 *227 Ebenezer Huse, b. Dec. 13, 1818; killed, as engineer, by the giving way of a R. R. bridge, near Joliet, Ill., Feb. 7, 1857.
 "He Died at His Post.—A sad, but beautiful and touching scene was witnessed at the accident at the Du Page Bridge. On the morning after the accident, the slow tolling of a bell was heard. On looking to see whence it came, it was discovered to proceed from the engine as it lay submerged in the water. The waves as they foamed and surged over the sunken engine swayed the bell, which alone with the smoke-pipe appeared above the water and caused it to give a low tolling sound.
 When the engine was raised from the water, the engineer was found in a standing posture, with his stiff, cold, icy hand firmly grasping the throttle valve, as though amid the thick darkness, he had discovered the perilous condition of the train, and had sprung to avert the ruin. But it was too late—the engine and train, with its precious freight of life and property, went down, and during the dreary night, the engine-bell and the mad rushing waters rang out a solemn requiem for the dead."
