm where he kept registered stock, principally sheep. At present Mr. Alvord resides in Syracuse, in the streets of which city he may frequently be seen riding horseback at the age of eighty-two.
