REPORT
OF
THE LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., December 7, 1908

SIR: Although this report concludes generally with the fiscal year ending June 30, I can not omit immediate mention of an event of sad significance which has occurred since that date—the death, on August 11, of Ainsworth R. Spofford. His title, during the last eleven years, that of Chief Assistant Librarian, did not obscure his greater office, that of Librarian Emeritus, nor the distinction to the Library or the honor to himself of the service which for thirty-two years he had rendered as its Librarian in chief. His most enduring service—the increase of its collections—continued to the last few weeks of his life, and continued with the enthusiasm, the devotion, the simple, patient, and arduous concentration that had always distinguished it. The history of it during its most influential period will be the history of the Library from 1861 to 1897. This will in due course, and proper amplitude, appear. A résumé of his career, of his relation with the Library and with those who used it, of his place in the profession, of his activities in literature, and of his characteristics among men, was undertaken at a memorial meeting held at the Library on November 12, the addresses at which will doubtless be printed.

This brief note is but the preliminary record due to the moment.

The Chief Assistant Librarianship has been filled by the promotion of Appleton P. C. Griffin from the post of Chief Bibliographer, which he had held since its creation in 1900. Mr. Griffin's entire life has been spent in serviceable library work in connection with research collections; for twenty-nine years (1865-1894) in the Boston Public Library (where he was successively assistant custodian of the shelves, custodian of the building, and keeper of books), and since then, except for a brief interval during which he performed special work for the Boston Athenæum and the Lenox, at the Library of Congress, to which in August, 1897, he was appointed by my predecessor, Librarian Young, as an "assistant librarian." His service here has been incessant and important in dealing with requests for bibliographic information, and the direct aid of research; but he has in addition compiled and edited the reference lists on various topics which have been issued by the Library during the past eight years. His previous bibliographic publications had already gained him a wide reputation.

FINANCE

The table given below exhibits the appropriations and expenditures of the Library proper and of the Copyright Office for the fiscal year, and the appropriations for the year now current. Included also are the appropriations for the equipment and care of the building and grounds, expended by the Superintendent. The allotment for printing and binding (during the past year $202,000) is not included.

^a Including balance brought forward.

^b Includes $1,500 deficiency appropriation, act of February 15, 1908, and $570.23 credits on account of sales of card indexes to Executive Departments and independent institutions of the Government. Does not include $87.28 credits yet to be passed.

^c This expenditure is offset by subscriptions covered into the Treasury during the past year; $22,286.72 actually applied. Does not include indebtedness of $173.45 to be paid when credits on account of sales of card indexes to Executive Departments and independent institutions of the Government have been passed in full.

^d Balance available July 1, 1907.

^e This expenditure is offset by fees covered into the Treasury during the past year, $82,387.50.

^f Exclusive of $1,500 to be expended by the marshal of the Supreme Court for new books for that body.

Appropriations

The appropriations for 1908 varied from those of the year preceding only in the following particulars:

Salaries (general service): The salaries of the Chief Assistants of the Divisions of Documents, Maps and Charts, Prints and Smithsonian, advanced from $1,200 to $1,400; that of the Chief Assistant in the Division of Bibliography from $1,200 to $1,500. The salary of the Assistant in Charge of Binding was increased from $1,200 to $1,400.

Card indexes (distribution of): A deficiency appropriation of $1,500 provided under the act of February 15, 1908.

Law indexes: The appropriation of $5,840 continued for the preparation and publication of the Index to the Statutes at Large. A special appropriation of $5,000 to expedite the preparation and publication of that portion of the Index covering the period since 1873:

Increase of library: The appropriation for general increase advanced from $90,000 to $100,000.

Building and grounds: Salaries: Decrease of 2 watchmen, $1,440; increase of 2 check boys, $720; net decrease, $720. Furniture: Increase from $20,000 to $40,000, the latter being the usual amount appropriated.

Appropriations, 1908-9

The appropriations for 1908-9 make additional provision as follows:

Salaries (Copyright Office): The position of Assistant Register of Copyrights at $2,500.

Card indexes (distribution of): The appropriation for service in connection with the distribution of card indexes increased from $10,800 and $1,500 (deficiency) for 1908 to $16,800 for 1909.

Printing and binding: The allotment decreased to $202,000 as an offset to the increased appropriation for card indexes; certain service heretofore rendered by the Government Printing Office in connection with the distribution of printed catalogue cards and charged to the allotment for Printing and Binding, now transferred to the Library of Congress and provided for under the appropriation for Card Indexes.

Building and grounds: A telegraph and telephone switch operator at $720 and an assistant telephone switch operator at $600 provided in place of 2 telephone operators at $600 each.

The fees from copyrights are covered into the Treasury and not applied directly to the maintenance of the Copyright Office. They form a regular revenue of the Government, however, and a net revenue over the direct expenses of the Office, as appears from the following comparison:

RECEIPTS
COPYRIGHT OFFICE: Receipts and expenses	Fees covered in during the fiscal year 1907-8, as above...	$82,387.50
	EXPENSES
	Salaries as stated.....	$74,784.29
	Stationery and sundries.....	1,182.90
		75,967.19
	Net cash earnings.....	6,420.31

The amount expended for salaries ($74,784 29) includes the sum of $4,680 paid in salaries to certain employees who have been classifying and crediting the old deposits received prior to 1897. This expenditure is chargeable to arrears. The current expenses of the Office are therefore considerably more than met by the current receipts.

The above statement includes all disbursements except the cost of furniture, of printing, and of binding, but only cash receipts.

In addition to cash fees the copyright business brings each year to the Government, in the articles deposited, property to the value of many thousands of dollars. During the past fiscal year 221,722 such articles were received. The value of those drawn up into the collections of the Library far exceeded the amount of net cash earnings.

The work of the Copyright Office is divided into two portions: (1) The current business, covering applications received since the reorganization of the Office under the Register in 1897; (2) the arrears, the classification, crediting, and indexing of the entries and deposits prior to 1897 (i. e., from 1870, when the copyright business was first placed under the Librarian of Congress).

On the 3d day of July, 1908, when the report of the Copyright Office was submitted, the remittances received up to the third mail of the day had been recorded and acknowledged; the account books of the bookkeeping division were written up and posted to June 30, and the accounts rendered to the Treasury Department were settled up to and including the month of June, while earned fees to June 30, inclusive, had been paid into the Treasury.

All copyright applications received up to and during June 30 had been passed upon and refunds made. The total unfinished business for the full eleven years from July 1, 1897, to June 30, 1908, amounts to but $266.73, as against a total of completed business for the same period of $774,606.

At the close of business on July 3, 1908, the titles for record had been dated, classified, and numbered to July 2 (inclusive) for books and periodicals and to July 1 for all other classes. All titles had been indexed up to and including June 30.

The articles of all classes deposited during the year had been stamped, catalogued, and credited up to the receipts of June 30, inclusive.

The Catalogue of Copyright Entries, which since the transfer of its publication from the Treasury Department to the Library of Congress (see Appendix II) has been issued in four separate parts, had been brought forward, in the new series, to Part 1, books, etc., Vol. 5, No. 1, July 2; Part 2, periodicals, Vol. 3, Nos. 23-26, June; Part 3, musical compositions, Vol. 3, Nos. 23-26, June; Part 4, engravings, cuts, and prints, etc., Vol. 4, Nos. 23-26, June.

The certificate and non-certificate entries had been recorded to June 30, inclusive, and certificates and notices of entry to the same date made, revised, and mailed.

right business*

Copyright
business prior to July 1, 1897

Credited articles to the number of 34,782 (including 426 pamphlets, 19,185 periodicals, and 14,886 musical compositions) have been filed away under year and number. In the work of crediting deposits, 15,979 articles were handled and 15,328 articles (including 14,830 musical compositions and 322 pamphlets) were credited and filed, those desired by the Library being forwarded to the shelves for use. In the case of 651 articles, identification and credit could not be made, and they were accordingly indexed and (except those desired by the Library) filed for convenient reference.

Titles to the number of 116,776, entered prior to July 1, 1897, but heretofore filed only in rough bundles, have been collated, arranged, and permanently filed.

At the close of business June 30, 1908, there remained uncredited in the files of the Copyright Office 73,081 articles deposited prior to July 1, 1897, as follows:

Pamphlets and leaflets.....	34,444
Periodical numbers.....	8,020
Musical compositions.....	18,993
Posters.....	2,969
Articles which could not be credited.....	8,655
Total.....	73,081

During the past eleven years the business done by the Office shows the following:

Total number of entries.....	1,112,398
Total number of articles deposited.....	1,936,050
Total amount of fees received and applied.....	$774,606.00
Total expenditure for service.....	$651,881.55
Net receipts above expenses for service.....	$122,724.45

During the thirty-eight years since the copyright work became a business of the Library of Congress the total number of entries has been 1,993,254.

INCREASE OF THE LIBRARY

Adopting the count of printed books and pamphlets made in June, 1902, as being accurate, the total contents of the Library, inclusive of the Law Library, at the close of the past two fiscal years were as follows:

With the exception of manuscripts, and the Whitaker collection of lithographs (a purchase), only one collection of importance in any department of literature has been acquired during the year. This was the Huitfeldt-Kaas collection of Scandinavian literature, described below. The gifts—apart from manuscripts, music, and prints, of which special mention is made under these heads—have been routine (from governments or institutions) or of ordinary material. Their total has, however, reached 10,370 pieces.

As stated above, the important purchase of the year en bloc was of the Huitfeldt-Kaas collection. This was the private library of Henrik Jørgen Huitfeldt-Kaas, the late state archivist of Norway.

Mr. Huitfeldt-Kaas died in 1905 at the age of seventy-two. He was, at the time of his death, the head of the Norwegian branch of the well-known noble family of the name Huitfeldt-Kaas, celebrated alike in Danish and Norwegian history.

The state archivist was a man of quiet and studious habits. Even as a young man he had developed a strong love of books, and when, at the age of eighteen, he entered the University of Christiania, in 1852, he had already laid the foundation of his private library. In the university he devoted himself for some years to the study of law; but his interest in history, especially in genealogy, biography, and local history, was so strong that he soon abandoned the field of jurisprudence and decided to give all his time and energy to historical research. He accordingly entered the service of the Public Records office of Norway in 1858 and remained there until the time of his death in 1905, having become the chief state archivist in 1896. He was the leading member of various historical and other learned societies, being for several years the president of the Danish-Norwegian Biographical Society. In his historical researches he had paid particular attention to the history of the Norwegian nobility, æsthetics, the drama, and the stage. In fact, his history of the Christiania theater is one of his leading works. His chief work, however, begun in 1861, consisted in the editing of the Diplomatarium Norvegicum. His researches in connection with this compilation necessitated frequent visits to Copenhagen and Stockholm. It was during these sojourns in the capitals of Denmark and Sweden that he found many opportunities to enrich his private library by purchases of rare and valuable works which, through his intimate knowledge of the bookshops and second-hand dealers, he was frequently able to pick up at exceptionally low prices.

As an ardent bibliophile he kept in constant touch with the book market, and his library shows that his selections were made with rare discrimination. It contains, for instance, first editions of all the works of Ibsen, Björnson, and Jonas Lie, now very difficult to obtain. It also includes many valuable editions of the works of other leading masters of Denmark and Norway during the nineteenth century, a period of remarkable productivity in the literature of these countries. In Scandinavian biography, genealogy, local and theatrical history, the collection numbers many valuable works which at the present time it would be impossible to obtain at any price in open market. Of large sets it contains, besides the "Diplomatarium," several of the leading periodicals of Norway and Denmark. There are, for example the "Illustreret tidende" complete from the beginning, with files of the chief historical and genealogical periodicals and numerous valuable reference works. Of the early laws of Norway, the collection includes some works which to-day are found in only a few libraries of Europe and probably in no other library of the United States.

The entire collection numbers about 5,000 volumes and is in fine condition, Mr. Huitfeldt-Kaas having always taken a great pride in the appearance of his books and personally superintended their binding.

In any mention of this acquisition we must make special acknowledgment of the services of Mr. Haakon Nyhuus, Librarian of Deichmanske Bibliothek, at Christiania, and well known in this country as the official representative of Norway at the International Library Congress of 1904. Mr. Nyhuus not merely aided us to a judgment of the collection, but personally assisted in the transfer of it.

Nor must we omit appreciation of the spirit shown by the heirs of Mr. Huitfeldt-Kaas who considered in the negotiations less the mere commercial value of the collection than the public service which it might perform in the National Library of the United States. The significance of this service may be estimated from the fact that there are now nearly five million persons in the United States who are natives, or immediate descendants of natives, of Scandinavia; and that there are now chairs of Scandinavian literature in the Universities of Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, and Wisconsin, and courses at Harvard, Columbia, Cornell, and other universities, as well as at various denominational colleges and academies, especially in the West. Through our system of inter-library loan this collection will become available to teachers, students, and investigators throughout the country.

EXCHANGES

These have continued and increased in volume, no less than 38,951 pieces having been sent out (to various libraries). The material received from various government libraries under the appropriation act of February 25, 1903, totaled 62,957 pieces as against 10,476 in 1907. The practice which this transfer implies is relieving healthily various bureau libraries of material irrelevant to the work of the particular bureau, and enabling the Library of Congress to strengthen not merely its own, but other collections, including those of other bureaus.

DIVISION OF MANUSCRIPTS

(From the report of the chief, Mr. Ford)

The accessions of manuscripts which have been important are described in detail in Appendix III of this Report.

MSS. Gifts

Among the more important collections received by gift are: The papers of Harry Innes, a distinguished personage in Kentucky affairs in the early part of the nineteenth century; and the papers of the firms of Riggs & Company and of Corcoran & Riggs, the mercantile and banking house of long and honorable standing in Washington.

The receipt of the manuscripts bequeathed by Mr. J. Henley Smith was recorded in the last annual report without any attempt at evaluation or analysis of their contents. In Appendix III will be found a description of their principal characteristics. The transcripts and notes from Spanish sources bequeathed by Mr. Woodbury Lowery are the subject of further notice in the same Appendix. Mrs. David Murray of Brunswick, N. J., gave the papers of her husband, Mr. David Murray, who had a commission in 1873 from the Japanese Government to reform the educational system of Japan. Papers relating to the Lafayette family were given by M. Émile Edouard Cellérier. An appreciative notice of these appears in the Appendix which includes various other items of interest received by gift as well as purchase. Among the latter is a royal decree issued by Philip IV of Spain, the terms of which are notable.

DIVISION OF
MANUSCRIPTS:
Equipment and collections

One new exhibition case, made on a special pattern, has been installed in the exhibition corridor, thus filling the last space available for exhibition purposes. A new case for the catalogue cards has been ordered, and the second gallery in the north curtain will soon be inclosed in glass and made available for manuscripts. These additions to the equipment of the Division practically complete what will be needed for some years. The second gallery will be very useful in giving space for storing and arranging manuscripts, and eventually for holding the collections that are not much in demand. The increase of the card catalogue each year is rapid, because a single worker can prepare about 7,000 cards, and three persons put out 21,000 cards a year. It is hardly possible to prepare cross-reference cards to manuscripts, as a single paper (like the petition of the inhabitants of Vandalia) may require 400 or 500 cards. Yet the time may come when such a scheme can be utilized on a restricted plan. At present the printed calendars offer the best solution, with this advantage also that such calendars may be distributed so widely as to meet the needs of all interested, however remote from the Capital.

The fact that one-half of the north curtain of the Library, with its three tiers of cases, is now complete and houses material sufficient to occupy more than one-half of this inclosed space, offers an opportunity for a retrospect. In 1900 the Division consisting of five employees occupied one of the corner rooms of the building, and its collections, which were largely of transcripts made by Peter Force, were housed in a few cases. The most notable collections had been obtained by the purchase of the Thomas Jefferson and Peter Force libraries, and constituted a quite unimportant part of the value of those libraries. The collections were so moderate in size that a nearly full list was given in the report of the Librarian for 1901 (pp. 335-344). Many notable pieces were named, but apart from the Rochambeau, John Paul Jones, and Vernon-Wager papers, there was no collection of personal papers so large as to be accounted the collection of such papers. Two calendars had been issued—the Washington and the Jones—both of which have been rendered incomplete by subsequent acquisitions of manuscripts. To-day the report could not pretend to list the principal collections of the Division in such detail, so great is the volume; and the scope and importance to historical study of the leading collections are shown by the accompanying diagram, prepared by Mr. John C. Fitzpatrick, of this Division, in which only the leading collections are named, and the years each approximately covers. The rapid increase and the strength of the collections for certain periods are shown in this manner far better than could be done by any detailed description. Such a record of growth is very satisfactory.

The tasks performed in the Division in the last year were as follows: The calendar of the military papers of Washington has steadily progressed and without interruption. Probably one more year will be required for this work. The calendar of the New Mexico papers has also progressed, and has reached the year 1791, the work being pushed forward as rapidly as the trained calendarist can perform it. The Spanish records of East Florida have all been opened and jacketed, and are to be calendared on the completion of the New Mexico papers. The Andrew Johnson papers have been calendared to 1865. Each of these tasks involves the preparation of thousands of cards, the reading of thousands of documents, and the determination of many perplexing questions of writer, date, and place. The British transcripts are roughly indexed and carded as received. The Van Buren papers have been calendared through 1838. Added to these constant and exacting duties have been the examination of collections offered, and the arrangement of such as are acquired by the Library. This has been done with a force no larger than that of 1900, but with an organization and efficiency so much greater as to permit its accomplishment.

The publication of the Journals of the Continental Congress has continued without interruption on the plan originally laid down in 1903. In the last twelve months three volumes (X, XI, and XII), covering the record for 1778, were printed; the records for 1779, also comprising three volumes were prepared for the printer and sent to him promptly; and the preparation of the copy for 1780 begun. Thus no delay has occurred from any side. After 1779 so large a part of the journals was omitted in the printed volumes, through considerations of economy or of public policy, as to give to this edition the value of a new work. Its utility has been widely acknowledged, and it is gratifying to find that no serious defect in method of compilation and publication has been pointed out. The insertion of the committee reports is recognized as adding much to the interest and sequence of the record.

The number of pieces of manuscript repaired and mounted in the fiscal year was 8,632, nearly all of which belonged to the Washington Papers. In addition, there were 550 Jackson papers treated for binding, and 22 volumes of those papers have been bound, covering the collection to the year 1815. Also additional were the opening, moistening, and pressing of forty-two volumes of the Florida papers, and many individual items repaired for this and other Divisions, demanding special treatment.

The figures of regular repairs for five years have been: 1903-4, 3,650; 1904-5, 7,817; 1905-6, 8,830; 1906-7, 8,033; 1907-8, 8,632.

These are exclusive of what can be regarded as outside of regular series. It is impossible to measure with any degree of accuracy the output by mere number of pieces, as a single manuscript may require any time from a few minutes to days in its treatment. Yet it is certain that the output has increased, and increased to an extent greater than the figures show. The collection now being treated, the Washington Papers, had been so much and so carelessly handled as to demand much more attention than such a collection as the Jackson. That the figure of 8,632 pieces should, under such conditions, have been reached, is proof of efficiency. A further evidence of this, if any were needed, is the increasing number of visitors from other library institutions to inspect the processes employed, and the large number of inquiries from many quarters concerning the methods, the special materials, and recipes used. Much naturally depends upon the individual skill of the repairer; but only practice and proper methods are needed to do what is required to preserve manuscripts against ordinary wear and tear. The salient fact is the increasing interest in the subject, and the recognition that the Library repair room offers the best opportunity for obtaining a knowledge of the essentials demanded.

There are many questions still to be considered before the methods of repairing manuscript or printed material can be regarded as determined. The Bureau of Standards is conducting examinations of papers and inks, and measuring the effect of sunlight on texture and paper and permanency of ink. The results can not but be of high service, and must direct attention to new repair materials, if not new processes of treating papers that have suffered injury. The element of cost may thus be modified so as to permit a more general adoption of the best methods—a much desired object.

The Division of Manuscripts lost one of its trained assistants when Mr. Wilmer Ross Leech went to the office of the State Historian, Albany, New York. He had been in the Division since 1900 and had prepared calendars of some of the collections, as well as become expert in reading the manuscripts of the seventeenth century.

DIVISION OF DOCUMENTS

(From the report of the Chief, Mr. Thompson)

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, the accessions to the Library through the Division of Documents were as follows:

DOCUMENTS.

In addition to the above, 1,902 sheet maps and charts and 39 atlases have been received by official donation.

An increase of 30 per cent over the document accessions of the previous fiscal year is indicated by these figures, and comparison with the statistics of the year ending June 30, 1906, shows that the number of volumes and pamphlets received in the Division during twelve months has increased almost 100 per cent in two years. Since the beginning of 1901, when a separate count of the material handled in the Division of Documents was inaugurated, the total accessions in its field have amounted to 189,763 volumes and pamphlets.

In order to compare the work done by the Division from year to year, the annual totals of volumes and pamphlets handled should be divided into two parts: (a) receipts by international exchange, and from State and municipal governments, chambers of commerce, and corporations; (b) United States documents received by law or from the issuing offices, transfers from the department libraries, Smithsonian deposit, and documents acquired by purchase or exchange of duplicates. This is shown in the following table:

* Accessions not classified.

The annual accessions in group (a) afford a measure of the results of the Division's activity as an agent for the acquisition of official publications direct from issuing sources other than the United States government; the fluctuation shown by the second column of figures is largely accidental, being due mainly to the variation in the amount of material transferred from other government libraries.

The preparation of want lists of foreign documents has been continued during the past year along the lines indicated in the last annual report. In addition to the channels of communication with the publishing centers therein described, we have availed ourselves of the services of the Bureau of International Exchanges in forwarding the lists to the appropriate offices. Statements of our wants have been sent during the year to the following countries: Argentine Republic, Bavaria, Belgium, Bolivia, Great Britain (Patent Office), Budapest, Buenos Aires (Province), Bulgaria, Ceylon, Chile, Costa Rica, Denmark, Egypt, Greece, Guatemala, Honduras, India, Japan, Netherlands, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Nicaragua, Peru, Queensland, Salvador, Siam, South Australia, Switzerland, and Victoria. It is expected that the want lists for the few remaining countries will be completed and sent out before Congress meets in December.

Foreign documents

In response to requests outstanding a year ago, and from some of those above mentioned also, special shipments of documents have been received as follows: Argentine Republic, 189 volumes and pamphlets; Commonwealth of Australia, 6; Belgium, 511; Brazil, 307; Budapest, 15; Bulgaria, 101; Ecuador, 44; France, 1,803; Hungary, 105; Italy, 637; Japan, 92; New Brunswick, 100; Peru, 113; Prussia, 101; Queensland, 305; Switzerland, 133; Tunis, 50; Victoria, 308; Western Australia, 151. There were received also 482 maps from Hungary, 89 from France, and 71 from Victoria; and from the British Government a set of the volumes containing the British case, counter case, and argument in the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary dispute, with appendices, index, minutes of proceedings and atlas. We are advised that further consignments from Ceylon, India, Queensland, the Bureau of Statistics of Bulgaria, and the French Chamber of Deputies are on their way to us.

exchanges*

The following table shows the receipts by international exchange since the organization of the Division of Documents:

Accessions: International exchange	Volumes and pamphlets

1901-2	5,850
1902-3	4,809
1903-4	4,916
1904-5	^a 3,506
Average 1900-1905	5,111
1905-6	3,522
1906-7	10,039
1907-8	8,755
Average 1905-1908	7,438

^a The gifts from foreign governments reported in this year included also 2,968 volumes and pamphlets (miscellaneous publications) which formed parts of the official exhibits at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

It is estimated that under normal conditions the number of volumes and pamphlets received annually from foreign governments should amount to about 7,000.

The negotiations for the establishment of international exchange with China were brought to a successful conclusion, and a collection of sheep-bound congressional documents from 1901 to date was despatched to the American-Chinese Publication Exchange Department, Shanghai Bureau of Foreign Affairs, in February. Liberia has been added to the list of countries receiving partial sets of United States documents in exchange for their own official publications.

A revised want list of the journals and documents of the various state legislatures and of the reports of state officers has been prepared during the year and is now in press. It is to be distributed to libraries for the purpose of obtaining the material needed, as far as possible, by inter-library exchange of duplicates. The distributing agencies in the various States have already supplied all the material that is at their disposal.

State documents

A beginning has been made with the development of the collection of municipal documents, American and foreign. One hundred and two volumes of such publications were obtained from the leading cities of Great Britain during the early part of 1908, and a systematic gathering of the documents of American municipalities was begun in June, following the reclassification and shelf listing of the existing collection in the Library.

Service

Dr. George Winfield Scott, who entered our service December, 1903, as Law Librarian, resigned that office on October 31, 1907, continuing, however, through the remainder of the fiscal year—i. e., until June 30, 1908—upon the indexing work described below, for whose institution, plan, method, and progress he was chiefly responsible, and which has passed its stage of experiment and of demonstration with the issue of the volume now published. He was succeeded as Law Librarian by Mr. Middleton G. Beaman, who had already served the Library for over a year in connection with the indexing.

INDEXES, DIGESTS, AND COMPILATIONS OF LAW

(From the report of Mr. Middleton G. Beaman, now Law Librarian, but in immediate conduct of the indexing from its organization in 1906)

In the Sundry Civil Appropriation Act for the fiscal year 1907 appeared the following paragraph (34 Stat. L., 753):

To systematize the preparation of law indexes and so forth and to provide trained law clerks therefor: To enable the Librarian of Congress to direct the Law Librarian to prepare a new index to the Statutes at Large, in accordance with a plan previously approved by the Judiciary Committees of both Houses of Congress, and to prepare such other indexes, digests and compilations of law as may be required for Congress and other official use, five thousand eight hundred and forty dollars to pay for five additional assistants in the Law Library: One at eighteen hundred dollars, one at twelve hundred dollars, one at nine hundred dollars and two at seven hundred and twenty dollars each and for the Law Librarian five hundred dollars, the said sum to be paid to the Law Librarian notwithstanding seventeen hundred and sixty five of the Revised Statutes.

In compliance with this statute, and under direction of the then Law Librarian, Dr. George W. Scott, work was begun early in July of 1906 upon the plan required by the statute to be submitted for the approval of the Judiciary Committees of both Houses of Congress.

This plan took the form of an elaborate but tentative scheme of headings, subheadings, and cross references, designed as a framework on which to subjoin the entries or references to the statutes, and as a unifying guide by means of which uniformity of results could be obtained in the actual indexing. This tentative classification, contained in a printed volume of nearly 800 pages, widely spaced and margined to permit of interlineations and corrections, was submitted not only to the Judiciary Committees of both Houses of Congress, but to specialists in the various subjects in the government service and throughout the legal profession, with a request for criticisms and suggestions. It was a matter of surprise and regret that almost no suggestions of value were received.

Index to Statutes at Large

The plan did not receive the necessary approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee until March, 1907. Owing to this delay and also to the need experienced by Congress for a comprehensive subject-index to the Federal statutes in force, work was then begun at once on a subject-index to the general and permanent law found in the Revised Statutes of 1873 and the seventeen volumes of the Statutes at Large which follow—altogether about 25,000 quarto pages of statutes. This has now been completed and published.

Because the personal, local, and temporary statutes have constantly mixed in with them provisions of general and permanent force, every line of the 25,000 pages had to be read with the closest scrutiny. The aim was to bring to light and to accumulate under a definite category the references to all provisions on a definite subject, however scattered those provisions might be in the various sorts of enactments. The failure to employ precise language in the statutes, the use of different language at different points in the same act or in different acts to attain apparently identical objects, and the numerous conflicts and inconsistencies in the provisions of the statutes, giving rise to implied repeals and amendments, have tended to obscure the obvious construction, which it is the business of an index to note, and to retard progress.

The method employed was as follows: The whole field was divided into a few large groups, composed of subjects of a more or less cognate nature, and each group assigned to one of the lawyers engaged upon the work. Each person in charge of such a group read, however, the entire body of the statutes, taking out that part which related to his subjects. To secure uniformity of style in the treatment of the various subjects, and to make sure that nothing had been omitted, this work was checked up during the progress of the indexing by one individual, who himself read every line of the statutes.

When the initial indexing was finished, the material collected consisted of about 100,000 typewritten cards, each containing a brief entry, or description of the statute, followed by a reference to the volume and page where found, and date of passage. These entries were then compared and edited, and all parts of the classification checked up for definiteness and consistency with their cognate parts. A typewritten manuscript was then prepared for the printer, and carefully proof-read from the cards. The printed proof was scrutinized with the utmost care, and again compared with the cards, which remain on file, and to which additions can be made at any time.

As stated above, the volume now published contains references only to the statutes of a general and permanent nature contained in the Revised Statutes of 1873 and the Statutes at Large subsequently enacted to March, 1907 (vols. 18-34), together with a table of express repeals and amendments, and a list giving the popular names of acts and resolutions. There remain to be indexed (1) laws of a temporary, local, and personal nature since 1873, (2) all laws prior to 1873.

The total cost of the work up to June 30, 1908, exclusive of the printing, but including proof-reading by the authors, was provided for in two annual appropriations of $5,840 each and a $5,000 appropriation made for the purpose of expediting the work on statutes general and permanent in character.

That so much was completed during the fiscal years 1907 and 1908 was due, not to the fact that the salaries provided were adequate to secure persons of competent ability, but to the fact that lawyers of unusual ability were led to engage in the work in the hope of advancement. By their diligence and untiring devotion much was accomplished, but our inability to increase the salaries has resulted in the resignation of most of the force. It is hardly to be expected that others will be found to take their place who will stay for any length of time.

Index to Statutes at Large Requirements

The work is complex. A person to take it up must have had a good legal training, he must possess an active mind and be able to exercise a practical judgment with respect to the selection and disposition of the mass of stuff to be read, analyzed, and indexed. He must have some aptitude for the use of precise diction. Before he can be of the slightest use in turning out productive work he must study for some time the legislation on the subjects which he is going to index. He must be taught the methods which have been wrought out for the handling of the material; the work he does experimentally must be carefully examined and his errors and omissions pointed out. All of this takes time, and the cost for materials and service in connection with the discovery and training of a capable workman is considerable. This fact should be borne in mind in the fixing of salaries. Beginners should be paid small salaries, but there should be reasonable salaries to which the competent, well-trained indexers may be advanced and held for the work.

If, therefore, suitable persons are to be drawn into the work, and retained, Congress must provide adequate salaries. At present, there are five positions, as follows: One at $1,800, one at $1,200, one at $900, two at $720, and $500 additional compensation to the Law Librarian. I shall recommend the addition of two positions—one at $2,400 and one at $3,000.

The preceding tables do not include the total number of sheets in the Sanborn insurance maps. During the past year 914 maps in 8,518 sheets have been added. The number of these maps received during the fiscal year 1907 was unusually large, as all the old ones on file in the Copyright Office were sent to this Division. A number of sheets in past counts of this collection was estimated. The present enumeration is from an actual count, sheet by sheet. The entire collection is now in order and comprises 18,851 maps in 151,879 sheets, including 744 bound volumes, containing 55,839 sheets.

One thousand six hundred and fifty-one sheets have been added to the Ordnance Survey map, making a total of 14,037 sheets, which also are not included in the above tables.

MAPS:
Noteworthy accessions

The following are some of the noteworthy accessions:

Manuscript, colored portolano on vellum, of the Mediterranean sea.
Drawn by Jean André Bremond in 1670.

The only really notable gift came from Mrs. Paine, Cambridge, Mass. It is a volume containing several characteristic autograph scores of the late John Knowles Paine, principally his unfinished tone-poem "Lincoln." Music:
Gifts

On the whole, the purchases during this fiscal year have surpassed those of previous years in value and importance. Among the most noteworthy were the transcripts of the following old operas: Hasse's La Clemenza di Tito, Jomelli's Ezio, Leonardo Leo's Olimpiade, Lotti's Ascanio and Teofane, Martin y Solar's Capricciosa corretta, Mayr's L'Avaro, Pasquini's La Forza d'amore, Scarlatti's Laodicea e Berenice, Vogler's Hermann von Unna, Winter's Helena und Paris, Zingarelli's Iphigenia in Aulide. (All these and others have been received since publication of our Catalogue of Dramatic Music.) Angelo da Piccicono's Fior angelico di musica, 1547; Faber-Aventinus's Musicae rudimenta, 1516; de Caus's Instruction harmonique, 1615; Cotellet's Collection des quintetti de Boccherini; Froschius's Rerum musicarum opusculum, 1535; Marco da Gagliano's Dafne, 1608; Guerson's Utilissime musicales regule, 1518; Hale's Social harmony, 1763; Hasse's Credo pieno in F maj. supposed autograph; Hugo Reutlingensis's Flores musicae, 1488; Jumilhac's La science . . ., 1673; Koswick's Com- Accessions

Publications

During the year a Catalogue of full scores of dramatic music has been issued. This has caused useful comment from the unexpected resources which it exhibits in a collection so recently developed.^a It may be followed by a catalogue of our full scores of modern orchestral music—a collection now approaching completeness.

^a As an example of such comment may be quoted the following from "Le Guide Musical," Bruxelles. (Sept. 6, 1908.)

"[Washington] Library of Congress. Dramatic music: catalogue of full scores, by O. G. Th. Sonneck, in-8° de 170 pages.

"Nous avons déjà signalé les efforts de M. Sonneck, chef du département de musique à la Bibliothèque nationale des Etats-Unis, à Washington, et les publications qu'il nous a envoyées, soit pour la division raisonnée des collections, soit pour le catalogue des nouvelles acquisitions. Comme l'argent ne manque jamais là-bas, les résultats sont superbes. Voici le catalogue des partitions d'orchestre (full scores), et il représente probablement la collection la plus considérable du monde entier. Non seulement on a drainé presque tout ce qu'on a pu obtenir dans les maisons d'éditions européennes (et ce n'est pas toujours facile; j'en pourrais citer qui s'y sont nettement opposées), et aussi acheté le plus de partitions anciennes possible, mais on a fait copier à la main nombre de manuscrits ou d'éditions rares et uniques. Cependant, M. Sonneck avertit que ceci n'est qu'un premier aperçu, qu'on achète encore constamment, et que la partie ancienne, surtout, sera très étendue. Je le crois sans peine: elle comporte pourtant déjà des documents de tout premier ordre, soit originaux, soit ainsi copiés tout exprès. H. de C."

DIVISION OF PERIODICALS

(From the report of the Chief, Mr. Guittard)

The congestion due to the bound files of newspapers still embarrasses, but relief is now assured in the new book stack the construction of which was authorized in the appropriation act for this year. The stack will fill completely the southeast inner courtyard, with a height identical with that of the present "south stack," of which it will be in effect but an extension. With a capacity of over 800,000 ordinary volumes, it will provide not merely for the newspapers and art folios (each in shelves of special design), but also for a considerable mass of books and pamphlets of the ordinary type. Its completion will, however, require at least a year and a half.

DIVISION OF PRINTS

(From the report of the Chief, Mr. Parsons)

The increase of the collection has been: By copyright, 16,151; by purchase, 6,904; by gift, 85; by transfer, 2,605; total, 25,745. The collection now numbers 281,615 pieces. Among the purchases have been:

(1) A series of Chinese engravings representing the vic-^{PRINTS:}tories of Kien-Lung, of which the Library has been fortunate ^{Purchases} in securing two sets—one engraved by native artists, one engraved in France from sketches sent from China.

(2) A collection of books, original wood blocks, and prints by Alexander Anderson (1775-1870), one of the important American wood engravers of the early nineteenth century.

(3) A collection of lithographs, formed by Mr. Charles H. Whitaker, of Boston, Mass. It consists of 687 lithographs, 25 volumes illustrated by well-known lithographers, and 12 books of reference on lithography. One hundred and fourteen lithographers are represented in the collection, the most important being Géricault, Bonington, Harding, Isabey, Delacroix, Charlet, Déveria, Raffet, Gavarni, Fantin-Latour, Haghe, Hall, Huet, Pennell, Prout, Nanteuil, Noël, Rops, Shannon, Varderhaert, Vernet, Ward, Way, and Whistler. The lithographers most largely represented are Rops (150), Géricault (49), Raffet (41), Gavarni (38), Fantin-Latour (29), Vernet (28), Shannon (19), Cabanel (18), Isabey (18), Charlet (17), Lane (15), Ward (12), Huet (11), and Whistler (10).

With material already in our possession and certain additions, the collection will serve in a study of lithography from the time of Géricault (1791-1824) to the present. Géricault was one of the first among the artists to make use of this process, invented in 1798 by Senefelder (1771-1834).

The illustrated volumes are by the well known lithographers, Haghe, Raffet, Prout, Harding, Walton, Shannon, Way, Madou, and Leech.

(4) About 6,500 photographs in continuation of a series already begun, useful for exhibit, for illustration, and for student use. The recent purchases cover particularly paintings in British galleries and subjects in English and German architecture.

A large collection of photographs of the western part of the United States, taken in the early seventies, was received by transfer from the Interior Department.

A special collection of the wood engravings of Mr. Timothy Cole was lent, for exhibition, by the Century Company.

The exhibits during the year have included several of photographs illustrating the history of Art and Architecture; of three-color process prints illustrating the work of American illustrators; of Hiroshige prints (from the Crosby S. Noyes collection); and of nineteenth century etchings. The Arundel Society prints have been permanently installed in wing frames.

SMITHSONIAN DEPOSIT

The effort to perfect the serial sets has been continued, with cordial assistance from the authorities of the Institution. The process, however, is necessarily a slow one.

BINDING

The number of volumes bound was 34,275. This number, although less than the number sent to the binderies during the preceding year (36,513), compares favorably with the number received back completed (30,600). Of the total, 34,275 items, 25,312 were bound in the Library branch, 8,963 in the main office. The endeavor, in the interest of economy, to differentiate materials in recognition of the difference in value, permanence, and use of the various classes continues.

CATALOGUING

(From the report of the chief, Mr. Hanson)

The total number of volumes catalogued was 123,828. In addition, 1,054 parts of volumes were added on the serial record and shelf lists of the Division, and 8,005 volumes were, after careful search and comparison, rejected as duplicates and turned over to the Order and Documents divisions.

The total number of volumes catalogued shows a decrease of 5,548 as against the preceding year. This is accounted for by the great amount of time which had to be devoted during practically the entire year, first by the Chief of the Division as Chairman of the Catalog Rules Committee of the American Library Association, to the Anglo-American agreement on rules; secondly, by the Chief of the Division and two of the assistants, to the compilation, editing, and printing of the first edition of the same rules. Another reason for the decrease is no doubt the losses sustained by this Division during the last few years on account of resignations, there having been no less than 36 resignations and 3 transfers during 1906 and 1907. The large number of assistants who have been called to better paying positions elsewhere seems to indicate that as the Library is becoming more and more a central cataloguing agency for the country, there is an increasing tendency on the part of other libraries to draw upon us for assistants trained in the methods of cataloguing which obtain here. As other institutions adopt the printed cards of this Library they no doubt find it an advantage to have some one at hand who has been specially trained in the rules and methods which obtain in the compilation of these entries.

The inducements offered to assistants who have resigned also indicate that while the salaries voted for the Library in 1897-1899 compared favorably with those of other libraries at that time, they are now considerably below those which obtain in the average American library. Under the circumstances this Division is becoming to some extent a training school where persons come for two or three years of experience at a low salary intending to accept the first promising offer from the outside. While this state of affairs may have its good features it naturally has a tendency to decrease the general efficiency of the Division and must materially reduce the output.

Cards filed Cards to the number of 704,907 were filed in the various catalogues of the Division, exclusive of the general Union catalogue for which no record is as yet available.

Recataloguing The following classes were completed in 1907-8: General societies (AS); Economic history. Organization and situation of agriculture and industries (HD); Land (HD); Labor (HD); Industries (HD); Public finance (HJ); Sociology (HM); Social reform (HN); Universities and colleges—Europe (LF); Universities and colleges—Asia, Africa, Oceania (LG); Theory of music (MT); Fiction, English and American (PZ); State Medicine. Public health. Medical climatology. Hospitals. Medical jurisprudence (RA); Practice of Medicine (RC); Gynecology and obstetrics (RG); Building construction (TH); Electrical engineering (TK); Chemical technology (TP); Photography (TR); Cook-books (TX715).

Recatalogued in part and under way General periodicals (AP) completed to letter M; Genealogy (CS); Directories, American local (F); Family, woman, etc. (HQ); Social pathology, hygiene (HV); Fine arts, General works (N); Manufactures (TS); Trades (TT).

Catalogue rules Much time has been expended on the compilation and printing of the joint rules agreed upon by committees of the American and British Library Associations. As Chairman of the American committee and editor of the first American edition of the Rules, the Chief of the Division has devoted a considerable part of his time to the preparation of copy and to seeing the Rules through the press. In order to settle definitely the various questions about which there was still some difference of opinion or uncertainty, he was delegated by the American Library Association to attend the annual meeting of the British Library Association at Glasgow, September 16-19, 1907. Consultations with the Catalog Rules Revision Committee of that Association resulted in a substantial agreement and paved the way for the printing of the first edition which appeared in August of the present year. As this work represents also the rules of the Library of Congress, it furnishes a guide to that section of its new catalogue which represents authors and titles.

The next problem to be attacked will be the preparation and printing of the List of subject headings. The Rules for the author and title catalogue were compiled in conjunction with the American Library Association, and therefore demanded many concessions and changes in the practice of the Library. To perfect the agreement between so many libraries and to harmonize the many varied interests and cataloguing traditions proved to be the work of several years. In preparing and printing the subject guide, on the other hand, while here again the Library may be called upon to make several concessions in order to facilitate agreement in headings between its own catalogue and that of the many libraries which now subscribe to the printed cards and which are naturally anxious to make use of the subject headings there indicated without extensive changes or modifications, there is not likely to be any such demand for general harmony as in the case of the author rules. The preparation of the guide to subjects should accordingly present fewer problems and be carried forward more expeditiously than was the compilation and editing of the Rules.

Special catalogues

During the past year considerable additions have been made to the catalogue of early Americana in the Library of Congress, described in the Librarian's report of 1906-7, page 57. In addition to books printed prior to 1800 note has also been taken of many imprints of a much later date. In some of the western states, for instance, books printed prior to 1870 may be considered as early imprints and are for that reason included in the list.

For an exhibition to be held at Buenos Aires a special catalogue of books in the Library which deal with the Argentine Republic has been prepared and forwarded. The catalogue consisted of almost 2,500 titles, on printed cards, arranged in the form of a dictionary catalogue. Additions to it are prepared from time to time as new titles turn up in course of recataloguing or as new accessions are received which deal with the country in question.

Cooperation in cataloguing among departmental libraries

One important library has been added to those already cooperating with the Library of Congress in the printing of catalogue cards, viz, that of the United States Bureau of Education. The record of titles printed in the different series for the present fiscal year stands as follows:

	Titles

CLASSIFICATION

The number of volumes classified was 145,889 (1906-7, 144,948; 1905-6, 137,738); reclassified, 76,273 (including 8,824 transfers; 1906-7, 76,679; transfers, 9,589); new accessions, 69,616 (1906-7, 68,155); shelf listed 119,119, of which 51,302 were new accessions (1906-7, shelf listed, 112,797; new accessions, 45,707).

The reclassified portion of the Library now contains in round numbers 713,000 volumes, viz: Class A (Polygraphy), 48,000; C-D (History), 78,000; E-F (America), 59,000; G (Geography), 15,000; H-J (Social sciences), 129,000; L (Education), 32,000; ML-MT (Music, literature, and theory), 12,000; N (Fine arts), 8,000; PZ (Fiction), 36,000; Q (Science), 103,000; R (Medicine), 32,000; S (Agriculture), 29,000; T (Technology), 55,000; U (Military science), 11,000; V (Naval science), 10,000; Z (Bibliography), 52,000; Congressional reference library, Incunabula, etc., 4,000.

Arrears.—Work is in progress on class B, Philosophy and religion (arrears ca. 60,000 vols.); on the remaining sections of C, Biography, Genealogy, Heraldry, etc. (20,000); J, Documents (20,000), and some remaining sections in Political science: Slavery, International law, etc. (8,000); N, Fine arts (8,000); various form classes AC, AP, AY, General collections, periodicals, yearbooks, directories, etc. (20,000); a few smaller classes, ancillary sciences, GR, Folklore, GT, Manners and customs, etc. (4,000). Two of the main groups remain untouched; they are class P, Language and literature (70,000), and K, Law (125,000).

DISTRIBUTION OF PRINTED CATALOGUE CARDS

(From the report of the Chief of the Card Section, Mr. Hastings)

During the year the number of subscribers has increased from 952 to 1,128.

The increase in the cash sale of cards during 1907-8, as compared with that of the previous year, has been about 16 per cent.

In the tabulation of the sale of cards given below the amount realized from subscription to proof sheets is included in the cash sales.

Pursuant to a decision of the Comptroller, dated March 31, 1908, a deduction of 10 per cent from the usual charge for cards must now be made on cards supplied to libraries of the United States Departments, and the amount remaining is credited to the Library of Congress, seven-tenths to its appropriation for salaries of assistants in the Card Section and three-tenths to its allotment for printing and binding. Several of the libraries which had expected to pay for cards as heretofore, by transfer of credits for printing and binding on the books of the Government Printing Office, found it impracticable to pay by the new method, and the charges against them were necessarily canceled. The amount given above under "Sale of cards to libraries of the United States Departments," represents the value of the cards which were actually paid for by transfer of credits. Under the former method of bookkeeping all of the cards printed for the Library of the United States Department of Agriculture and distributed for that Department by the Card Section were counted as sales. It is now impracticable to regard them as such. Although the number of cards supplied to or distributed for the libraries of the Departments was considerably larger this year than last, the figures do not show it for the reasons stated above.

During the year two additional depository sets have been supplied, one to the Kansas State Historical Library, the other to the Carnegie Library of Pittsburg, Pa.

Sets of cards necessary to complete files of proof-sheets cut to card size have been assigned to Missouri University Library and to Dartmouth College Library. The complete list of "proof-sheet depositories" is now as follows:

- Cornell University Library, Ithaca, N. Y.
- Dartmouth College Library, Hanover, N. H.
- Leland Stanford Junior University Library, Stanford University, Cal.
- Los Angeles Public Library, Los Angeles, Cal.
- Missouri University Library, Columbia, Mo.
- Wesleyan University Library, Middletown, Conn.

Libraries which have acquired this form of record of cards in stock of the Library of Congress seem convinced that it is for their use preferable to the full depository set, because it serves the same purpose and occupies much less space, the white proof-sheets being about two-fifths, the manila proof about three-fifths, as thick as card stock now used. Most of the proof-sheet depositories prefer the manila proof. A dozen sets of proof have been stored, so that any library not possessing a file of clipped proof-sheets and desiring to become a proof-sheet depository can purchase the set. The price for the set complete to date is about $200.

Partial depositories

Partial depository sets have been assigned to five additional departmental libraries during the year. The complete list of such partial depositories is now as follows (those added during the year are marked with an asterisk):

ARMY WAR COLLEGE:

Cards relating to military science and military history.

* BUREAU OF ENTOMOLOGY:

Cards relating to entomology.

* BUREAU OF FISHERIES:

Cards on fish, fisheries, marine zoology.

BUREAU OF SCIENCE (Manila, P. I.):

Cards for science, technology, anthropology, and ethnology.

* BUREAU OF STATISTICS (Department of Commerce and Labor):

Cards on economics, transportation, communication, commerce, prices, tariff, economic conditions, statistics.

BUREAU OF THE BIOLOGICAL SURVEY:

Cards on zoology and other topics related to the work of the Bureau.

BUREAU OF THE CENSUS:

Cards on sociology and selected topics in science and technology.

* CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION:

Cards relating to the conduct of the public service of the United States and foreign countries.

COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY:

Cards covering branches of science and technology related to the work of the Survey.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND LABOR:

Complete set of cards on sociology and bibliography.

ENGINEER SCHOOL (War Department):

Cards for military history and biography, military science, and certain groups in technology, science, and political science.

* FRANKFORD ARSENAL:

Cards for military science and related branches of science and technology.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY:

Cards covering such branches of science and technology as are related to the work of the Survey.

GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE:

Cards on medicine, psychology, and allied topics.

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS:

Cards relating to the Central and South American Republics.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION:

Cards for certain groups in sociology, economics, law, technology and Government documents relating to these subjects.

MILITARY ACADEMY (WEST POINT):

Cards for military history and biography, military science, and certain groups in science and technology.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS:

Cards relating to certain branches of science and technology.

NAVAL OBSERVATORY:

Cards for astronomy, mathematics, and physics.

NAVAL WAR COLLEGE:

Cards for military and naval history and biography, military and naval science, and international law.

NAVY GENERAL BOARD:

Cards for military and naval history and biography, military and naval science, international law, certain groups in political science, and geography.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT:

All cards relating to the postal service of the United States and other countries.

SUPERVISING ARCHITECT'S OFFICE:

All cards on architecture, building, engineering, and allied groups in technology.

WAR DEPARTMENT:

Complete set of cards on American history, and cards on subjects pertaining to the work of the War Department.

In December, 1907, the Library of the Bureau of Education began to submit copy for catalogue cards to be printed and distributed by the Library of Congress for publications of the Bureau and for new publications added to the Library of the Bureau. The addition of these cards will make the stock of cards on education much more complete. In addition to cards for monographs, analytical cards have also been printed for papers in the Annual Report of the National Education Association.

Bulletin 21 of the Card Section, published in January, 1908, contains a full statement as to the cards which are CARD SECTION being printed and distributed for the Library of the Bureau of Education.

The cards printed for libraries of the Departments, have on them the name of the library for which they are printed, and have a separate series of card numbers with an abbreviation for the name of the library prefixed to the number. Each library holds itself responsible for errors occurring on the cards printed in its series.

The list of libraries in the District of Columbia for which cards are now being printed, with the series designation, and the number of cards thus far printed in each series, is as follows:

(1) Library of the Department of Agriculture, "Agr" series..	11, 240
(2) Library of the United States Geological Survey, "GS" series	4, 597
(3) Washington Public Library, "W" series.....	768
(4) Army War College Library, "War" series	275
(5) Library of the Bureau of Education, "E" series.....	375
Total.....	17, 255

The demand for publications of the Card Section for use in library schools and summer training classes has continued, with the result that the second edition of the Handbook of Card Distribution is nearly exhausted. That this edition contains all the information requisite to intelligent ordering and use of the cards may be inferred from the fact that queries as to methods of ordering and using them have almost ceased.

PUBLICATIONS

The publications of the Library during the past year have been as follows:

Report of the Librarian of Congress for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907. 1907. 167 p. Plates. 25 cm. Cloth, 40 c.

They include free distribution to Courts, government offices, and designated depositories; also to foreign governments included in the system of International Exchange.

The publications of the Copyright Office are listed in the Report of the Register of Copyrights.

USE

This has continued normal, the number of readers remaining nearly constant, the number of books used fluctuating somewhat between long and short sessions of Congress, the recorded reference use tending to diminish as more material is opened to direct use by the reader without formality. The issue of books for use outside of the building increases steadily, the major portion of such issue being to government offices.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS AND OTHER GOVERNMENTAL LIBRARIES OF THE DISTRICT

In addition to the Library of Congress and the libraries of the Senate and House (the former almost entirely, and the latter chiefly, a collection of documents), there are over a score of libraries maintained by the Federal Government at Washington, with collections approximating as follows: (small office collections, over a hundred in number, are not included).

^a Books and pamphlets.

The aggregate of these twenty-six collections thus exceeds a million and a half pieces, and equals the number of books and pamphlets in the Library of Congress itself. Many of them are of high importance—some (as, the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office and that of the Geological Survey) preeminent or nearly so, in their special fields. All were begun and had their main development while the Library of Congress was still at the Capitol, primarily a legislative library, with an organization insufficient even to handle its own accumulations, far less than sufficient to make them useful to any but the immediate inquirer, and with neither equipment nor facilities to make its bibliographic work available to other institutions or to enter with these into relations of reciprocal service.

During the past decade this Library has changed in physique, in resources, and thus in opportunities for service:

1. It has now (a) ample space and suitable equipment for the accommodation and proper utilization of a comprehensive general collection; (b) considerable funds for the development of such a collection by purchase—and unexampled resources for adding to it through copyright and governmental exchange, and (c) an organization sufficient to develop, classify, and catalogue the material, and provide experts for its interpretation.

2. It is applying to its collection a scientific, elastic system of classification, whose schedules, laboriously wrought out for its own use, will be available in printed form to any other institution desiring to use them—and they will cover every department of literature.

It is compiling a catalogue of its collections, which, on printed cards, is available to other institutions.

It supplies, without charge, to other governmental libraries a copy of every catalogue card which it thus prints, indicating a book of possible interest to the departments or bureaus which those libraries are serving.

It supplies at cost, to such other libraries, extra copies of cards representing books in their collections also, which they may thus save the far greater expense of cataloguing independently.

*Departmental

It offers the facilities of its printing office to print cards compiled by them of books in their collections but not in its own—provided that the catalogue entry conforms to its rules as to form. It preserves copies of these cards to inform itself and other libraries concerned as to their resources, and thus, with its own cards furnished to them, to aid in the avoidance of duplication and in reciprocal service.

It also stands ready to promote these latter objects (a) by relieving those other libraries of accumulated material not necessary to their special work; (b) by supplying them with material necessary to complete defective sets essential to their work, and (c) by purchasing, at their instance, publications fundamental to their work, but to which their meager funds can not extend.

It lends freely to them, and even deposits with them for long periods, any material in its collections required for their work; and it delivers this material at their doors.

Its bibliographic service—in the compilation of reference lists and in the aid of specific research—is always at their disposal.

These abilities, and the altered status of the Library—become now national in aim and scope, though recognizing still a duty to the executive departments and scientific bureaus second only to its duty to Congress—should, it seems, not merely affect its relation with the other governmental libraries within the District, but tend to modify their own collections and aims. Recognition of this appears already in the conduct of certain of them; witness the following passages from the annual report just rendered, of Librarian Johnston, of the Bureau of Education:

“From the beginning of my service as librarian, September 3, 1907, the aim of the administration has been to make the library an integral part of the national library, meaning by the national library that group of libraries maintained by the National Government, of which the Library of Congress is the center. With this in view, the scope of the library's collections and service has been more narrowly defined than in the past.

"During the year the collections have been restricted to the literature of education and the cognate subjects of psychology and philosophy, together with a few necessary works of reference. The purchases have, moreover, been limited as far as possible to works not received by the Library of Congress through copyright deposits. In conformity with this policy there have been transferred to the Library of Congress and the public library of the District of Columbia, under authority of the act making appropriations for the legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government, approved February 25, 1903, 26,851 volumes, 15,512 pamphlets, and 16,241 periodical numbers, a total of 58,604 pieces. This constitutes one of the largest transfers of books in the history of American libraries, and has some significance, I believe, as a step in the development of the national library. It not only places these books where they will be more useful, but renders it possible to make more available the large collection which remains. It will also, I hope, stimulate our use of the collections of the Library of Congress.

* * * * *

"With a view to the improvement of the catalogues of pedagogical collections and in order to facilitate their cataloguing, the library began on January 1 to publish catalogue cards for current educational literature not copyrighted in the United States. These cards are printed and sold by the Library of Congress as a part of the service of its Card section. Books copyrighted in the United States are at present catalogued by the Library of Congress. It is now possible, therefore, for librarians to secure from Washington catalogue cards for almost any current publication relating to education.

[Information regarding methods of ordering these cards is given in the Library of Congress. Card section, Bulletin no. 21.] The cards are also useful as announcements of current publications; indeed, they constitute the most complete record of current pedagogical literature which exists.

"During the coming year all catalogue cards for works on education prepared in the library will be printed, so that with the development of the collections in the library and the completion of the recataloguing it should become possible to secure from the library an exact description of any pedagogical work of importance, whether a current publication or not.

"The cataloguers have undertaken, in addition to the preparation of a dictionary catalogue of the books in the library of the bureau, the preparation of a union catalogue of the more important pedagogical collections in other libraries in the United States. Cards for books in the library of the bureau and cards for books in other libraries are filed in one alphabet. A large part of the cards for books in the Library of Congress have already been filed under authors and added entries. During the coming year it is expected that cards for books in the John Crerar Library will be filed. This union catalogue should be useful to students wishing to learn where a rare book or edition may be found. It is also of use to us in reducing to a minimum the purchase by the Government of unnecessary duplicates."

Mr. Johnston's definition of "the national library" as "that group of libraries maintained by the National Government of which the Library of Congress is the center," would be entirely acceptable to the Library of Congress. Its adoption is not, however, a necessary preliminary to the relations required by considerations of individual economy and efficiency. The department and bureau libraries have for the most part grown up with as little reference to the Library of Congress as to one another. Its new resources and availability suggest:

(1) That they should now limit their collections to their respective special fields; that they should eliminate accumulated material outside of these fields, and that they should hereafter acquire and maintain no book that will be sufficiently available if procurable from the Library of Congress within a half day of the demand.

(2) That they should secure prompt and explicit information as to what material exists in the Library of Congress of possible interest to the work of their Bureau, and should in return supply to that Library similar information as to the contents of their own collections.

(3) That they should recommend to the Library of Congress the acquisition of material (even very special in character) fundamental in their work, but beyond their means.

(4) That, so far as practicable, they should utilize the administrative work of the Library of Congress by conforming their own systems of classification, of cataloguing, and of notation to those adopted by it. In this way alone can they take full benefit of its printed cards, or through its printing office, give to it and to other institutions the benefit of their own.

The above are the theoretic considerations. But the practical application of them must vary greatly. Where, Relations with Departmental Libraries for instance, they would affect much the collections of the Bureau of Education (whose work involves so considerably general literature) they might affect little the collections of the Surgeon-General's Office, whose work is special in the literature of medicine and surgery, which the Library of Congress avoids except as it comes from copyright. Similarly a scheme of classification suited to a general collection such as that of the Library of Congress—even though of large dimensions—may not be sufficiently detailed for a

libraries professional.^a

Such a use quite commonly claims special recognition in the form and method of catalogue entry, but not with equal justice; for a form of entry representing, as does now that of the Library of Congress, the best expert judgment of the American Library Association, after nearly a decade of discussion, and which is substantially acceptable to the Library Association of the United Kingdom, is not likely to be less lucid than one devised by a special library for its particular use.

When, however, the question is not of the "author entry," but of the "subject headings" (for the subject entries), agreement is not so easy, the preferences of the specialist being often at variance with the practice of the cataloguer.

Where, moreover, a system of classification and a system of cataloguing have been established and applied to an existing collection, their continuance may be more profitable than the substitution at great expense of other systems, however superior.

Evidences of relations newly developing between the Library of Congress and the other government libraries at Washington are now sufficient to have suggested this reference to the subject. Among them may be noted these:

1. Under the enabling act of February 25, 1903, to which Mr. Johnston refers and which applied to the departments

^a There should seem no reason, however, why a general scheme of classification, otherwise unobjectionable, should not be used as a basis for a more special and particular one, the schedules merely being carried into further particulars for which the notation, if scientific, would allow. Identity in the main groups and symbols would in itself be a gain.

and bureaus generally,^a no less than 108,071 books and pamphlets have thus far been transferred from them to the Library of Congress (besides important manuscript collections from the State and other departments). Of the books and pamphlets about 50 per cent became permanent additions to its collections, 25 per cent were taken by the Public Library of the District, and the remainder were set aside in the "duplicate" collection of the Library of Congress for purposes of exchange.

2. The majority of books issued from the Library for use outside its walls are issued to the departments or bureaus or to officials connected with them. We have, however, frequent evidence that these officials do not generally realize that the privilege is theirs or how readily and with how little effort it may be exercised.

3. Practically every departmental or bureau library now possesses a set of printed cards representing books in the Library of Congress (so far as cards for such books are yet printed) which may affect the work of that department or bureau. [See the list on pp. 52-53.]

4. Four of the federal libraries [Agriculture, Geological Survey, Education, Army War College] and the Public Library of the District now send to us to be put into print cards compiled by them for books in their collections, but not in ours. Incidentally this means that those libraries have adopted a form of catalogue entry identical with our own.

^a The provision reads as follows:

"The head of any Executive Department or bureau or any commission of the Government is hereby authorized from time to time to turn over to the Librarian of Congress, for the use of the Library of Congress, any books, maps, or other material in the Library of the Department, bureau, or commission no longer needed for its use, and in the judgment of the Librarian of Congress appropriate to the uses of the Library of Congress."

5. At least one library (Bureau of Education) proposes immediate application of our system of classification to its own collections, thus saving duplication of work as to books duplicated in either collection and in other ways promoting economy and reciprocity.

6. Suggestions for the purchase by the Library of Congress of books required for the work of a bureau, but beyond its means, are reaching us, particularly from the Department of Agriculture. But the privilege is as yet by no means generally availed of.

7. The Library of Congress occasionally recommends to the librarian of a department or bureau the purchase of some book special to the work of the department or bureau and assumed to be within its means.

THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE LIBRARY
BUILDING AND GROUNDS

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
Washington, D. C., December 7, 1908

SIR: I have the honor to submit my report on the care and maintenance of the Library Building and Grounds, the extension of the equipment to meet the growing necessities of the building, and the disbursement of all funds for the same and for the expenses of the entire Library, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908.

This report is rendered, as usual, in connection with that of the Librarian.

For the care, repair, and service of the building and its mechanical apparatus during the year, the operations did not materially vary from those of the previous year, as described in the last annual report, and there was no interruption in the continuity or uniformity of the service. The use of the building for the purposes of the Library was likewise quite similar in character, quantity, and regularity to that of the previous year.

VISITORS TO THE LIBRARY BUILDING

The usual report of visitors and users of the Library is shown for the past year in the following table:

Total..... 32,165.53

FURNITURE, SHELVING, INCLOSURES, ETC.

The appropriation for these purposes was $40,000, and its expenditure was mainly for permanent equipment and outfitting, as follows:

Eight double-faced steel map cases.....	$8,800.00
Card catalogue cases, file cases, and trays.....	7,093.50
Steel storage cases for cards, in distribution of card indexes.....	4,932.19
Insurance map cases.....	498.00
Miscellaneous furniture, including tables, stands, cases, window shades, hardware, etc.....	3,354.07
Inclosures and screens.....	4,864.95
Book trucks and wheels for same.....	2,835.00
Typewriters, repairing, etc.....	2,129.61
Repairing and fitting of miscellaneous furniture, including labor and materials.....	1,904.71
Carpets, rugs, and runners.....	1,266.08
Exhibition cases.....	782.00

Vacuum dusting apparatus.....	$731. 30
Newspaper files.....	375. 00
Painting and electrical work of book stack, east main attic.....	353. 90
Traveling expenses.....	43. 15
Freight and drayage.....	11. 18
Total.....	39, 974. 64

In this connection it is most gratifying to report that provision was made in the appropriation act approved May 22, 1908, to meet the need for additional shelving for books and bound newspapers described at length in my last annual report. The paragraph of the act is as follows:

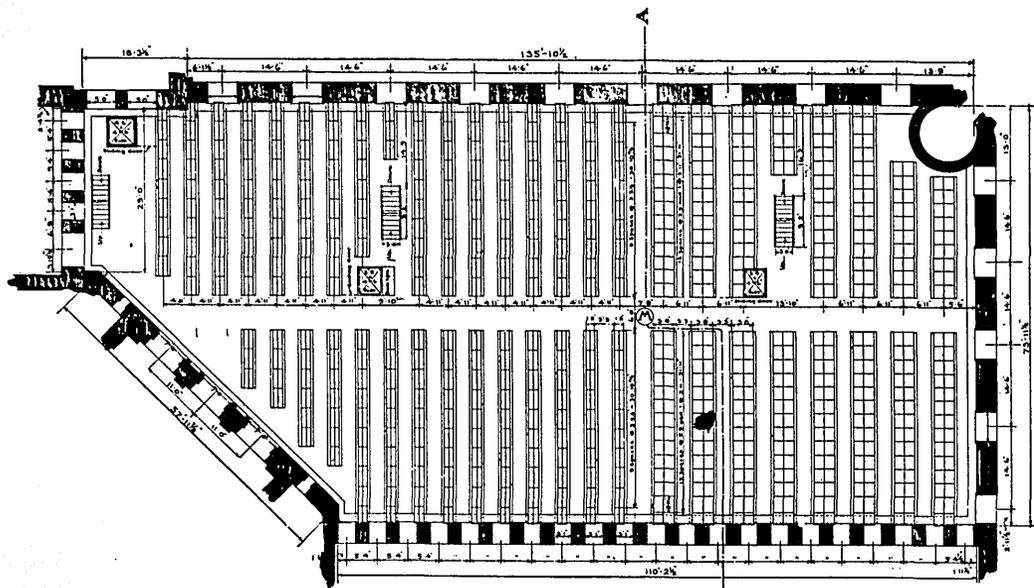

“Toward the construction, mechanical equipment, electric lighting, and roofing of a stack of shelving for bound newspapers and books in the southeast court of the Library building, to cost not exceeding three hundred and twenty thousand dollars; one hundred thousand dollars.”

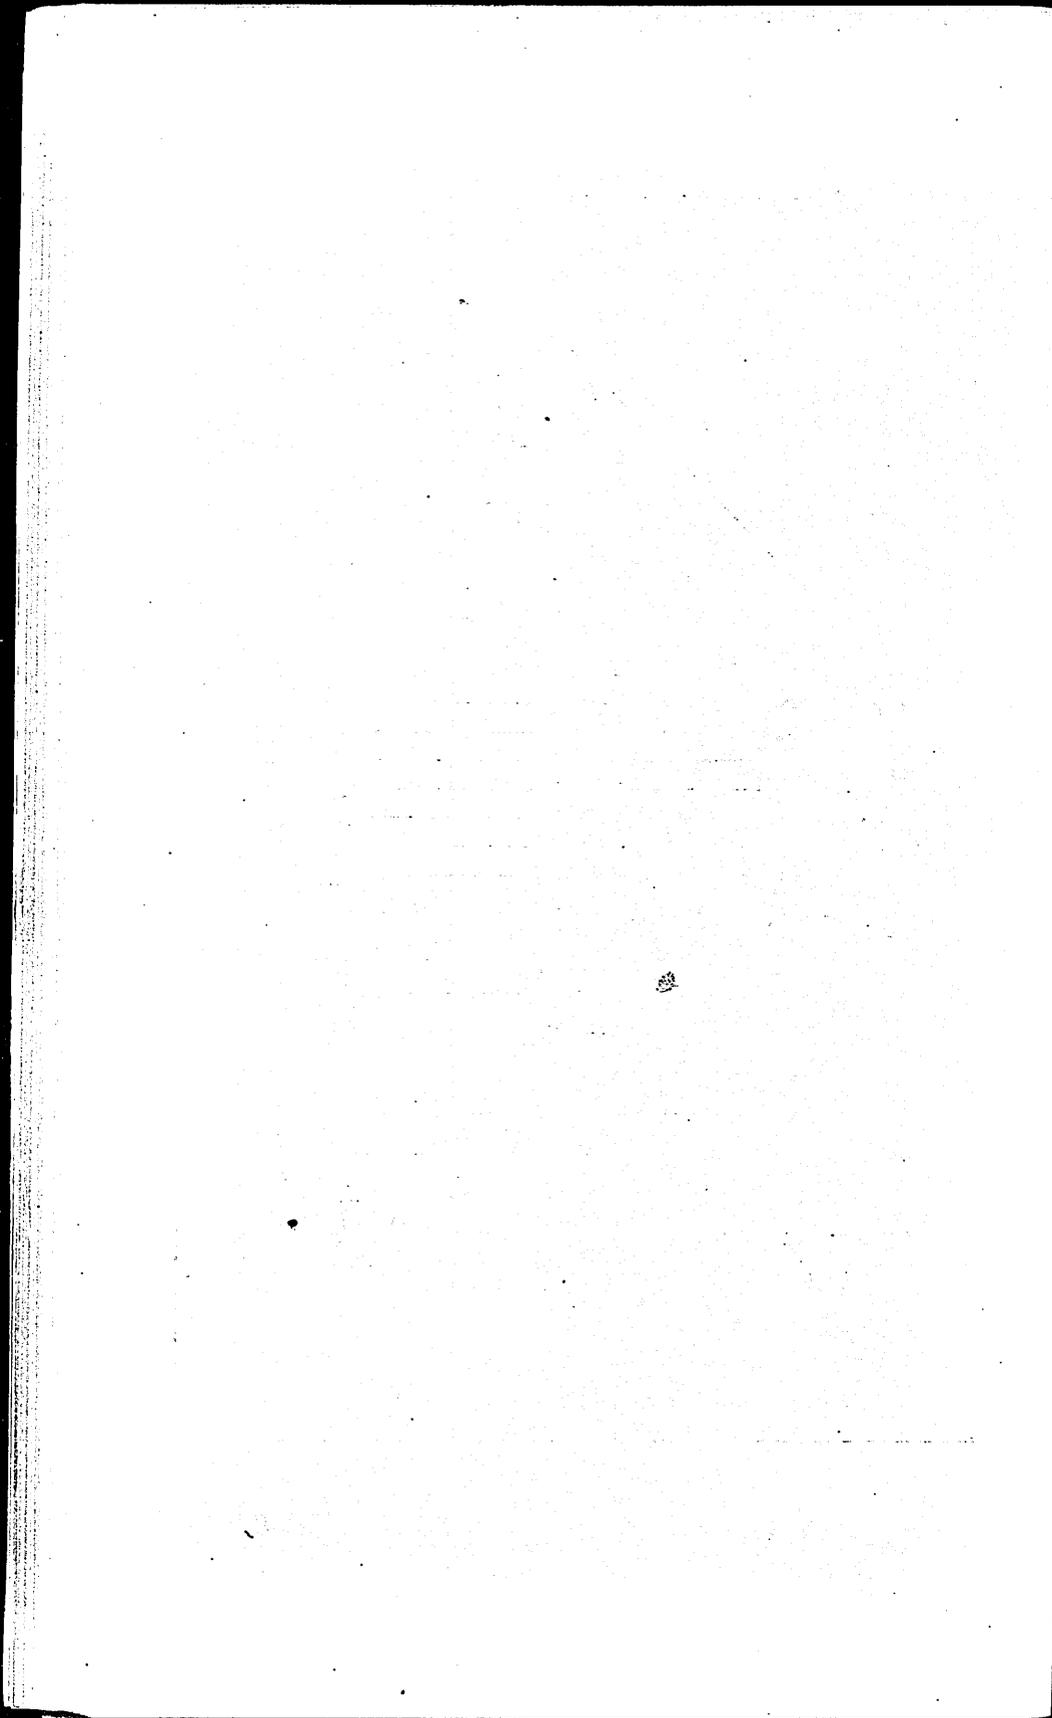

In accordance with this act a book stack of ten stories has been designed in detail, including most of the necessary mechanical equipment, and a contract has been already entered into, after an advertised competition, for the construction of the complete structure, excepting the heating and ventilation, the electric lighting, and some minor apparatus, which will be taken up in due season.

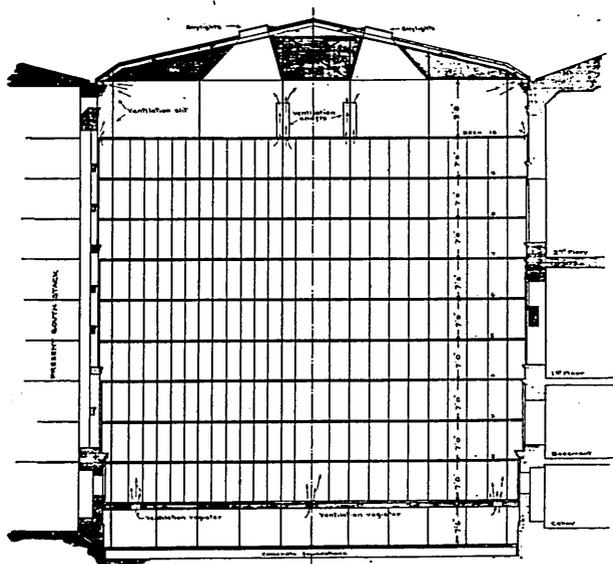

The design follows the principles laid down in my last annual report for an artificially lighted book stack which will also be similar and harmonious with the existing type of stack shelving already in the building—constructed of steel and iron with white marble decks. It will be in ten stories and provide space for assorting periodicals, newspapers, etc., as illustrated by the accompanying cross section and typical floor plan.

Appendix II

REPORT OF THE REGISTER OF COPYRIGHTS FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1907-8

Washington, D. C., July 3, 1908

SIR: The copyright business and the work of the Copyright Office for the fiscal year from July 1, 1907, to June 30, 1908, inclusive, are summarized as follows:

RECEIPTS

balance of $2,323.44, representing trust funds and unfinished business, was on hand July 1, 1907, making a total of $87,365.47 to be accounted for. Of this amount the sum of $2,922.84 was refunded, having been sent to the Copyright Office as excess fees or as fees for articles not registrable, and $178.50 was applied for subscriptions to the Catalogue of Copyright Entries, leaving a net balance of $84,264.13. The balance carried over to July 1, 1908, was $1,876.63 (representing trust funds, $1,609.90, and total unfinished business since July 1, 1897—eleven years—$266.73), leaving for fees applied during the fiscal year 1907-8, $82,387.50.

EXPENDITURES

The appropriation made by Congress for salaries in the Copyright Office for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, was $75,300. Salaries
The total expenditure for salaries was $74,784.29, or $7,603.21 less than the net amount of fees earned and paid into the Treasury during the corresponding year. The expenditure for supplies, except furniture, including stationery and other articles, and postage on foreign mail matter, etc., was $1,182.90.

The copyright fees received and paid into the United States Treasury during the last eleven years, from July 1, 1897, to June 30, 1908, amount to $774,606, while the sum used of the appropriations for salaries during that period Copyright fees was $651,881.55, leaving an excess of fees over appropriations used for service for the eleven years of $122,724.45.

Copyright deposits

During these same eleven years the articles received as deposits amount to the grand total of 1,936,050 pieces, including two copies each of 237,927 books, pamphlets, leaflets, and periodical contributions; 11,068 dramatic compositions; 207,248 separate numbers of periodicals; 235,472 musical compositions; 17,938 maps and charts; 76,068 engravings, cuts, and prints; 21,554 chromos and lithographs; 143,725 photographs; and 389 miscellaneous articles. In addition to the above, 31,891 photographs were deposited to identify the same number of original works of art—paintings, drawings, and statuary—of which the descriptions had been filed. Many of these articles are of considerable value. During the fiscal year 796 separate works were deposited under the Act of March 3, 1905, to secure an ad interim term of protection of one year in the case of books printed abroad in foreign languages. Among these were many valuable scientific works and some expensive books on art.

COPYRIGHT ENTRIES AND FEES

Registrations

The entries of titles for the fiscal year numbered 119,742. Of these entries 108,297 were titles of the productions of citizens or residents of the United States, and 11,445 were titles of works by foreigners. The fees for these entries were: United States, $54,148.50; foreign, $11,445, or a total of $65,593.50.

Certificates.

Of the foreign entries 2,566 were with certificates, and of the United States entries 27,614, or a total of 30,180 certificates, at fees amounting to $15,090. In addition, 1,914 copies of record were furnished for $957 in fees; assignments to the number of 683 were recorded and certified, at a charge of $708; and search fees charged to the amount of $39. The total copyright fees for the year amounted to $82,387.50. The details of the Copyright Office business and applied fees are set out in Exhibits A, B, and C.

The number of entries in each class from July 1, 1907, to June 30, 1908, as compared with the number of entries made in the previous year, is shown in Exhibit F.

COPYRIGHT DEPOSITS

The various articles deposited in compliance with the copyright law, which have been received for, stamped, credited, indexed, and catalogued during the fiscal year, amount to 221,722. The number of these articles in each class for the eleven fiscal years is shown in Exhibit G and indicates a grand total of 1,936,050 articles received in the eleven years.

Articles deposited

COPYRIGHT CATALOGUE AND INDEX

The permanent title-index cards for the fiscal year number 149,490. After being first used as the copy for the printed catalogue, these cards are added to the permanent card indexes of the copyright entries, which now number a total of over 1,680,000 cards.

Index cards

The publication of the Catalogue of Copyright Entries as required by law has been continued, substantially without change.

Copyright Catalogue, new series

The numbers printed for each of the four parts of the Catalogue are so prepared that they will bind up at the end of the year into separate volumes, which are separately indexed according to subject-matter. Yearly subscriptions are taken for each part as follows: Part I, Books, pamphlets, dramatic compositions, and maps and charts, $2; Part II, Periodicals, $1; Part III, Musical compositions, $2; Part IV, Engravings, cuts and prints, chromos and lithographs, photographs, and the descriptions of original works of art—paintings, drawings, and sculpture—$1.

CIRCULARS

The customary "Annual Statement," setting out in condensed form the statistics of the copyright business for the calendar year 1907, was printed on January 6, 1908. A revised edition of Bulletin No. 1, containing the text of the copyright law now in force, with notes of the new copyright treaties negotiated during the year, was also printed.

CONDITION OF COPYRIGHT OFFICE WORK

(a) Current work

At this date (July 3, 1908) the remittances received up to the third mail of the day have been recorded and acknowledged. The account books of the bookkeeping division are written up and posted to June 30, and the accounts rendered to the Treasury Department are settled up to and including the month of June, while earned fees to June 30, inclusive, have been paid into the Treasury.

All copyright applications received up to and including June 30 have been passed upon and refunds made. The total unfinished business for the full eleven years from July 1, 1897, to June 30, 1908, amounts to but $266.73.

At the close of business on July 3, 1908, the titles for record had been dated, classified, and numbered to July 2 (inclusive) for books and periodicals and to July 1 for all other classes, and all titles had been indexed up to and including June 30.

The articles of all classes deposited had been stamped, catalogued, and credited up to the receipts of June 30, inclusive.

The certificate and noncertificate entries had been recorded to June 30, inclusive, and certificates and notices of entry to the same date made, revised, and mailed.

(b) Copyright business prior to July 1, 1897

Articles deposited

Credited articles to the number of 34,782 (including 426 pamphlets, 19,185 periodicals, 14,886 musical compositions, and 285 miscellaneous articles) have been filed away under year and number. In the work of crediting deposits, 15,979 articles were handled, and 15,328 articles (including in part 14,830 musical compositions and 322 pamphlets) were credited and filed, those desired by the Library being forwarded to the shelves for use. In the case of 651 articles, identification and credit could not be made, and they were accordingly indexed and (except those desired by the Library) filed for convenient reference.

Titles to the number of 116,776, entered prior to July 1, 1897, but heretofore filed only in rough bundles, have been collated, arranged, and permanently filed.

Uncleared depositsUncleared deposits

Of the uncleared deposits accumulated in the Copyright Office prior to July 1, 1897, there still remains a total of 73,081 articles. Of these there are 8,655 articles which, after careful examination, it has not been possible to credit upon any entries made prior to the date of their receipt. The remaining 64,426 articles (arranged by subjects), consisting of 34,444 pamphlets and leaflets, 8,020 periodical numbers, 18,993 pieces of music, and 2,969 posters, still remain to be given further examination in the hope of discovering corresponding entries of titles upon which to credit them.

COPYRIGHT LEGISLATION AND INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT RELATIONS

I. Proposed legislationProposed legislation

In my last year's report the record of proposed copyright legislation was carried down to the adjournment of the Fifty-ninth Congress. In the first session of the Sixtieth Congress the consolidated copyright bill was reintroduced in texts differing from each other in important particulars. Mr. Currier, Chairman of the House Committee on Patents,

Bills introduced promptly presented, on December 2, 1907, his former reported bill, with some amendments (H. R. bill 243).^a Senator Kittredge, on retiring from the chairmanship of the Senate Committee on Patents, was succeeded by Senator Smoot as chairman of that committee, who brought in a bill representing the views of the former minority of the committee, on December 16, 1907 (S. bill 2499),^b while Senator Kittredge reintroduced on December 18, 1907, his reported bill, with some amendments (S. bill 2900).^c On January 6, 1908, Mr. Barchfeld, a member of the House Committee on Patents, submitted a bill embodying the views of the minority of that committee (H. R. bill 11794).^d

Public hearings on the proposed copyright legislation were held before the Committees on Patents of the Senate and House of Representatives on March 26, 27, and 28, 1908, and the stenographic report was printed with a general index prepared in the Copyright Office, to include the three volumes of reports of hearings on the copyright bill, June 6-9, 1906; December 7, 8, 10, and 11, 1906; and March 26-28, 1908.^e

Following these public hearings, revised and amended texts of the consolidated copyright bill were introduced by members of the House Committee on Patents as follows: By Mr. Washburn on May 4 (calendar day May 5), 1908

^a 1907 (December 2).—A bill to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting copyright. Presented by Mr. Currier. H. R. bill No. 243. Printed, 33 pp. 4°. [Referred to the Committee on Patents.]

^b 1907 (December 16).—A bill to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting copyright. Presented by Mr. Smoot. Senate bill No. 2499. Printed, 33 pp. 4°. [Read twice and referred to the Committee on Patents.]

^c 1907 (December 18).—A bill to consolidate and revise the Acts respecting copyright. Presented by Mr. Kittredge. Senate bill No. 2900. Printed, 35 pp. 4°. [Read twice and referred to the Committee on Patents.]

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section three of the Act of March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, amending section [forty-nine] hundred and fifty-six of the Revised Statutes of the United States, be amended by inserting, after the words "Provided, That in the case of a book, photograph, chromo, or lithograph," the following words, "except the original text of a book of foreign origin in a language or languages other than English."

SEC. 2. That all laws or parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

No action by Congress was secured during the first session of the Sixtieth Congress on any of the copyright bills. A sub-committee of the House Committee on Patents, of five members, was appointed to give consideration to the various copyright bills and to report to the full committee before the Christmas holidays at the next session.^b

II. Copyright treaties

At the Second Pan-American Congress, held in Mexico in 1902, a copyright convention was concluded between the United States and the various Central American and South American States, and was signed on January 27 of that year by the representatives of the United States present. The ratification of this treaty was advised by the Senate on January 31, 1908, and it was ratified by the President on March 16 and proclaimed on April 9, 1908. Article 15 of the convention provides that it shall go into effect between the signatory States that ratify it three months from the day they communicate their ratifications to the Mexican Government. Of the seventeen countries whose plenipotentiaries signed the treaty in 1902, ratifications have since been deposited, as required by Article 15, by Guatemala on April 25, 1902; Salvador on May 19, 1902; Costa Rica on June 28, 1902; Honduras on July 14, 1904; Nicaragua on August 13, 1904; and the United States on March 31, 1908. The treaty therefore went into effect as between the United States and the five countries named on July 1, 1908.

The text of this treaty is as follows:

Convention to protect Literary and Artistic Property, signed at Mexico, January 27, 1902

*Pan-American
copyright treaty,

ART. 1. The signatory States constitute themselves into a Union for the purpose of recognizing and protecting the rights of literary and artistic property, in conformity with the stipulations of the present Convention.

ART. 2. Under the term "Literary and Artistic works" are comprised books, manuscripts, pamphlets of all kinds, no matter what subject they may treat of and what may be the number of their pages; dramatic or melodramatic works; choral music and musical compositions, with or without words; designs, drawings, paintings, sculpture, engravings, photographic works; astronomical and geographical globes; plans, sketches, and plastic works relating to geography or geology, topography or architecture, or any other science; and, finally, every production in the literary and artistic field which may be published by any method of impression or reproduction.

ART. 3. The copyright to literary or artistic work, consists in the exclusive right to dispose of the same, to publish, sell and translate the same, or to authorize its translation, and to reproduce the same in any manner, either entirely or partially.

The authors belonging to one of the signatory countries, or their assigns, shall enjoy in the other signatory countries, and for the time stipulated in Article 5, the exclusive right to translate their works, or to authorize their translation.

ART. 4. In order to obtain the recognition of the copyright of a work, it is indispensable that the author or his assigns or legitimate representative, shall address a petition to the official Department, which each government may designate, claiming the recognition of such right, which petition must be accompanied by two copies of his work, said copies to remain in the proper Department.

If the author, or his assigns, should desire that his copyright be recognized in any other of the signatory countries, he shall attach to his petition a number of copies of his work, equal to that of the countries he may therein designate. The said department shall distribute the copies mentioned among those countries, accompanied by a copy of the respective certificate, in order that the copyright of the author may be recognized by them.

Any omissions which the said Department may incur in this respect, shall not give the author, or his assigns, any rights to present claims against the State.

ART. 5. The authors who belong to one of the signatory countries, or their assigns, shall enjoy in the other countries the rights which their respective laws at present grant, or in the future may grant, to their own citizens, but such right shall not exceed the term of protection granted in the country of its origin.

For the works composed of several volumes, which are not published at the same time, as well as for bulletins or instalments of publications of literary or scientific societies, or of private parties, the term of property shall commence to be counted from the date of publication of each volume, bulletin or instalment.

ART. 6. The country in which a work is first published, shall be considered as the country of its origin, or, if such publication takes place simultaneously in several of the signatory countries, the one whose laws establish the shortest period of protection shall be considered as the country of its origin.

ART. 7. Lawful translations shall be protected in the same manner as original works. The translators of works in regard to which there exists no guaranteed right of property, or the right of which may have become extinguished, may secure the right of property for their translations, as established in Article 3, but they shall not prevent the publication of other translations of the same work.

ART. 8. Newspaper articles may be reproduced, but the publication from which they are taken must be mentioned, and the name of the author given, if it should appear in the same.

ART. 9. Copyright shall be recognized in favor of the persons whose names, or acknowledged pseudonyms are stated in the respective literary or artistic work or in the petition to which Article 4 of this Convention refers, excepting case of proof to the contrary.

ART. 10. Addresses delivered or read in deliberative assemblies, before the Courts of Justice and in public meetings, may be published in the newspaper press without any special authorization.

ART. 11. The reproduction in publications devoted to public instruction or chrestomathy of fragments of literary or artistic works, confers no right of property, and may therefore be freely made in all the signatory countries.

ART. 12. All unauthorized indirect use of a literary or artistic work which does not present the character of an original work, shall be considered as an unlawful reproduction.

It shall be considered in the same manner unlawful to reproduce, in any form, an entire work, or the greater part of the same, accompanied by notes or commentaries, under the pretext of literary criticism or of enlargement or complement of an original work.

ART. 13. All fraudulent works shall be liable to sequestration in the signatory countries in which the original work may have the right of legal protection, without prejudice to the indemnities or punishments, to which the falsifiers may be liable according to the laws of the country, in which the fraud has been committed.

ART. 14. Each one of the Governments of the signatory countries shall remain at liberty to permit, exercise vigilance over, or prohibit, the circulation, representation and exposition of any work or production, in respect to which the competent authorities shall have power to exercise such right.

ART. 15. The present Convention shall take effect between the signatory States that ratify it, three months from the day they communicate their ratification to the Mexican Government, and shall remain in force among all of them until one year from the date it is denounced by any of said States. The notification of such denouncement shall be addressed to the Mexican Government and shall only have effect in so far as regards the country which has given it.

ART. 16. The Governments of the signatory States, when approving the present Convention, shall declare whether they accept the adherence to the same by the nations which have had no representation in the Second International American Conference.

Convention between the United States and Japan

A Copyright Convention between the United States and Japan was proclaimed on May 17, 1906. This treaty and the corresponding treaty to secure Patents and Trade-Marks have been supplemented by two additional treaties with Japan to extend the protection for Patents, Trade-Marks, and Copyrights to China and Korea. These Conventions signed at Washington May 19 and ratified June 2, 1908, provide as follows:^a Treaty between the United States and Japan for Protection in China

Treaty between United States and Japan for protection in China, May 19, 1908

ART. 1. Inventions, designs and trade marks duly patented or registered by citizens or subjects of one High Contracting Party in the appropriate office of the other Contracting Party shall have in all parts of China the same protection against infringement by citizens or subjects of such other Contracting Party as in the dominions and possessions of such other Contracting Party.

^aSince the above report was written these treaties have been proclaimed, on August 11, 1908, and are in force from August 16, 1908.

ART. 2. The citizens or subjects of each of the two High Contracting Parties shall enjoy in China the protection of copyright for their works of literature and art as well as photographs to the same extent as they are protected in the dominions and possessions of the other party.

ART. 3. In case of infringement in China by a citizen or subject of one of the two High Contracting Parties of any invention, design, trade mark or copyright entitled to protection in virtue of this convention the aggrieved party shall have in the competent territorial or consular courts of such Contracting Party the same rights and remedies as citizens or subjects of such Contracting Party.

ART. 4. Each High Contracting Party engages to extend to the citizens or subjects of the other Contracting Party the same treatment in China in the matter of protection of their commercial names as they enjoy in the dominions and possessions of such Contracting Party under the convention for the protection of industrial property signed at Paris March 20, 1883. "Hong" marks shall be considered to be commercial names for the purpose of this convention.

ART. 5. Citizens of possessions belonging to the United States and subjects of Korea shall have in China the same treatment under the present convention as citizens of the United States and subjects of Japan respectively.

ART. 6. It is mutually agreed between the High Contracting Parties that the present convention shall be enforced so far as applicable in any other country in which either Contracting Party may exercise extraterritorial jurisdiction.

All rights growing out of the present convention shall be recognized in the insular and other possessions and leased territories of the High Contracting Parties and all legal remedies provided for the protection of such rights shall be duly enforced by the competent courts.

ART. 7. Any person amenable to the provisions of this convention who possesses at the time the present convention comes into force merchandise bearing an imitation of a trade mark owned by another person and entitled to protection under said convention shall remove or cancel such false trade mark or withdraw such merchandise from market in China within six months from the date of the enforcement of this convention.

ART. 8. Unauthorized reproductions by the citizens or subjects of one High Contracting Party prior to the operation of this convention of the works of literature and art as well as photographs of the citizens or subjects of the other Contracting Party published after the 10th day of May, 1906, and entitled to protection in virtue of this convention shall be withdrawn from sale or circulation in China within one year from the date of the enforcement of this convention.

ART. 9. The present convention shall be ratified and the ratifications thereof shall be exchanged at Tokyo as soon as possible. It shall come into force together with the convention relative to the protection of inventions, designs, trade marks and copyrights in Korea, ten days after such exchange of ratifications.

Treaty between the United States and Japan for Protection in Korea

Treaty between the United States and Japan for protection in Korea, May 19, 1908

ART. 1. The Japanese Government shall cause to be enforced in Korea simultaneously with the operation of this convention, laws and regulations relative to inventions, designs, trade marks and copyrights similar to those which now exist in Japan.

These laws and regulations are to be applicable to American citizens in Korea equally as to Japanese and Korean subjects. In case the existing laws and regulations of Japan referred to in the preceding paragraph shall hereafter be modified, those laws and regulations enforced in Korea shall also be modified according to the principle of such new legislation.

ART. 2. The Government of the United States of America engages that in case of the infringement by American citizens of inventions, designs, trade marks or copyrights entitled to protection in Korea, such citizens shall in these respects be under the exclusive jurisdiction of the Japanese courts in Korea, the extraterritorial jurisdiction of the United States being waived in these particulars.

ART. 3. Citizens of possessions belonging to the United States shall have in respect to the application of the present convention the same treatment as citizens of the United States.

ART. 4. Korean subjects shall enjoy in the United States the same protection as native citizens in regard to inventions, designs, trade marks and copyrights upon the fulfillment of the formalities prescribed by the laws and regulations of the United States.

ART. 5. Inventions, designs, trade marks and copyrights duly patented or registered in Japan by citizens of the United States prior to the enforcement of the laws and regulations mentioned in Article 1 hereof shall without further procedure be entitled under the present convention to the same protection in Korea as is or may hereafter be there accorded to the same industrial and literary properties similarly patented or registered by Japanese or Korean subjects.

Inventions, designs, trade marks and copyrights duly patented or registered in the United States by citizens or subjects of either High Contracting Party or by Korean subjects prior to the operation of the present convention shall similarly be entitled to patent or registration in Korea without the payment of any fees, provided that said inventions, designs, trade marks and copyrights are of such a character as to permit of their patent or registration under the laws and regulations above-mentioned and provided further that such patent or registration is effected within a period of one year after this convention comes into force.

ART. 6. The Japanese Government engages to extend to American citizens the same treatment in Korea in the matter of protection of their commercial names as they enjoy in the dominions and possessions of Japan under the convention for the protection of industrial property signed at Paris March 20, 1883.

"Hong" marks shall be considered to be commercial names for the purpose of this convention

ART. 7. The present convention shall be ratified and the ratifications thereof shall be exchanged at Tokyo as soon as possible. It shall come into force ten days after such exchange of ratifications.

Respectfully submitted

Appendix III

DIVISION OF MANUSCRIPTS

(Report by Worthington C. Ford, Chief of the Division)

See also pp. 20-24 of this Report

There have been two important gifts of manuscript collections during the past fiscal year, and two bequests of such have become effective. MANUSCRIPTS:
GIFTS: Innes papers

The gift of the Papers of Harry Innes by Mr. George D. Todd, of Louisville, Ky., stands first in importance in the historical value of the papers themselves. Innes was of Virginia origin, but his public career was largely spent in Kentucky, with the early legal annals of which his name is closely associated. He held high judicial offices at critical times, when the Spanish intrigues sought to separate Kentucky from the Union and when Burr's ambitions looked to the establishment of an independent State to the southward—one carved out of Spanish territory. For a certain period of the history of the Middle West these Innes Papers are invaluable, and while the sixteen volumes now given to the Library contain what must be only a part of the original collection, the remnant is notable on one aspect of that history. To the history of Virginia in the war of independence they contribute not a little, for Innes was one of the agents to receive the contributions levied in kind, in cattle, grain, and other produce—a form of taxation made necessary by the disappearance of the paper bills of credit—the only circulating medium then in use. There are a large number of returns and issues made under this cumbersome form of obtaining the means of feeding the army—a phase of an economy of the war but little studied in the past because of the lack of proper material. There are also the papers relating to the trial of Aaron Burr and the arrest of Blennerhasset; the proceedings of the

Innes papers

Democratic Society of Kentucky, which sought to obtain the free navigation of the Mississippi River and was involved in the intrigues of Spain to establish her influence in the West; and those relating to the famous suit for libel which Innes brought against Marshall. The collection consists of some 3,000 pieces, and naturally contains not a little about local institutions and matters of personal interest, of value to the historian of Kentucky or the genealogist. The many names of writers representing the first settlers of Kentucky, will add to the like genealogical information given by the Breckinridge Papers. Among the more notable names represented by letters, often series of letters, are, Thomas Jefferson, James Wilkinson, John Taylor, of Caroline, George Nicholas, Edmund Pendleton, Thomas Law, John Aylett, and many members of the Innes family. There are some legal papers relating to suits in which Innes was engaged and some printed broadsides and pamphlets. Altogether it is a collection worthy of study, and makes an important addition to what was already in the Library on Virginia and early Kentucky history.

Riggs papers

Of another character are the papers of the old firms of Riggs & Company and of Corcoran & Riggs, presented to the Library by Mr. E. Francis Riggs, of Washington, D. C.—the papers of a mercantile and banking house whose name has been long closely and honorably associated with the capital city. The 5,000 pieces comprise correspondence with their agents or connections in foreign countries, notably in Central and South America, and afford a very good account of the foreign trade between the United States and the countries to the southward. Prices of commodities, details of shipments, political and commercial rumors, and actual news formed the subject-matter of those letters, some of which date as early as 1816, and give information to be obtained with difficulty from any other source. The economist can draw much of value from this collection, and on the banking side it is quite as strong. The placing and management of State debts, the subscription to the national loan of the Mexican war period, and relations with George Peabody, are examples of what is to be gleaned from these papers.

The manuscripts bequeathed to the Library by the late Mr. J. Henley Smith were delivered in the course of the year, and contain series of letters from Washington, John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, and John Quincy Adams, Mrs. Adams, and Mrs. Madison, Benjamin Rush, William Wirt, John Randolph, John Howard Payne, Joel Barlow, Henry Clay, Joseph Reed, and Lafayette. In addition are many single examples of notable writers. The threefold nature of this collection accounts for the variety of matter. There are the Smith Papers proper, which include correspondence of Jonathan Bayard Smith and Samuel Harrison Smith (founder of the National Intelligencer) and his wife; some papers of the family of Tobias Lear, Washington's secretary; and some of William Thornton, architect of the Capitol. The mere names, however, give little evidence of the contents of the papers. The letters of Washington relate to certain houses which were being constructed for him in the capital city; those of Jefferson touch upon the sale of his library to the nation; those of Joel Barlow were written to his wife during his journey to Poland to interview Napoleon on American affairs, a journey which cost him his life. The social life in the early years of the city of Washington is touched upon, and original verses by the Adamses, Thornton, and (Mrs. Washington ?) are more than curious.

Of quite another character are the transcripts and notes from Spanish sources received under the will of the late Woodbury Lowery, of Washington, D. C. Mr. Lowery spent many years in obtaining material for his history of the "Spanish Settlements within the present Limits of the United States," 1513-1574. To natural aptitude for such an undertaking he added special connections in Spain, which threw open to him the public and private collections of that country, and his use of original material gave to his volumes a coloring of permanent value. The eighteen volumes of transcripts, notes, and lists which constitute his bequest are an invaluable source of information, a fit proof of his intelligently directed industry and of his historical judgment. Ten of the volumes relate to Florida, five to New Mexico, and the balance to miscellaneous matter on those territories and to California, Texas, and Louisiana. His history was left in an unfinished state, but this material is a partial compensation to students in the same field.

Papers of David Murray

From Mrs. David Murray, of New Brunswick, N. J., was received a series of manuscript papers and addresses by the late Dr. David Murray, who was summoned to Japan by the government of that country to superintend the reformation of its system of education. For six years, from 1873, Doctor Murray remained in that service. His achievements there were thus stated by Professor Fujisawa at a memorial dinner given in Tokyo in April, 1905:

"He [Dr. Murray] set his heart and soul to the various tasks entrusted to him by the Japanese-Government, such as the carrying out, and in some respects, remodelling the elementary school system, the outline of which had been drawn before his advent, nourishing the germ of the present Imperial Tokio University, laying the foundation of women's education in Japan, etc."

These papers deal with educational problems in Japan and on other miscellaneous subjects, the whole serving to illustrate the life work of the man and his labors in the service of Japan.

Lafayette papers

A labor of love and a gift of unique character are embodied in the 40 manuscripts presented to the Library by M. Émile Édouard Cellérier, President of the International College of Heraldry, in behalf of himself and his daughter, Mademoiselle Louise France Cellérier, in memory of his deceased wife, Madame Gabrielle France Cellérier, née Cunningham, of New York. They consist of material relating to the history of the Lafayette family, beginning with the year 1025, prepared in fitting heraldic form and beautifully executed by hand. The manuscripts, which date respectively from the time of the Crusades down to near the period of the French Revolution, were collected from the cabinet of the renowned genealogist, Hozier, from which they were obtained by Mr. Cellérier. They are listed in full on pp. 126-127.

In material of the war of independence the Library gains by the gift of Mrs. George W. Morgan, of Mount Vernon, Ohio. Few figures are so closely connected with the early period of the development of the western country as that of Col. George Morgan, whose name occurs frequently and prominently in the Journals of the Continental Congress, and later in connection with land ventures in the north and southwest. The details of this gift are given in the list, printed on p. 124; and, few as they are, they serve to show his connection with the men of his day and the confidence they reposed in him.

Of the middle period the note of Thomas Ewing on his resignation takes precedence for its historical interest—a gift from Thomas Ewing, jr., of New York. It is a grateful addition to the Library, which, though exceedingly strong on the Democratic-Republican side, possesses comparatively few records of the Whig party. Attention should also be drawn to the gift of Lawson papers, from Judge James Alfred Pearce, of Chestertown, Md.

The civil war is represented by the gifts from the family of William H. Trescot, through Edward A. Trescot, of Pendleton, S. C., and Gaillard Hunt, of Washington; from Mrs. E. V. D. Miller, and from Mrs. Mary Early Hawn, both of Washington, D. C. It is only natural that the Library should not possess many records of that period, so thorough were the efforts of the War Department to gather the available material for its "Records of the Rebellion," but this circumstance makes every addition the more welcome. Miss A. Young, of Newcastle, Del., gave a series of military and civil commissions held by Nicholas Young, U. S. Army, and Mr. R. W. D. Connor, of North Carolina, three printed tickets and broadsides of the Reconstruction period.

Mr. Grenville Kane, of New York, presented an interesting diary of a voyage to the Far East in a U. S. Sloop of War, in 1853-4, and Mr. John B. Peaslee, some interesting literary autographs. Of personal or family interest is the gift of Morris-Croxall papers by Mrs. Morris L. Croxall, of Washington, D. C.

Two of the oldest banking institutions of New Orleans, La., gave to the Library a set of impressions of their notes of issue circulating before 1860, printed in fours and unsigned. Of the Canal Bank the notes were fives, tens

New Orleans
banks: Notes

(two issues), twenties (three issues), fifties, and one hundreds. Of the Citizens' Bank the notes were fives (two issues), tens (two issues), twenties, fifties, one hundreds, and one thousand. All of the notes of this latter bank are in French as well as in English. Apart from their interest as specimens of old-time bank notes, they possess an artistic interest, as the larger number of the plates were made in New Orleans, and bear portraits not to be found in any other form. For example, the five and ten dollar notes of the Shreveport Branch of the Citizens' Bank carry a vignette of C. C. Cammack, then cashier of the branch, and the twenty and fifty dollar notes bear the vignette of the president of the bank, Edmond J. Forstall. One of the later issues carries the portrait of A. B. Roman, the governor of Louisiana.

No single collection of papers of size was purchased in the last year, but the detailed list shows what individual pieces were thus obtained. It does not follow that no collections were offered, but that the valuation placed upon them by their possessors was beyond what in the opinion of the Library the papers were worth as historical material. There is a strange misconception as to the value of papers to the Library. The principal object in obtaining manuscript material is to preserve it and make it accessible to students. For this primary object the Library invites gifts and deposits of family and other papers of whatever description, and gives every assurance of safety and good usage. But it is not in a position to buy largely material that is almost wholly of a personal or local interest, or to pay exorbitant prices for material even of general and permanent interest. When such matter is offered every consideration possible is given to determine liberally its value as historical material and as completing what records are already in the Library. But the tendency of those owners of family papers who will not part with them except for a price is to hold them at figures which make their purchase by the Library impracticable. They are affected by personal considerations, by sentiment, and by an imperfect knowledge of the relative importance of the writers or subject-matter. The erratic course of the "autograph" market has in part been responsible for this. A collector anxious to complete a certain series of writings, such as those of the Presidents or their Cabinets, will pay for a desired specimen a price out of all proportion to its autographic or historical value, and that price will be quoted as the true market price of a letter or document of that person. The Library can not regard such quotations as expressive of the true value of the paper, and it does not collect mere autographs.

MSS.: Purchases

Three pieces purchased stand out as of special importance:

1. From Germany was obtained the original manuscript translation of Franklin's Autobiography, made by his close friend, Louis Guillaume Le Veillard. The existence of such a translation has been known, but it was supposed to have been lost. What gives it a certain value is that it contains some lines not in the original English version, and that nearly one-half of the manuscript is in Le Veillard's own hand. There are a number of translations of the famous Autobiography into French, by various hands and of varying degree of merit. This particular translation has apparently never been printed, and there is reason to believe it was prepared by Le Veillard under the immediate eye of Franklin himself. Though Franklin's knowledge of French was imperfect, he could suggest the manner of translating certain words or phrases, and thus give the final form to the work. Even without such intervention the manuscript is of high interest.

2. Another Franklin item consists in the original manuscript of Condorcet's Éloge on Franklin, read before the French Academy, November 13, 1790. There are no less than three forms or stages of this Éloge, two in the writing of Condorcet, and one by a secretary, but bearing many corrections and additions by Condorcet. Only the last form is complete, but the others show the development of the writer's thought and the earlier and rejected paragraphs he prepared.

3. More than a year ago there was offered to the Library what purported to be a royal decree issued by Philip the Fourth of Spain, on March 22, 1638, and touching the possession of certain rights in the West Indies appertaining to the Columbus family. The form of the decree was perfectly correct, the signatures corresponded to those known to be genuine, and the watermark of the paper was exactly similar to what was found in other royal decrees of that date. Some doubts, however, existed as to its authenticity, but did not suffice to prevent the Library from purchasing it. A photographic copy was sent to the American Minister in Spain, who submitted it to the Director of the Archives of the Indies, at Seville, Señor Pedro Torres Lanzas, who later courteously reported as follows:

MSS.: Purchases
Decree of Philip IV

His Excellency WILLIAM MILLER COLLIER,
Minister of the United States of America, Madrid.

RESPECTED SIR: With my usual pleasure and interest I took up the matter which you were pleased to entrust to me in your courteous and appreciated note of the 19th of the current month, in reference to the photographic copy (which I return herewith), and in answer thereto I have to state:

First. In case 140, shelf 2, bundle 1, endorsed "Unassorted general. Registers, resolutions, and writs of execution in affairs of justice and in the Council—1605 to 1748," volume 1, folio 327, vuelta, there is an entry which states, verbatim:

"Marqués de Villanueva de Ariscal. On the said day (March 22, 1638), another cédula was despatched, [ordering] that the said justices (magistrates) fulfil a requisitoria in so far as it might be justified in law, on the petition of the Marqués de la Piobera as guardian of the Duque de Beraguas."

This establishes the fact that the Royal Cédula was promulgated.

Second. It can not be affirmed decisively that the photographic Royal Cédula is genuine and authentic, since no duplicate has been found with which it may be compared; but there are no reasons to doubt its authenticity, if one bears in mind the existence of the entry copied [above], and the fact that the type or class of handwriting (letra), composition, signature of His Majesty, etc., of the photographic copy, agree with those of other cédulas of the same date which are preserved in this Archive.

Third. There are examples of Royal Cédulas of the same date, written on stamped paper. (Third seal.)

This is as much information as I can give you in reply to your kind letter.

Hoping sincerely that I have satisfactorily answered your questions, I am, I repeat, as ever, your most attentive and trustworthy servant,

PEDRO TORRES LANZAS.

This reply practically establishes the authenticity of this document, the contents of which are of such immediate interest that a translation is printed, as follows:

Royal Cédula given in Madrid, March 22, 1638, to give possession in the Indies to the Duque de Beragua y Jamaica of that which belongs to Don Pedro Colon y Portugal.

The King.

My Viceroy, Presidents and oidores of the Provinces of Peru and of New Spain, governors, corregidores, Alcaldes mayores, and ordinarios, and [all] other Judges and Justices whatsoever of all the cities, villas, and lugares, of my Kingdoms of the Indies and Provinces thereof, Isles and Main land of the ocean sea, and each and every one of you in your districts and jurisdictions, before whom this my cédula may be shown: Know that through Don Agustin Homodey, Marques de Villaneuba del Ariscal y de la Piobera, as curador of Don Pedro Nuno Colon y Portugal, Duque de Beragua, Conde de Jelbes, Marques de Jamaica y de Villamizar, it has been reported to me in my Council of the Indies that the said Duke had in those my Kingdoms all the revenues from the said estates of Beragua and Jamaica, and in particular that there were paid to him sixteen thousand ducats of silver, warrants for which were drawn upon my Royal Treasury of Panamá; and the requisitorio which he presented set forth clearly the death of Don Alvaro Colon y Portugal, late Duque de Beragua, and the succession to the said estates of the said Duque Don Pedro, his son, and the said guardianship, and of his being ordered to give possession of the said estates and revenues; and in order that he might take [possession], he prayed that I should command that my Royal Cedula be given, or whatever my will should be: And the members of the said my Council having considered the matter, I have thought well to command you, as by these presents I do command, that [this cedula] being before you presented, or you being thereby required, you examine the said requisitorio, which will be shown you in the original, with this, signed by Licentiate Don Alvaro Flores, teniente of my corregidor of this Villa of Madrid, and by Nicolas Gomez, one of the secretaries thereof (escribano del numero della), dated Feb. 19 of this present year, and that you observe, fulfil, and execute it, and cause it to be observed, fulfilled, and executed in every particular, according to the tenor thereof, so far as it has authority in law. Done in Madrid, March twenty-eighth, sixteen-hundred and thirty-eight.

I the King.

By order of the King our Lord, Don Fer[nan]do Ruiz de Contr[eras]

*New Orleans
Customs records*

The records of the United States custom-house at New Orleans, La., having been condemned so far as they were not required for the conduct of the ordinary business of the office, a selection was made from them for the Library. From the leading port of export in the South, and the most important port for the Middle West before the days of railroads, the records were expected to contain good historical material. Nor was this expectation unrealized. In no case had the earlier commercial reports of the foreign trade of the country been fully analyzed or properly tabulated. The very form of the return and the crude methods employed in combining forbade satisfactory results. A recurrence to the original invoices and manifests would in part overcome the serious defects the published reports contained, and for this reason the original returns of imports and exports at New Orleans to 1820 were saved. They need only the labors of investigation to develop their historical interest, but some of them speak for themselves. There are the returns of the coastwise trade in slaves at this port from the first years of the office; the lists of flat boats on which was floated the produce of the Middle West, the circulars issued by the Treasury on customs procedure, and the correspondence between the Treasury and the Collector. Among the records were found the papers of the Custom House while under the Confederacy, a long series of papers relating to trade, blockade running, and fiscal and commercial regulation. All of this material was transferred to the Library for preservation. The bulk is large and being still unopened no account can be given of the number of papers contained. A conservative estimate would be about 50,000.

The progress in obtaining transcripts from English sources of material relating to America is shown by the general list appended to this paper.
