I went to Vassar, where I learned such things as go to show What "fin de siecle" mammas think their daughters ought to know,
 As Greek, and Latin, "parlez vous," and how to bow and smile,
 And how to dress bewitching, and also how to put on style.
 Which you'll admit has aided me a favorite to be Among the folks that hang around the deacon's "Sweet Marie."

When to the park, or races, or to baseball games I go,
 Some smart young chappie lingers near and asks to be my bean,
 He sucks his cane and racks his brain for witty things to say,
 But after many funny breaks, draws out, "aw, pleasant day."
 I look around among the throng, some clever man to see,
 To take the place of this "great gawk" with the deacon's
 "Sweet Marie."
