Dear Mr. Moftan,

Many thanks for your letter of Jan. 11th.

Since writing to you, I received a card from the Rector of Little Waltham, Chelmsford, telling me that he had written to you acknowledging the cheque which I had forwarded to him, and that he himself had sent the cheque to the sister of Mr. Newlandsmith with the information that it could be used for part payment of her brother's treatment at the Hydro. I expect that in the meantime you have received a letter from Miss Newlandsmith about this matter and also acknowledging the cheque £15.

The trouble has been caused all along by the fact that no one wished to mention explicitly the nature of the malady of Mr. Newlandsmith. Immediately I found that I did not get any definite information about the malady of Mr. Newlandsmith I suspected that it might be mental, as I have always experienced that people are very reticent about mentioning this malady. I sincerely trust that Mr. Newlandsmith will make a speedy recovery.
