

of John Maxwell of Ferraughty and Munches. The land was not long retained by John Syme.

In the Valuation Roll of 1799 the only farm named is Barncalzie, which was then owned by Major General Thomas Goldie of Goldielea, parish of Troqueer. In 1819, the Hon. Fletcher Norton of Norton was the owner. He sold the land to Robert Kirkpatrick-Howat of Mabie, parish of Troqueer. They were again sold to Thomas Boyd Dick, who was a few years ago proprietor.

22. The farms owned are Lairdlaugh, Westfield, and Barncalzie Mains; Shankfoot and Mill pool, Lochpark. The name Lairdlaugh appears to be a corruption of the old name Larglaught or Larglach, from the Gaelic iearg or leirg, a little eminence, and the old Scottish word leuch or leugh, low-lying. The only other name which we will refer to is Barncalzie, which Pont, in his map, spells Barkeylly. We think the proper rendering of it would be Barcoille, the wooded hill
