Biographical Note

William Sydney Thayer, 1830-1864, was the son of Abijah Wyman Thayer and Susan Bradley Thayer of Haverhill, Massachusetts. He graduated from Harvard University in 1850, delivering the commencement poem on that occasion, and joined the staff of the New York Evening Post about 1852. In 1855, he accompanied Colonel Henry Lawrence Kinney on his expedition to Nicaragua, and was one of the principal actors in that enterprise. He renewed his connection with the Evening Post upon his return from Nicaragua and served as associate editor of the paper until his resignation in April 1861. Appointed consul general of the United States at Egypt, he remained at his post until his death in Cairo in April 1864.

Scope and Content Note

The papers of William Sydney Thayer (1830-1864) span the years 1835-1901, with the bulk from 1835 to 1895. The collection consists of correspondence, dispatches, journals, essays, addresses, poems, clippings, printed matter, photographs, and memorabilia dealing primarily with Thayer's activities in Nicaragua and Egypt. Included is information on Henry Lawrence Kinney and his 1855 Nicaraguan expedition, in which Thayer participated; pamphlets relating to Nathaniel Prentiss Banks; Thayer family genealogy; and papers and correspondence of family members James B. Thayer, Abijah Wyman Thayer, and Sarah S. Thayer. Other correspondents include Francis Dianese, Charles Hale, John Bigelow, and Kinney. An incomplete set of dispatches treats Thayer's service as consul general in Egypt, 1861-1863.

A supplement to the collection also contains letters from James B. Thayer, Abijah Wyman Thayer, Francis Dianese, Charles Hale, and others. With the exception of a few letters of political interest written prior to the Civil War, the correspondence deals principally with the activities of Thayer as consul in Egypt, the settlement of his estate, and Thayer family genealogy. Included in the supplement are poems by William Sydney Thayer and Sarah S. Thayer. Additional material consists of clippings of Thayer's activities in Egypt, notes and clippings concerning the Thayer family, addresses of James B. Thayer, pamphlets relating to Nathaniel Prentiss Banks, photographs and views, and mementoes.

The main portion of the Thayer collection, dated 1835-1895, has been microfilmed by the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, and is organized in the order in which it was filmed.
