

Harwinton Haydens, as appeared in Stilos' Genealogies, 1859. I think he was the inventor of a way to spell Hayden without the y. He writes, 1841: "P. S. — You will perceive that I omit the character y in the word Haden, it being a preference I have for doing so."

171. William Hayden of Harwinton (Joseph<sup>65</sup>, Joseph<sup>25</sup>, Samuel<sup>10</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>); born Jan. 16, 1780; died Mar. 8, 1811, æ. 31; married Apr. 2, 1806, Statia Baldwin.

CHILDREN.

Child, died in infancy.

403 HARRIET, b. Oct. 10, 1809.

William<sup>171</sup> "was a stone cutter by trade." His widow was administrator of his estate and guardian of their daughter. Twelve years later Benajah<sup>170</sup> Haden was appointed guardian. The mother was probably dead.

175. Samuel Montgomery Hayden Ohio (Samuel<sup>67</sup>, Joseph<sup>25</sup>, Samuel<sup>10</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>); born in Harwinton, Nov. 11, 1776; died Oct., 1851, æ. 75; married at Canfield, O., 1802, Asenath Sprague; died at Sharon, 1845.

I was able to get nothing of Samuel<sup>175</sup> M. Hayden until 1886, when his niece, Polly<sup>116</sup> Bronson of Norfolk, Mass., wrote, "I have been told that he moved to Ohio when it was a wilderness, and there was not a white family within 7 miles of him." Later, George<sup>751</sup> A. Hayden
