Is your face of sun-ny sweet - ness And your laugh so wild and free O
They would flash with untold splen - dor And more beau-ti-ful ap - pear O
They would turn a deeper crim - son And with love blush all a - glow O soft - er than the streamlet's murmur On the perfumd zephyrs sighs Is the when the birds among the ro - ses Hear the trillings of thy voice They'd could the winds that kiss thy forehead Hear the sto-ry of my love They would rip - pling of thy laughter As it o'er the meadow dies.
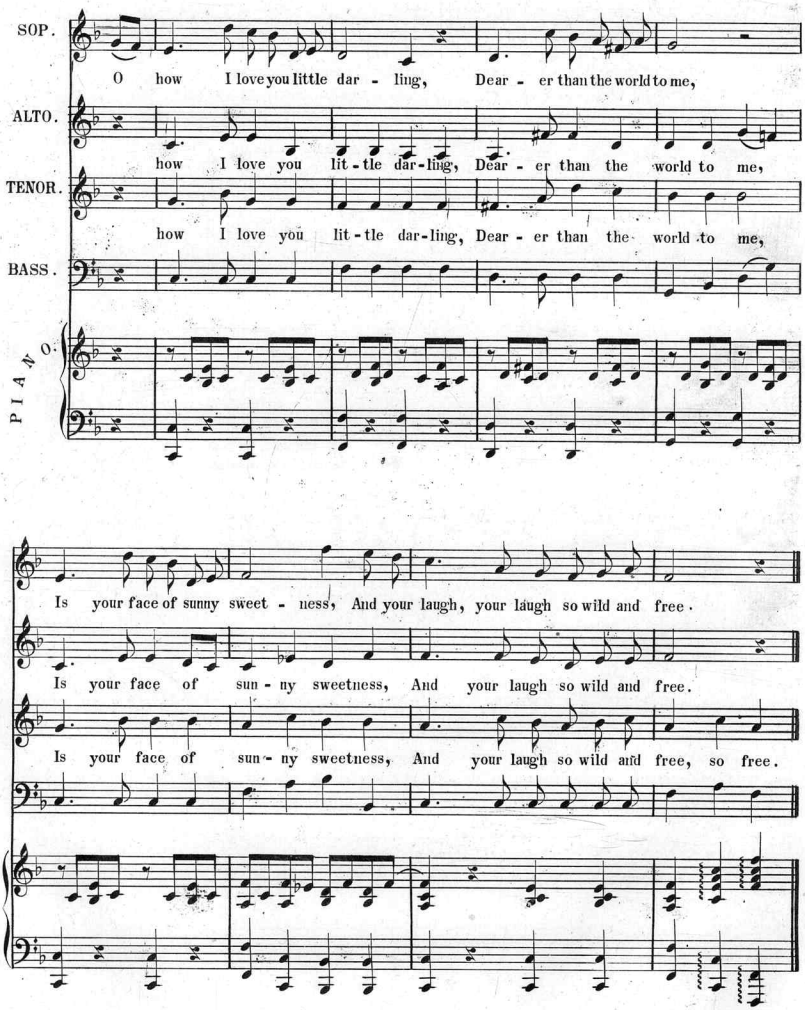
cease the songs that they are singing At your mu-sic to re - joice.
tell it to the flowers As thro' their bright midst they rove.

CHORUS.



SOP.
O how I love you little dar - ling, Dear - er than the world to me,

PIANO.
Is your face of sunny sweet - ness, And your laugh, your laugh so wild and free.
