"Soldiers March, The Foe's Advancing" By A.E. Gaudin.

Soldiers march, the foe's advancing; to subdue our Country's pride;
 See her armies circling 'round us; forward march--ye gallant boys;
 With sad farewells our friends have gone; tears and prayers are left behind;
 But the all destroying enemy, is crushing all beneath its tread.

CHORUS.

March, on--march on--the foe's advancing;
 Crushing all beneath its tread;
 But the mighty Allied armies
 Gain victories in every land.

2

See the Allies bravely meet them; with songs and cheers they march along;
 Hear the bugles shrill resounding; midst the clam'rous shot and shell;
 Out boys are bravely winning battles great; the some voices they are hushed;
 But the all destroying enemy is crushing all beneath its tread.
