1. I saw her in the morn - ing air, Sweet and calm and de - bon - air, The
2. She watched the throng swing out of view, Her soul was sad, but no one knew, That
3. Her smile shall give me light and might, This Kai - ser man to beat and fight, And foun-tains of her heart were full, Tho' the strain of sor - row's pull Did sor - row's crown a heav - y load, Was troub-ling her a - long the road. With shat - tered ram - parts that be - fore Teu - ton - ic flags and em - blems bore, Will not sub - due her state - ly pride, For with rare grace she stemmed the tide and said :

sto - ic strength and moth - er grit, She smiled the sweet - est lit - tle bit and said :
float a flag of glo - rious hue, The stars the stripes, the red, and white and blue.

1st CHORUS

Re - mem - ber boy this land of ours, Its fair - y dells and love - ly bow'rs, Let might-y blows fall with such crash-ing That Kai-ser peace will go a-smash-ing.

2^d CHORUS
 Re - mem-ber boy your coun-try true, Its match-less flag, Red, White and Blue. Let might - y blows fall with such crash-ing That Kai-ser rule will go a - smash-ing.

3^d CHORUS
 I'll re-mem - ber moth-er the coun - try's homes, With free - dom's heights, and its templed domes,

And might - y blows that will fall a' - crash-ing, Will send Kai-ser-dom t' hell a' - gnash-ing.
