2^d Verse.

They tell me that her cheek is pale, As in the twi...light hour, And

They tell me she's no lon...ger fair, That time has swept a...side The that her eye has lost its light, Her glance its for...mer pow'r. But lustre of her youth...ful brow, Her beau...ty's bloom...ing pride. But if her soul is still as chaste, Still gen...tle...ness is there; Then if her heart is still the same, Still gen...tle as of yore, Then is her eye to me still bright, Her cheek to me still fair, But is she beau...ti...ful to me, More love ly than be...fore, But if her soul is still as chaste, Still gen-tle-ness is there, Then if her heart is still the same, Still gen-tle as of yore, Then is her eye to me still bright, Her cheek to me still fair. Then is she beau-ti-ful to me, More love-ly than be-fore. Then is her eye to me still bright, Her cheek to me still fair. Her is she beau-ti-ful to me, More love-ly than be-fore. More cheek to me still fair. love-ly than be-fore.
