Liberty's Rising Sun.

Lyric & Melody by James H. Calisch.

Tempo di Marcia.

Did you see the ris-ing sun's red glow Scat-ter the mist of night hang-ing low? So the will to set hu-man-i-ty free
In the East, in France, that sun once rose, Brand-ing with shame E-qual-i-ty's foes. It had spread its rays a-far in the West, Like the stars pre-cede the ris-ing day, So did our star-strewn flag lead the way. It a-roused new hope in ev-er-y breast,

Scat-ters the foes of Lib-er-ty! Plot and scheme they may,
Where it dis-played its glo-ry best. 'Round the end-less blue,
Heart-en-ing those whom fate op-pressd. First in love un-furled,

No-ble hopes be-tray, They're bound to yield be-fore the ris-ing day! So Ev-er cird-ing thru, It al-ways some-where rais-es hope a-new! For Then in bat-tle hurled, Its aims are now en-cir-cling all the world! The sum-mon all your strength, and strike, To van-quish their hate-ful reign! No all the na-tions must be free, And, friends, trav-el hand in hand! No night when ty-rants ruled has passed, Their self-seek-ing dream gone by! The fight for the cause of Lib-er-ty Was ev-er fought in vain! No free-dom is cert-ain an-y-where Till it gov-erns ev'-ry land! No morn-ing of free-dom's bro-ther-hood Is ris-ing in the sky! The fight for the cause of Lib-er-ty Was ev-er fought in vain!

free-dom is cert-ain an-y-where Till it gov-erns ev'-ry land!
morn-ing of free-dom's Bro-ther-hood Is ris-ing in the sky!
