

Sampson Crocker married Sarah Rogers Blunt, daughter of Captain William Blunt and Mary Woodley. He was Colonel of Militia. He owned the Crane Island Farm in Norfolk County, where he lived and died. He, like his brothers, William and John, survived his wife many years. Like their ancestors, they never re-married. They were a generous, warm-hearted people, with true loyalty to the sacred memories of their loved-cherished dead—with hearts that once filled, never could become empty—wedded still to life's end. My own heart beats a warm acclaim to their loyalty. He died ——— some years after the war. He had two children, Hamilton, who died in the Confederate service and Jules Oscar Blunt Crocker. Jules inherited the Crane Island Farm, born the 16th of October, 1825, and died intestate the 8th of March, 1890, unmarried. He commanded Co. I, 9th Va. Reg., C. S. A., of which regiment I was Adjutant. He was a gallant officer—a true, noble man, and enjoyed to the highest degree the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. His grave is at Churchland, Norfolk County. I qualified on his estate. The papers of the Chancery suit by William A. Crocker and others vs. James F. Crocker, administrator and others, instituted in the Court of Hustings for the City of Portsmouth in 1890 for the settlement of his estate, give a full account of his Crocker and Blunt heirs at law—they being all the descendants of his grandfather, Maj. William Crocker, and of his grandfather, Captain William Blunt, living at that time.

Margaret Crocker, daughter of William Crocker and Elizabeth, his wife, married Dr. Henry W. Holleman, and left one child, William Holleman, who mar-
