Picture Section,
Rotogravure: Part 5

The New York Times

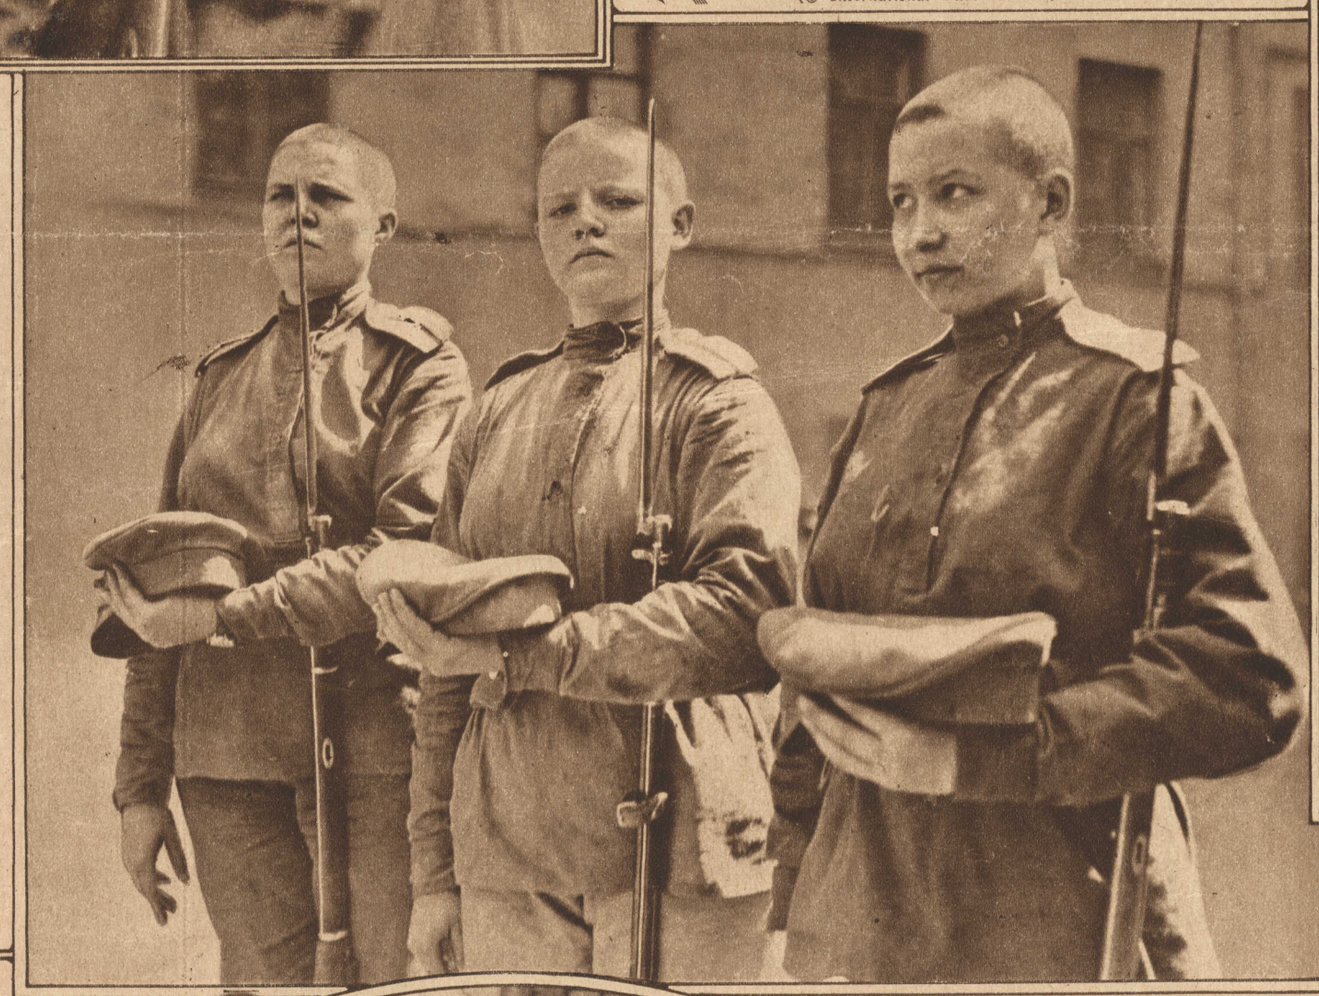
Sunday,
August 19, 1917

YOUNG RUSSIAN GIRL SOLDIERS ON PARADE IN PETROGRAD WHERE THEY PASSED IN REVIEW BEFORE PREMIER KERENSKY BEFORE LEAVING FOR THE FRONT.
(© International Film Service.)

RUSSIAN GIRL SOLDIER AT "RIGHT DRESS."
(© Underwood & Underwood.)

(© International Film Service.)
SERVICE CAPS AMONG THE GIRL SOLDIERS OF THE "BATTALION OF DEATH," AND NOT ALWAYS PUTTING THEM ON STRAIGHT.

A COSSACK DISTRIBUTING REGULATION



MLLE. VERA BUTCHAREFF
Who Has Been Twice Wounded in Battle and Who led the "Battalion of Death" When They Captured One Hundred German Prisoners, Wearing Some of the Medals Won on that and on Previous Occasions. (© U. & U.)

According to Petrograd Dispatches the Girls Have Shown Themselves Fearless in Battle, and Each Carries a Sufficient Quantity of Cyanide of Potassium to Cause Instant Death in the Event of Capture

KING GEORGE V. WEARING THE BRITISH ARMY HELMET ON HIS RECENT VISIT TO THE FRONT IN FLANDERS.
(© Underwood & Underwood.)

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

RUSSIAN GIRLS OF THE FAMOUS "BATTALION OF DEATH" STANDING AT ATTENTION DURING AN INSPECTION BY THEIR COMMANDER, MISS VERA BUTCHAREFF.
The Girl Soldiers Wear Their Hair Short, Some Even Having Their Heads Shaved.

(© International Film Service.)

ORDERLIES OF THE "BATTALION OF DEATH" GOING TO THE RUSSIAN ARMY MESS FOR FOOD FOR THEIR COMRADES.

M. QUINTANILLA, MEXICAN MINISTER TO FRANCE, PRESENTS TO AUGUSTE RODIN, THE SCULPTOR, IN BEHALF OF THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT, AN EXAMPLE OF AZTEC SCULPTURE, PERFECT IN PRESERVATION AFTER HUNDREDS OF YEARS.
M. Quintanilla Is Shown Seated with Mr. Rodin (Underwood & Underwood.)