

381. NEWTON, b. April 4, 1828; m. Mrs. Louisa M. McGinley, New London, July 8, 1874.

His childhood and youth were spent on the Old Homestead farm in Lebanon, Conn. In his seventeenth year he entered the world as a teacher of a country school in Lisbon, Conn. Two years were spent in Worcester, Mass., learning the carpenter's trade. Two more alternated between teaching and work at his trade; then commenced a course of study at the State Normal school, New Britain, Conn.; after six months left to accept an urgent call as principal of school at Willimantic, Conn., after three years resigned to continue a course of study at the Wilbraham Academy, Mass., for two years.

Then followed teaching two years in Rockville, Conn., one season in the west, then nineteen successive years of teaching in New London, Conn. In addition to the foregoing, many activities engaged his time in church and Sunday school work, also in Young Men's Christian Association work, being chairman of the State Executive Committee of Connecticut for four years, and actively engaged in its evangelical work for three years, his leisure being devoted to genealogical researches especially of the "Fuller families."

382. GEORGE A., b. March 31, 1830, died November 22, 1837.

383. JAMES, b. May 17, 1832; m. Louisa Abbe, January 27, 1860; died at Willimantic, November 20, 1873. Age 42.

He was a man of much general intelligence, an extensive reader and close observer, and an agreeable conversationalist, which made him attractive and instructive in his social intercourse everywhere. In debate he was sharp and logical, but never lost his temper; if his opponent became irritated he had a way of playfully narrating some little incident with a roguish sparkle of fun in his laughing black eyes that soothed all to peace. Children—Frederick E., b. 1843, m. Kate May Hunting; Alice L., b. 1866, m. Elmer F. Brickley.

386. CHARLES A., b. April 13, 1834; m. Abby J. Brewster, of Colchester, October 2, 1855.
