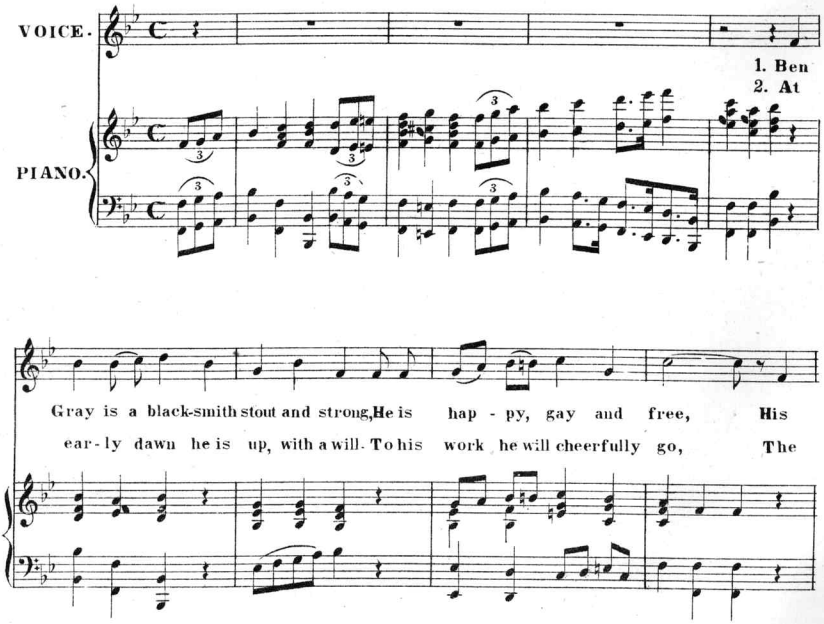
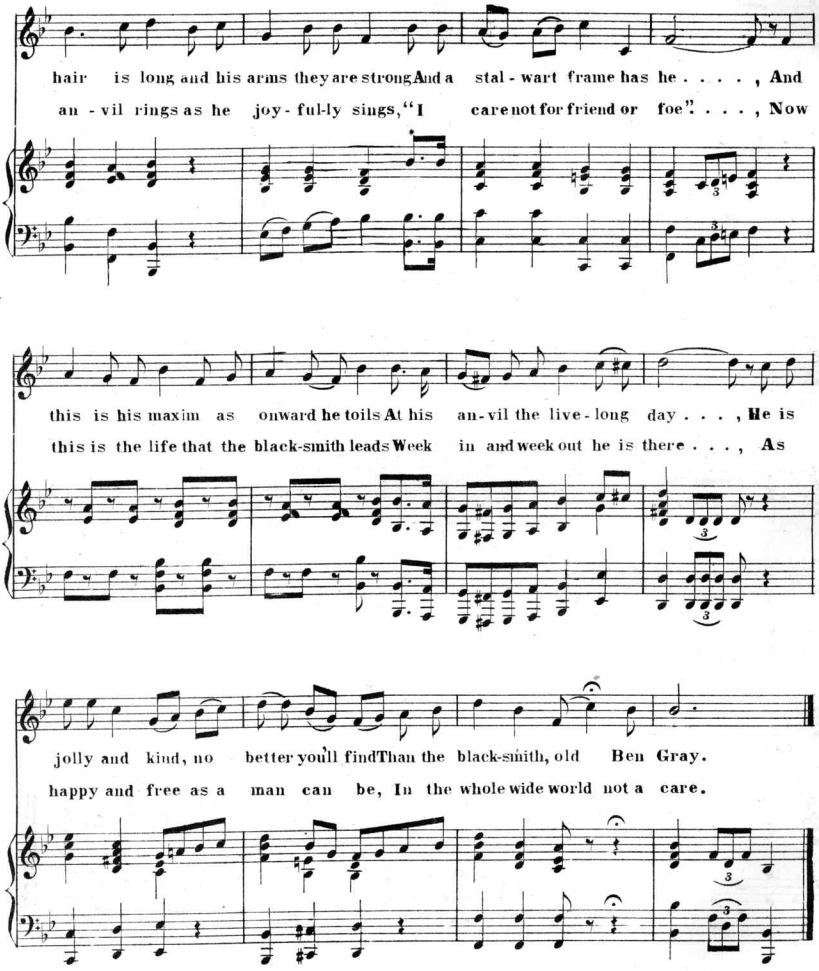
BEN GRAY, THE VILLAGE SMITH.

BARITONE SONG AND CHORUS.

Words and Music by SAMUEL BRADBURY.



Copyright, 1885, by J. Church & Co.



hair is long and his arms they are strong And a stal - wart frame has he . . . . , And an - vil rings as he joy - ful-ly sings, "I care not for friend or foe" . . . . , Now this is his maxim as onward he toils At his an-vil the live - long day . . . . , He is this is the life that the black-smith leads Week in and week out he is there . . . . , As jolly and kind, no better you'll find Than the black-smith, old Ben Gray.
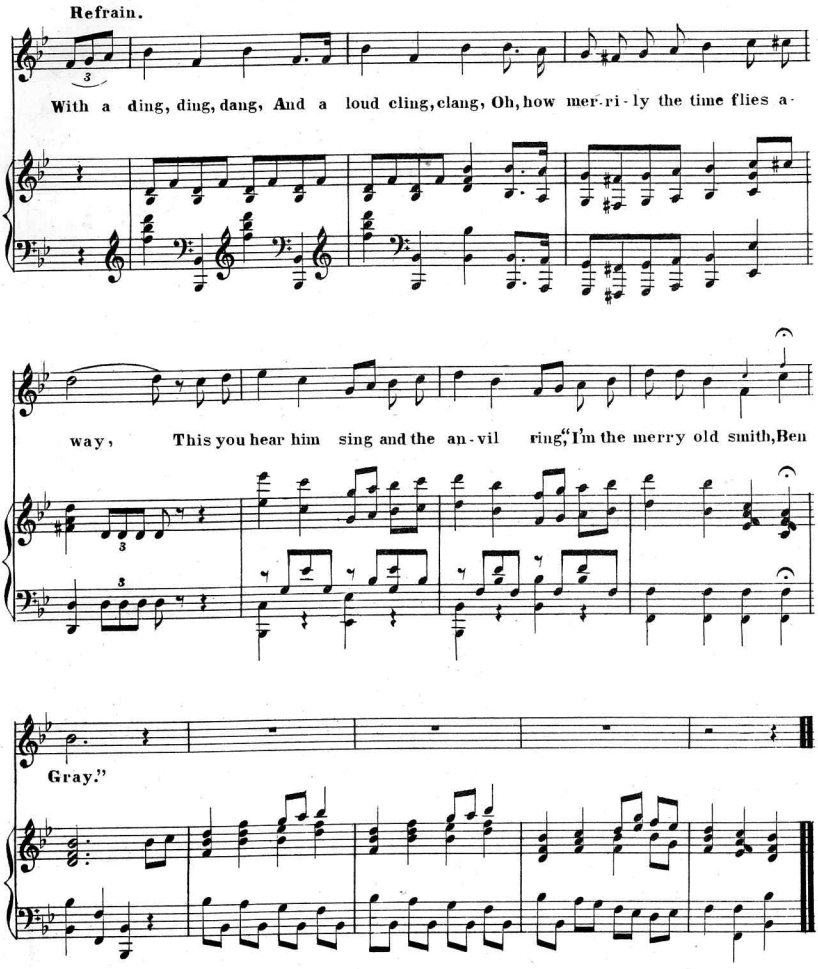
happy and free as a man can be, In the whole wide world not a care.



Refrain.
With a ding, ding, dang, And a loud cling, clang, Oh, how mer-ri-ly the time flies away, This you hear him sing and the an-vil ring, "I'm the merry old smith, Ben Gray."
