

[John Wright]

M.Jones. 4-5-36.

Interview with ..... Mr. John Wright.

Address ..... Deansville, Wisconsin.

Date of interview..... 4-3-36.

Personal History.

Mr. Wright has lived in Deansville all of his life; his father came there in 1868, seven years after the village was started. Mr. Wright was of the opinion that there was nothing particularly outstanding about Deansville, no stories, etc. that were connected with it M.Jones Interview John Wright-4-3-36. 4-5-36. Deansville, Wisconsin.

Mr. Wright interviewed; he stated that there was nothing outstanding about Deansville at the present time, and that there was nothing of particular interest in the way in which Deansville came to be settled. A man by the name of Dean sold a part of his farm in February 1861, and it was there that the village was started. Mr. Wright has lived there all of his life, and his father came there in 1968. Nationality:Originally the settlers in Deansville were Yankees, but there are none of them left at the present time. The other nationalities are pretty well represented, with a predominance of German and Irish. However, they do not have any customs, or festivals or any gatherings which would distinguish them from a genuine American village, not do they have any functions that are an outgrowth of American life. In fact, Mr. Wright said that the place was so small, that anything of that sort could hardly be expected of it.