Princess Mary, sister of New York's most recent royal visitor, decorates a number of maidens from England's great Land Army with the "Land Girls' V. C." at a recent party given this splendid organization in London. "Land Girls" was the title given to the English farmerettes who so cheerfully donned overalls and took up the farm work of their brothers who were called to the front.

U. S. S. New Mexico, "The Pride of the Navy," Uncle Sam's great electric ship and flagship of the Pacific Fleet, passing through the Golden Gate at San Francisco as seen from a seaplane. (Oval) Gun pointers manning two of the twenty-two five-inch guns that form the secondary defense of the great super-dreadnought. The New Mexico, launched in the summer of 1917, is the first battleship of any nation to be driven by electricity—624 feet long, weighs 32,000 tons, makes 21 knots, develops 28,000 H. P., 1,200 in crew, burns oil instead of coal, 1,000,000 gallon fuel capacity, main battery of twelve 14-inch guns, nine boilers and has four propellers driven by 7,000 H. P. motor.
