COLUMBIA TO GIVE AMERICAN MUSIC

May 4, ~~1946~~

The second annual festival of contemporary American music at Columbia University will take place next week end, starting with a dance program by Martha Graham on Friday night at the McMillin Theater. A new ballet with music by Samuel Barber will be given along with last year's "Appalachian Spring," with music by Aaron Copland. Planned for Saturday are two programs, including one in the afternoon by the NBC Symphony under Leon Barzin's direction, and one devoted to Charles Ives in the evening.
