Administrative Information

Provenance

The papers of Horace Greeley, journalist, were given to the Library of Congress by Worthington C. Ford in 1903. Additional papers were purchased in 1928, and several small additions were subsequently acquired between 1928 and 1983. A large addition was given by Elizabeth Mills Reid as part of the papers of Whitelaw Reid, Greeley's successor at the New York Tribune, in 1956.

Processing History

The papers of Horace Greeley were arranged and described in 1965. Additional material was processed in 1985. The collection was rearranged in 2006 and the finding aid revised in 2007.

Copyright Status

Copyright in the unpublished writings of Horace Greeley in these papers and in other collections of papers in the custody of the Library of Congress has been dedicated to the public.

Access and Restrictions

The papers of Horace Greeley are open to research. Researchers are advised to contact the Manuscript Reading Room prior to visiting. Many collections are stored off-site and advance notice is needed to retrieve these items for research use.

Scope and Content Note

The papers of Horace Greeley (1811-1872) span the years 1812-1928, with most of the collection encompassing the years 1860-1872. The papers include correspondence, typescripts and transcripts of Greeley's letters and writings; articles, notes, lectures, and speeches by and about Greeley; scrapbooks of newspaper clippings and other printed matter; and miscellaneous material.

Incidents of Greeley's boyhood, his early struggle in New York to maintain himself in the printing and publishing business, and the growth and success of the New York Tribune that he owned and edited are related in letters from Greeley to Charles A. Dana, B. F. Ransom, Rufus W. Griswold, and others. Other subjects are Whig politics and the slavery issue prior to the Civil War. There is little material relating to Greeley's three-month term in Congress, 1848-1849, or his senatorial aspirations in 1861 and 1867.

Lecture requests, business and editorial matters concerning the New York Tribune, New York politics, family illness, the bail bond for Jefferson Davis, the Liberal Republican Party, and the presidential campaign of 1872 are also subjects in the collection.

Prominent correspondents include Simon Cameron, William E. Chandler, Schuyler Colfax, William Maxwell Evarts, Hamilton Fish (1808-1893), Jessie Benton Frémont, John G. Nicolay, John Sherman, Gerrit Smith, and B. F. Wade.
