putt it into his will, that his 3 sons should have | that in England equally deuyded betwixt them vz. each a 3 pt. I objected | hee might alir his will when hee pleased, & his wife might dye & hee marry | againe and haue otr children, web hee thought a valne obicecon. Much otr | discourse there was about the stock on the farme &c but remayning vnwilling | to give a deede for that in England; saying hee might hve to spend it and often | repeating hee had soe ordered it in his will as aforesd web hee should never alter without | great necessity or words to that purpose soe wee pled for that tyme leauing | that matt<sup>r</sup> to further consideracon. | after hee came home hee told seual of my | friends and others as they informed me that hee had P<sup>ro</sup>ferred to give his son Nathaniel bettr then 1000£ | and I would not accept of it, the next tyme he came to my howse, after some | discourse about the premises and P<sup>ro</sup>ceiuing his resolucon as form<sup>ly</sup>, I consented | to accept of wt hee had form<sup>ly</sup> ingaged. and left it to him to add wt he pleased | towards the building of him a howse &c.
and soe agreed that the young P<sup>ro</sup>sons might | P<sup>ro</sup>ceede in marryage with both or consent web accordingly they did.
