

Slenderness and grace are suggested in this street costume of fawn color Du Vel, a beautiful new silk frequently combined with fur this autumn.

This taupe cloth wrap attains the fulness so much in demand by having the lower portion swung from a deep yoke. The bottom is elaborately embroidered with taupe silk threads. A new muffling collar of fur and fur cuffs make it even more luxurious. Draped hat of taupe velvet. Wrap and hat from Saks & Co. Photo by Geisler & Andrews

Net adapts itself well to the bouffant frocks that take their inspiration from the gay court of Louis XVI. Since brown was a favorite color in those days that shade is chosen for the frock of Van Raalte net shown above, which is relieved by pipings of cherry color velvet as trimming. No woman's wardrobe is complete without a utility coat such as this one of taupe chinchilla cloth. From Levett, Frank & Co. Photo by Geisler & Andrews

Graceful, clinging lines distinguish this youthful evening dress developed in yellow "Sym-fa-ni Jacquar."

The Winter Mode In Furs

Where Charm and Loveliness Abide

For elegance and graceful expression, this season's fur wraps promise to achieve new laurels. Each garment illustrated portrays the potent charm of individuality. Their cleverly modelled lines—richness of pelt—moderateness of cost—the luxurious beauty of design—proclaim
