Julius Bela Alvord entered the Northwestern State Normal School at Edinboro, Pa., in 1867, alternately teaching and attending school until he graduated in 1871. He taught in the schools of Erie and Elk Counties, Pa., until he went to Ventura Co., Cal., in 1874, where he has since resided, teaching for twelve years. He has since been engaged in farming, although he is still much interested in educational work, serving for eight years as a member of the Board of Education of Ventura Co. Mrs. Alvord's father was a "Forty-niner," her great grandfather, Gershom Ricker, was a soldier under Washington's command from 1776 until the close of the Revolution. Her great great uncle, Ralph Farnham, was the last survivor of the battle of Bunker Hill.
