(W'm J. Delano.)

Began a printer in Washington. Moved to Dayton, took up railroading and telegraph. Here his partner financially ruined him. At telegraph office, as manager. To Memphis, Tenn. engaged in newspaper work. Yellow fever became epidemic, his wife dying, he threw his house open for the sufferers. Then to St Louis, Mo. At New Orleans he was engaged on the editorial staff of the "True Delta" when the war began. His family heard from him frequently by the "underground" telegraph. He was imprisoned in Fort Jackson by Genl. Butler and released by his successor, Genl. Banks, on condition that he would take the oath of allegiance or leave the country. He chose the latter and went to Havana. There he was blockade running and while thus engaged died in Mobile, Ala. An upright and consciencious man a sympathizer with the South. His political opinions were not those of his sons who were active in support of the Union.

(W'm M Delano.)

Connected with a bank as teller. Just before the war he joined the "Halleck Guards," 1861 he resigned from the bank and was appointed 2d Lieut in the 23d Mo. Inf. After some service in this reg't he was appointed Capt in the 12th Mo. Cav., in which command he rose to Major. He saw service in Mo. and the Southwest and also on the plains, his term of enlistment not expiring with the war '65. Returning to St Louis he entered a bank as teller for several years. His army experience rendered him restless and he went South with Texas or Mexico in view, but, while en route, and stopping with a friend at Stephen, he died.
