We are going on and over, we have heard the summons ringing,
 We have felt the dreadful portents — broken notes to troubled time
 We have heard our Captain calling and the marching children singing,
 And we join the legions forming to redeem a world from crime.

We are going on and over, guarding peaceful ways to living:
 We are of the chosen legions, paying with our blood and toil,
 What is given, those delivered shall repay the world for giving
 In the bounty of their justice and the freedom of their soil.
