THE NEW, HISTORICAL SONG DRAMA,

T·H·E · O·N·L·Y · W·A·Y

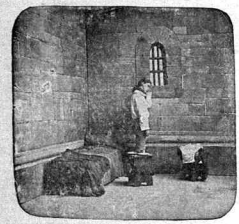
By Max S. Witt and Robert F. Roden.

1 Two friends in France
Once loved a girl;
One was of noble birth,

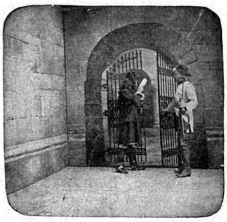
2 He won her and she soon
Became his bride.—

3 The second one—a scapegrace—
Also loved her as his life,
But she had told him, "No,"
And turned aside.

4 The Revolution came and
France was all aflame;



5 The nobleman was
Straightway doomed to die;



6 But as the hour drew near,
There came his friend, so dear,

7 "I'll take your place," he said,
"And you must fly!"

8 "'Tis the Only Way," he said,
"I will die for you!"

9 "'Tis the only way to save the Friend I love so true,"

10 "I will gladly take your place,
So don't delay,"

11 "You must live for her
Sweet sake—'Tis the only way."

12 "Dressed in my cloak and hat," he said,
"The guard will let you pass;
You'll be quite safe in England—you and she."

13 "I freely give my life for you,
And all I ask is this:
I trust that she will sometimes think of me."

14 The nobleman obeyed,
And his escape soon made,

15 In England they were
Safe at break of day;

16 But 'neath the cruel knife,
His friend gave up his life,
For her sweet sake he chose "The Only Way."
