

Jeanne of Spain. This family were noted for high office in the eighteenth century—Prime Minister, Field Marshal, Governor, etc., in Spain.

1787.
Will.

In 1787 he made his will in favor of his ten surviving children, but the troubles of the revolution were at hand. He endured great persecutions, and suffered great loss. His possessions were seized by the government. At eighty years of age he was reduced to the most terrible misery, but in October, 1794, part of his estates was restored to him. He died at Peloubet June 5, 1796. After his death the estate of Peloubet, on account of the great embarrassment of its affairs, was sold to the family of Montigny, the descendant of which family is Mr. Felix Hugonal, the present possessor.
