"The Yankee Doodle Girls" By E. F. Conway.

1

Don't you hear the band play "Dixie" as they march along the way?
See they are the Red Cross soldiers and they're leaving home to day;
They are journeying to Mercy for your good old Uncle Sam;
They are the Yankee Doodle Girls from Yankee Doodle Land/

2

They are going aboard the good ship with their colors flying high;
They will cross the wide wild ocean and will do their bit or die;
They are rosebuds from Old Glory land who'll bloom on that far off strand;
They are the Yankee Doodle Girls from Yankee Doodle Land.

3

They are sunshine for sick soldiers who upon their cots do lay;
They will cheer them on to victory and they'll drive the clouds away;
God Bless those Angels of Mercy that take up their Cross so grand;
They go into the battle for old Yankee Doodle Land.

CHORUS.

They are rosebuds from Old Glory Land with crowns of shining stars;
True blue Americans, from the good old homes of ours;
Daughters of Aunt Liberty and good Old Uncle Sam;
They are the Yankee Doodle Girls from Yankee Doodle Land.
