

The Round-Cornered Lining
(One-Piece)

of Fused Porcelain-Steel

Make sure of the lining before you decide upon your Refrigerator! You should not confuse the various enamel paints, sometimes called "porcelain-enamels," etc., with the material used in lining the

BOHN SYPHON REFRIGERATOR

Five coats of Genuine Porcelain, fused into sheet-steel at intense heat, one after another, produce a snow-white surface that will not crack, chip or peel. This is absolutely guaranteed. The corners are rounded so that there is no crevice or cranny which cannot be reached and cleaned with the greatest ease.

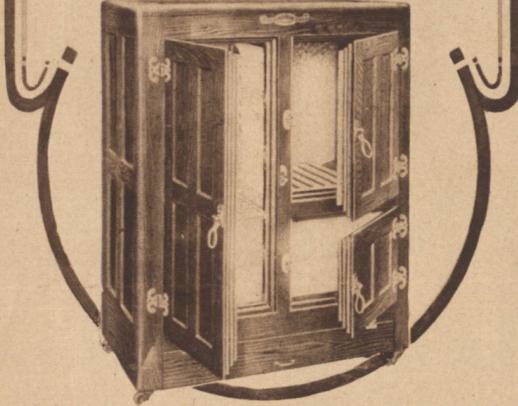

In all but the very largest models this Bohn lining is a single piece, without joints of any kind. Where one-piece construction is not practicable, two pieces are welded together, not along an edge, but half-way up the walls, where the surface is flat. Thus there is no possibility that food particles may lodge in the joint.

You should see this remarkable lining, and the other Bohn features—Syphon System of circulation; ten-layer, heat-resisting walls, with "Flaxinum" insulation; the front drain, etc. Bohn Syphon and other Bohn Refrigerators are shown here in complete variety, at prices from $19.00 up.
