

was in 1774 on Hanover St. Nothing has been found to corroborate the statement that he was in the Revolutionary army; he sympathized in the beginning with the loyalists, and his name is found in the lists of addressers, both of Hutchinson and Gage. A relic of Dr. Goldthwaite, his powder horn, is in possession of the Maine His. Soc., to which it was presented by a grandson of his brother Philip. He had one daughter,

This was during the siege, and the father seems to have been absent, since the child was presented by the mother. She married at Portsmouth in 1802, Mr. Samuel Davis of Bath, Me. (Salem Gazette, Dec. 28, 1802.)

113. Thomas⁶ Goldthwaite (Joseph⁴, John³, Samuel², Thomas¹), of Boston and Portsmouth, N. H., was born in Boston July 19 (bapt. July 24) 1743. The family account says of him, "a sailor, went to sea—14 years thought dead." The facts, so far as found, show that he was by occupation a sailmaker (the business of his gr. gr. father Burrell), and that he was living in Portsmouth in 1765, in which year, Nov. 19th, his name is one of those on a petition to the General Assembly against the monopolies of shopkeepers who buy of those bringing in country produce, and sell at advanced prices, from which it might be inferred that he was then a householder there. No further record of him appears till the Revolution, during which the name of Thomas Goldthwait, sailmaker, is found in a list of American prisoners (without date) sent from New York to Portsmouth to be exchanged for British. His service may have been at sea, and not on record, or he may be the "Thomas Goldthrite" on the muster roll of Capt. Wm. Ballard's Co., Col. Asa Whitcomb's (Essex Co.) reg't in camp at Ticonderoga—enlisted Dec. 5, 1775, discharged Nov. 1, 1776. (Vol. 47, p. 192, Mass. Arch.) He died before Aug. 9, 1779, at which date Benj. Goldthwait
