

Generations.

- 25th. JAMES BETHUNE, he married Anna Hamilton, daughter of General George Hamilton; they had no children. This James Bethune, Baron of Balfour, died at Rheims, October 8th, 1719. By his death, the male issue of John Bethune and Katharine Haliberton was extinct, and the succession came to the heirs of the second son of David Bethune and Margaret Wardlaw, as follows: 1719
- Robert Bethune, second son of David Bethune and Margaret Wardlaw, married Marion Inglis, daughter of Thomas Inglis of Atherney, he had two sons only, who were married, namely David and William. William, the younger brother, was an Advocate in Craighfurdie; his son George Bethune came to Boston, Mass., and married Miss Carey; their son George married Mary Faneuil. 1680
- David Bethune, the eldest son of Marion Inglis, married Anna Wardlaw, they had two sons only that lived to be men, namely: David and Henry.
- 25th. DAVID BETHUNE, Baron of Balfour, son of Anna Wardlaw, succeeded to the estate at the death of James Bethune, who died at Rheims, 1719; he married Anna Bethune, daughter of David Bethune, Lord Balfour, and Rachel Hope; they had two daughters, but no son, and the succession came to his younger brother: 1719
- 25th. HENRY BETHUNE, who married Isabel Maxwell; they had an only daughter; but no son; so that the succession came to George Bethune, of Boston, who was married to Mary Faneuil. about 1730
- Henry Bethune, unknown to his cousin and heir, George Bethune, petitioned the English Parliament to have the entail, on the male heir, set aside in favor of his daughter; her husband, Mr. Collerton, taking the name of Collerton Bethune, Baron of Balfour;